

GRAND JURY FACES HEAVY DOCKET OF CRIMINAL CASES

Eight or ten criminal matters are scheduled to come before the next session of the grand jury, scheduled to be called with the opening of the spring term of the circuit court starting Monday, February 24. According to the district attorney's office, the continuation of two or three matters already under investigation will be presented. These include the mysterious death of George F. Hall, Elk creek farmer, and the suicide by poison of Myles Randall in the county jail while facing return to state prison for violation of parole.

The state police headquarters at Salem, to which the Hall death was referred for reconstruction, have filed reports. Hall was found dead seated at a table in his home last November from a bullet, apparently accidentally fired, while he was cleaning an automatic pistol. Several features of the case have never been fully cleared. It is also anticipated that the next grand jury will investigate the shooting of John W. Pernoll, Applegate postmaster and storekeeper, during the course of a holdup six weeks ago. Pernoll was shot in the arm and leg and beaten by a bandit when he fled an attempted holdup.

Inquiries in the Hall and Randall cases were launched by the present grand jury but never completed.

It is discretionary with the court whether the present grand jury is continued or a new one is called.

Other cases to be brought to the attention of the grand jury, according to the district attorney, include:

L. F. West, middle aged mill worker charged with assault with a knife upon Doa Montgomery, during a dance at Talent last November. West is at liberty on bonds. West allegedly stabbed Montgomery during a fight that followed an argument over dance etiquette.

Kenneth DeWitt Powell of Central Point, charged with a statutory offense involving a woman hitch-hiker who told a sensational story. She was "picked up" by Powell in his auto at 2 o'clock in the morning and taken to a lonely spot in the Tolo district, according to a statement she made to the authorities. Powell is at liberty on bonds. The whereabouts of the complaining witness are not definitely known to the district attorney.

Harvey Wilson, charged with theft of 500 pounds of cheese from the Eagle Point cheese factory, also awaits grand jury action.

Raleigh Holyman, charged with forgery, is scheduled to enter a plea of guilty. Holyman awaits the return of Circuit Judge H. D. Norton to appear for sentence.

A number of minor and routine matters are also scheduled to be brought to the attention of the grand jury.

THE PUPILS: 24 High School girls THE CLASSROOM: A Safeway grocery

A school teacher wrote this letter to the Safeway family...

"When we had our lesson on marketing, I took my class to the Safeway store for a practical demonstration.

"Although I had made previous arrangements, I was appreciative of the manner in which we were received.

"You know it is no pleasure for a merchant to have twenty-four giggling girls wandering through his store.

"But this Safeway grocer... took down can after can of fruits and vegetables and bottle after bottle—to show us the difference in grades, sizes, contents and prices.

"In fact he gave us a very instructive lecture on the fine points of thrifty food buying.

"We had not been trading at this store but I made it a point to see that 'the Safeway family' thereafter received our business."

FARMERS CALLED FOR CONCLAVE ON BEST USE OF LAND

An agricultural outlook conference will be held in Medford February 20 and 21 for the purpose of determining the program for agriculture in Jackson county.

Changes in farming are occurring rapidly and, with the whole nation becoming farm conscious, due to the agitation over the agricultural adjustment act, it is time that the farmers take stock and assemble all facts possible about the agriculture of this county, and from these facts decide as near as possible what is the most profitable program to follow in the future.

In making a journey, it is well to stop occasionally to look back and see how far we have come and to look forward to see where we are going," stated County Agent R. G. Fowler today. "Changes in farming are occurring rapidly and, with the whole nation becoming farm conscious, due to the agitation over the agricultural adjustment act, it is time that the farmers take stock and assemble all facts possible about the agriculture of this county, and from these facts decide as near as possible what is the most profitable program to follow in the future."

Committees working in the county at present are covering the subjects of horticulture, truck crops, poultry, turkeys, dairying, livestock, farm crops, soils and agricultural economics. These committees are assembling data and laying the foundation for tentative recommendations for consideration of the conference. The committee on agricultural economics, which is a very important one, is studying the question of what Jackson county is good for and the best use of the land available in the county.

The conference will be divided into groups and there will be something of interest to every farmer in Jackson county, as he can attend the group which is taking up the subject in which he is most interested and take part in making the recommendations that will be acted upon by the general conference.

BISHOP DAGWELL OBLIGATED WITH IMPRESSIVE RITE

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 12.—(AP)—The very Rev. Benjamin Duniap Dagwell, D. D., became the fifth bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Oregon today. The throng in Trinity Episcopal church stood in reverential attitude as the Denver clergyman took the solemn obligation of the Episcopate.

Bishop Dagwell succeeds the Right Rev. Walter Taylor Sumner, D. D., who died last September 4.

The martial strains of "Onward, Christian Soldiers," chanted by choirs from nearby parishes and missions moved in procession through the edifice, preceded by a crucifer and the national colors and church flag.

The Right Rev. Paul Matthews, D. D., bishop of New Jersey, officiated as consecrator, assisted by the Right Rev. Louis C. Sanford, bishop of San Joaquin and president of the province of the Pacific, and the Right Rev. Fred Ingle, bishop-coadjutor of Colorado.

The consecration sermon was preached by the Right Rev. Irving P. Johnson, bishop of Colorado, who took his text from "The First Consecration Sermon" by Jesus in John 21:15, where he commissioned Peter to be "a shepherd and bishop of human souls."

The bishop-elect was escorted to the church by the Rev. Frederick W. Oakes and the Rev. Harry Watta, both canons of St. Johns Cathedral of Denver, which parish Dean Dagwell resigned to accept the election as bishop. He was presented to the consecrator by Bishop Stephen E. Keeler, bishop-coadjutor of Minnesota, and Bishop W. P. Remington of eastern Oregon. The Rev. George H. Swift of Salem acted as chaplain to the consecrator.

HE TAUGHT THEM TO SAVE in buying food

THE PUPILS: 24 High School girls THE CLASSROOM: A Safeway grocery

IT IS YOUR Safeway grocer's business to know the foods he carries. He can tell you about can sizes and the contents of each can. And about how to choose any kind of fruit or vegetable. How to pick out tender meats.

He wants to give you the facts you need to compare prices grade for grade and quality within each grade.

You see, giving his customers buying advice is part of his everyday job.

That job is to lower food prices—and also pay farmers a larger share of the food dollar.

No single grocer could accomplish these things. That's why Safeway grocers, buyers, truckers, marketmen and home economists work as a family.

This way they save time and eliminate wasteful expenses—in between farm and store.

The Safeway family tackled this job because the American people wanted it done—and
