

EARTHQUAKE PICTURES TO BE SHOWN TONIGHT FULL GOSPEL CHURCH

Evangelist R. D. E. Smith now speaking at the Full Gospel church, Newtown street, near Main, will present a group of earthquake pictures tonight in connection with a sermon on "The Last Great Earthquake." The pictures, taken by himself in the Long Beach and Compton area, constitute views of many places where acts of heretofore occurred. These pictures are supplemented with a few fine views of the San Francisco earthquake including one of the fiery cross that burned over the city for some period of time during the fire. The pictures will be shown from 7 p. m. until 7:30 p. m., and the regular evangelistic service will follow immediately. The sermon topic deals with earthquakes as a sign of the imminent coming of Jesus and discusses a peculiar quality in present day earthquakes as a code had in mind by Jesus when He spoke of earthquakes as a sign. In particular the message refers to a future earthquake which will occur at the coming of Jesus and which will prepare the earth for the millennial period.

The sermon topic Sunday night will be "Who's Who at Armageddon," discusses the possibility of another world war and gives the scriptural line-up of the nations at the last great battle of the age—Armageddon.

Communications

To the Editor: Several million Townsendites are feeling better tonight when they read the welcome news today that congress had voted to appoint a committee to investigate the standing of the Townsend plan. This will give the Townsend people some idea how to handle the plan when it comes time for them to do some investigating. The more congress investigates the better. That will just spread the good news, and will be the means of more people to look into the plan and learn what it is all about. That means more members.

And that is what we want (as Frank Jenkins says in today's paper). Even three years of the new deal hasn't been able to cure whatever it is that is wrong. Now maybe this committee will find in the Townsend plan the very thing that they have been looking for so long.

No one would be more surprised than they. Well good luck to them.

Liberty League vs. Townsend.

To the Editor: It appears that since the Liberty League has squelched the new deal with one mighty burst of eloquence by the "unhappy warrior," Al Smith, these philanthropic agents of "enriched greed" are ready to take on more momentous duties, and set the country right regarding arch enemy No. 2, the Townsend plan.

A few evening ago, under the sponsorship of the league, Dr. R. B. Westfield, a professor of Yale university, delivered a broadside against the Townsend plan. In this "learned" address the professor demonstrated that he had not read the Townsend plan as embodied in the McGroarty bill, the measure now pending in congress.

This bill provides for a two percent transactions levy, an addition of one-cent on all income tax payments, and a two percent levy on all inheritances and gifts.

"These funds are to be impounded, or allowed to accumulate for a period of four months after the law becomes effective. During that four months' period, persons eligible for the pension, 80 years of age or over, are to be registered.

"At the opening of the fifth month, the money raised during the first month is to be divided equally among those eligible. At the opening of the sixth month, the money raised during the second month is to be divided, and so on, the impounded fund always being kept four months ahead of the division."

Thus only the amount of money collected for this purpose is distributed, with a maximum of $200 per month, but no minimum set. In this way the plan must succeed in creating sufficient volume before it can bring annuities up to its goal. If the tax only amounts to one-half the desired allotment, then $100 per month instead of $200 would be paid.

In his "learned" address, this representative of DuPont's Liberty League says that the Townsend annuities will require 17 billion dollars per year. He also states that the national income will amount to $1 billion for the same period, therefore he says it will require one-third of the national income to care for the nine percent constituting those over 80, and leave two-thirds or 34 billion for the 91 percent of the remaining population, those under the age of 80 years.

The amount derived for the Townsend beneficiaries from such a national output would depend entirely upon the number of times dollars turn over in doing business throughout the year.

They opponent of the Townsend plan has based his greatest objection on the theory that a specific sum must be raised, but the provisions of the bill are quite different. The opponents must all get their data from the same source as did the professor, since they all sound alike in this respect.

CHAMPION LIAR KILLED A RAT

Jim Jordan (right), alias "Fibber" McGee of Chicago, was heartily congratulated by O. C. Mullett, president of the Liars' Club of Burlington, Wis., for his victory in the club's contest for the tallest tale of the year. Jordan told how he killed a rat that sought refuge from the winter cold by baiting with cheese a large thermometer, whose mercury dropped so low it pinned the rat to the floor. Candidates and Townsend Plan

It may be that in some states, where the issue is less acute than in Oregon, candidates for office can straddle the Townsend plan. It cannot be straddled in Oregon. New evidence of this fact has just been forthcoming in the case of Senator McNary. He was asked whether he would support the plan. He answered without a pledge of support for the Townsend plan specifically, but saying he would support "any suitable plan" for old-age pensions.

The announcement of his answer at a Townsend district meeting evoked a chorus of boos.

Representative Ekwall equivocated for a time on the subject of the Townsend plan. When the Townsend plan people insisted on a yes or no answer, Judge Ekwall—to his everlasting credit—declared his opposition. He could not accept it as practicable, and would not support it.

Over in eastern Oregon, Representative Pierce backed and filled for a time, but finally bent the knee, giving the plan full lip service, although he had heretofore been loud in his opposition to any sort of sales tax, and the sales tax in multiplied form is the very backbone of the Townsend plan as represented in the McGroarty bill.

Representative Mott, ever agile in leaping into popular bandwagons, went for the Townsend plan in a big way, and early, Senator Steiwer is the one member of the Oregon delegation who does not have to seek votes this year. It will be interesting to see what his attitude toward the measure will be, or when, it comes to a vote.

Meanwhile, the bandwagon rush of candidates for all sorts of offices to support the Townsend plan is in progress. From all of which we must infer that the Yale professor took his propaganda straight from headquarters and did not read the bill himself, as we feel confident a Yale professor would not deliberately falsify to his trusting audience.

We notice in the Tribunes last week an article stating that a person receiving a salary of $1500 per year would be required to pay $100 into the Townsend fund. If this correspondent, as well as the professor, would take the trouble to read the bill sponsoring this new Utopian plan, and learn the facts, and then learn to figure, they might have a change of heart and fall in line with the only plan so far advanced from any source to solve the problem of unemployment.

F. W. CHAUSSE Medford, Ore., February 20.

Ed. Note: If the McGroarty bill does not provide for $200 per month, for all over 80, which must be spent within that month, then it ceases to be the Townsend plan. Practically no one is opposed to an old age pension of reasonable size, sufficient to give elderly people with no means of support, physical comfort and security.

GOOD GARDENING

11. Watering. Once your garden is planted and is a going concern, don't go into it every night with the hose, even if it needs water. Frequent light sprinkling is injurious; the best thing is to soak the soil thoroughly about once a week, preferably during the evening, and then loosen the surface with a rake or hoe as soon as it's dry enough. A good method is to dig slight furrows along the rows of plants and let the water flow gently down the furrows. After the water has soaked in, the furrows should be covered with dry soil to prevent baking. Moisture feeds upward in soil, as does oil in a lamp Wick.
