

NOTED ATTORNEY AIDS BRUNO

Joining the case after a personal plea by Mrs. Hauptmann, Samuel S. Leibowitz (seated), noted New York criminal attorney and counsel in the Scottsboro case, is shown as he announced to reporters he had agreed to join Bruno Richard Hauptmann's defense, provided Hauptmann "tell the truth." Hauptmann indignantly declared he had nothing more to tell. (Associated Press Photo)

KING DESCENDS TO DUST

SAVED FROM ICE FLOE FLOATING OUT TO SEA

Fights For Fortune

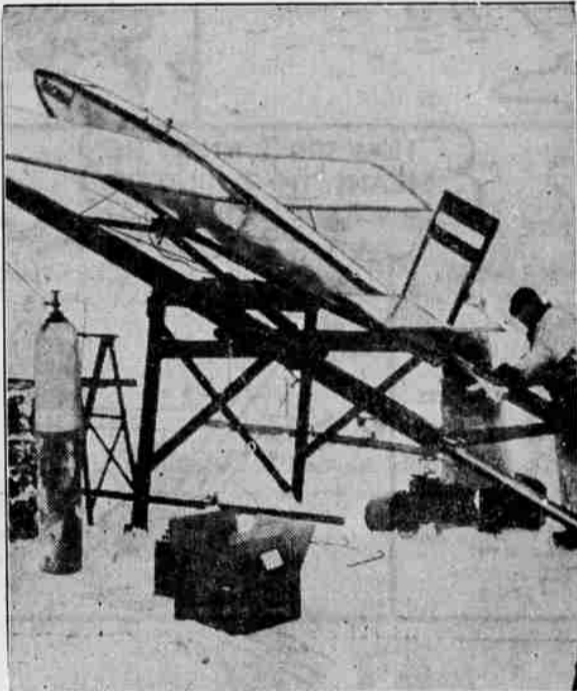

Mrs. Milton Statler of Tucson, Ariz., sister-in-law of Mrs. Elva Statler Davidson, heiress who died of carbon monoxide poisoning two months after marriage, is pictured as she entered the Carthage, N. C., courthouse to attend the trial of a suit to break the $500,000 will of the girl, who left everything to her husband, H. Bradley Davidson, Jr. (Associated Press Photo)

MRS. LONG TAKES HUEY'S JOB

Mrs. Huey P. Long, widow of the slain Louisiana senator, is shown as she arrived at Washington, D. C., to assume her duties as her husband's successor in the senate. Left to right: Palmer Long, Mrs. Long and Gov. James A. Noe of Louisiana, who appointed her. (Associated Press Photo)

ROCKET SHIP POISED FOR HOP

An attempted rocket plane flight across Greenwood Lake, N. Y., failed when it fell only 30 feet from the takeoff, but the experiment's sponsors planned to try again. The little craft here is poised on its cradle just before the start of the brief flight. (Associated Press Photo)

PANGBORN TESTS MIDGET PLANE

GAS PLANT LEVELLED BY EXPLOSION

At least two workmen were killed when a hydrogen gas plant in Chicago's stockyards district was tumbled flat in an instant by a gigantic explosion. Firemen are shown running a hose line across the wreckage to quell the flames which followed the blast. (Associated Press Photo)

HOUSE LOSES ROOF IN CALIFORNIA GALE

This house at Long Beach lost its roof and was otherwise damaged by gales which swept the area around Los Angeles in a heavy rainstorm. The nearby Long Beach oil field also suffered damage. (Associated Press Photo)

Hunting Victim

William A. Law (above), president of a large Philadelphia life insurance company, was killed while bird hunting near Siler City, N. C., by a charge from a shotgun in the hands of S. Clay Williams, president of a tobacco company. Law was hit in the leg and died from loss of blood. (Associated Press Photo)

Dies At Sea

Willard Moore (above), of Tress Pinos, San Benito county, Calif., a cadet on the nautical training ship California State, died on a practice cruise of a disease believed to be meningitis. Fears of an epidemic aboard the vessel, however, were abated. (Associated Press Photo)

Jerry Marshall (above), pioneer Texas flier, was pilot and Glenn Freeland (below) was co-pilot of the air liner which fell into a swamp near Goodwin, Ark., in the worst American airplane crash in history. The pilots, stewardess and 14 passengers all were killed. (Associated Press Photos)

LONG SUPPORTERS WHOOP IT UP

The Huey Long camp in Louisiana claimed "landslide" victories over anti-Long forces in a bitterly fought primary election in which the continuation of the assassinated senator's policies was the major issue. This picture shows a typical voting precinct near New Orleans flanked by signs urging voters to "carry on the work of Long and O. K. Allen." (Associated Press Photo)

IT'S PLENTY COLD AT SEA

Brrr! Here is the bridge of the trawler Illinois as that fishing boat docked at Boston after a voyage to the Grand Banks off Newfoundland. The fishermen are attempting to clear ice from the windows of the bridge. (Associated Press Photo)

Four army aviators bailed out safely by parachute from 2,500 feet when a faltering motor caused this giant bomber to crash near Atlanta while on the way with 10 other bombing planes and 13 pursuit ships to the Panama canal zone. The heap of wreckage of the plane is shown above. (Associated Press Photo)

Bans Royal Oath

Benjamin Levert (above), Socialist reeve of East Sandwich township at Windsor, Ont., refused with six members of the township council to take the oath of allegiance to King Edward VIII if it pledged him to bear arms or take part in the making of munitions. He and the council planned to investigate the oath further. (Associated Press Photo)
