American Legion Auxiliary

Millions for Defense
Appropriation bills to be passed by congress will decide whether or not the United States is to have the defenses urged in the Legion Auxiliary national defense program. No enabling legislation is necessary. It is merely a question of the appropriation of enough money for adequate national defense.

Hearings on the war department budget were begun in December, but no information regarding its provisions was made public. If it follows appropriations made for the current fiscal year it will provide for a regular army of 165,000 men and 12,400 officers, a national guard of 190,000 with 48 army drills, two weeks' training for 20,000 reserve officers, six weeks' summer training for advanced students in the R.O.T.C., one month's training for 30,000 youths in the C.M.T.C. and continuation of the national rifle matches. This provisions approach closely the Legion and auxiliary requests.

Great strength has been made toward a treaty strength navy in the last two years. Our navy has either built, is building, or has appropriated for the limit to which we are entitled in capital ships, aircraft carriers and cruisers. We are now deficient only in destroyers and submarines. In each of these two classes we now possess greater numbers than we require, but the greater majority of these ships are over-age and therefore require replacement.

A force of 2500 military airplanes is asked in the Legion and auxiliary program. The army now has only 1587 military planes, more than 1100 less than the number considered needed. With the airplane becoming an increasingly important weapon, larger air force appropriations will be needed.

As part of our national defense program, the auxiliary has purchased a navy plate. From funds derived throughout the state by the purchase of these plates, $10.00 goes toward sending a boy to C.M.T.C. and $5.00 for the best Bible essay.
