POOL FOR PAYING ENGLAND'S DEBTS PILES UP SLOWLY

LONDON.—(UP)—A mere handful of conscientious Britons who believe that integrity is the soul of their empire are trying to pay off Great Britain's huge national debt, including a billion dollars due the United States.

Their contributions, dribbled into what has come to be known as "the patriotism pool," amount to $2,814,320.02 after eight years. Many of these donations are anonymous, as was the check for $6,000 sent at Christmas time.

But their efforts are like trying to bail out the Atlantic ocean with a bucket.

The trustees of the national debt redemption fund, Messrs. Baring Brothers & Company, Ltd., estimate that it will be 300 years or more before the national debt of close to $40,000,000,000 can be wiped out by such voluntary gifts.

Without any further gifts and depending upon 5 per cent compound interest to double the money every 15 years only $320,000,000 would be available in 100 years where as the war debt to the United State is more than triple that figure.

Nevertheless, the donations trickle in at the trustees' offices at Bishopsgate. Every year since 1927 a Miss K. M. Black has sent a one-pound note. A man sends two pounds every six or eight months.

The fund was started on Armistice day, 1927, with a nest egg of $2,499,390, the bulk of which came from the estate of the late Lord Dalziel. Most of the increase since that time has been accounted for by interest, for the donations have been small and scattered.

The trustees of the national debt redemption fund are empowered to use their discretion to pay off bits of the national debt as and when they may choose. They also can hold all the money until they are able—or their successors 300 years hence—to pay of the $40,000,000,000 off in one swoop.

The national debt is enough to launch a thousand ships like Britain's Rodney or Nelson, enough to bring in two billion dollars a year interest. The debt, if divided per capita, would amount to $825 for every man, woman and child in Great Britain.

The great part of this $40,000,000,000 borrowed from the United States —was borrowed to wage wars. Money was borrowed in an effort to keep the 13 American colonies from breaking away in 1776. The debt is still on the books, although it has been refunded several times. Funds were borrowed to gain control of South Africa in 1899, to fight the Russians in 1843 and to subdue India in 1857.

The debt is an internal one, with the exception of the United States war debt.

When William of Orange came to the British throne 250 years ago the national debt was only $425,000, the government having borrowed on the strength of anticipated French import duties.

The Revolutionary war in the United States cost Great Britain $600,000,000 and the Napoleonic wars cost another $3,000,000 and in 1817 the debt had amounted to $4,240,000,000 ten thousand times its size in 130 years. It has grown ten times greater in the last 120 years.
