

POTTERY SHOWS OLD INDIAN ART; ORIGIN STUDIED

WASHINGTON (UP)—Winslow M. Walker, formerly of the bureau of American ethnology, has reported to the Smithsonian Institution that beautiful and engraved Indian pottery of Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas was made by the tribes first encountered by white men in this region.

In a burial site near Natchitoches, La., Walker found earthenware bottles and bowls of this type associated with such objects as glass beads and scissors, which undoubtedly were of European manufacture.

This burial site can be traced historically to a branch of the Caddo tribe. Thus, Walker points out, "the chronological data offer a clue which should assist considerably in the interpretation of many of the archaeological remains in northwestern Louisiana, southern Arkansas and northeastern Texas."

A skeleton of an old woman was recovered from the ancient graveyard. It is a notable illustration of the extreme head distortion practiced by the southeastern Indians on their children. The head was flattened both at the front and rear until, in the words of one early explorer, "it was pointed and almost of the shape of a miter."

This distortion was accomplished by pressing the head of a child in between two boards every night until it had assumed the desired shape, which the aborigines considered an attribute of beauty. Apparently the practice did little permanent damage.

SAFETY DISPLAY IN AAA WINDOW

As a part of a vigorous safety campaign, the local AAA station at 125 South Riverside avenue has an interesting window display, made by Harvey Robertson and William Proffmeyer of the Commercial Finance company, depicting the hazards of everyday driving.

The display is made in two parts, one representing a hill curve and the ever-present danger of passing on such hazardous spots, while the other represents a city intersection, with the right and wrong way to turn corners illustrated with marked lanes and tiny metal autos.

The safety display will be on view for some time, according to Lee Garlock of the AAA office.

Tombstone Proves Birth Certificate

HARTFORD, Conn., March 6.—(AP)—The tombstone over his father's grave served today as birth certificate to assure an applicant of obtaining an old age pension.

Edward H. Reeves, director of the Connecticut old age assistance bureau, assured the applicant, whose name he withheld, he would not have to bring the stone into the bureau to prove his date of birth was carved thereon. A birth record is a legal requirement.

PORTLAND, March 6.—(AP) A crew of WPA workers started construction of a group of toolsheds today in the first step toward building the Wolf creek and Wilson river shortcut roads to the sea.

SALEM, March 6.—(AP)—Walter Whitbeck of Portland will seek the Democratic nomination to congress from the third district. He filed his declaration today with the secretary of state and announced as his slogan: "Scientific redistribution of wealth through the Townsend plan; abolish unemployment and poverty."

LINCOLN DOCUMENT ON SLAVERY FOUND IN HAWAII LIBRARY

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. (UP)—Officials of the Archives of Hawaii have just reported to San Francisco authorities the finding of an apparently genuine authentic document and signature of Abraham Lincoln, some 5,000 miles from its place of origin.

The document, found in the archives, by Mrs. Henrietta Holt, an employe, is a simple official act, reading as follows: "I hereby authorize and direct the secretary of state to affix the seal of the United States to my proclamation of this date, and signed by me, and in so doing this shall be his warrant."

(Signed) "Abraham Lincoln." As the date of the document is January 1, 1863, it corresponds with the date of the emancipation proclamation and is believed to refer to that.

Dr. T. T. Waterman, librarian of the archives, believes the signature is genuine, but is unable to offer any explanation for its presence in the territory's archives.

NAVY AIR CHIEF FOR BASE ON COLUMBIA

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP)—Admiral King, chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics, told the navy naval affairs committee today that in his "personal and professional opinion" a naval base should be established near the mouth of the Columbia river.

Pressed for definite comment after being recalled to the stand at a hearing on a proposal to establish a base at Tongue Point, Ore., King said a base in the vicinity of the mouth of the Columbia has the "next call" after primary bases have been established at Alameda, Cal., and Sand Point, Wash.

TOPEKA, Kas., March 6.—(AP)—Sardius M. Brewster, 65, former United States district attorney who directed the investigation of the million-dollar municipal bond forgery scandal in Kansas two years ago, died unexpectedly at his home here late today.

OREGON CITY, March 6.—(AP)—Objectors failed to make appearance at a hearing on the proposed $380,000 grade crossing elimination and highway widening project here, and it was announced the contract probably will be awarded at the April 16 meeting of the state highway commission.

ESTACADA, Ore., March 6.—(AP)—E. W. Kimball offered a $250 reward for the apprehension of the person or persons responsible for the fatal poisoning of seven head of stock on his ranch. Two heifers were poisoned on the Oscar Sporrle ranch.

CANADIANS UNITE TO TRY SUCCESS OF UTOPIA PLAN

MONTREAL (UP)—Several score unemployed men and their families, tired of waiting for "better times" and jobs, are planning to forsake modern civilization and live like early Canadians lived.

Uniting under an organization known as the Canadian Prosperity League, the men will establish a small settlement on the outskirts of the city next spring and will attempt to re-establish themselves on a self-maintaining basis. They will build their own homes, grow their own food, raise cattle, make their own clothes and govern themselves.

The league is organized along the same lines as the Llano Corporation in Louisiana and will be a combination of agricultural and commercial enterprise. It is headed by E. A. Sackel, who receives unemployment relief from the city.

Sackel said he hopes to persuade city authorities to allow the league to solicit funds to buy lumber and other equipment necessary to establish the village.

SOVIET CHANGES LITERARY STAND; HONORS PUSHKIN

MOSCOW.—(UP)—A new turn in the Soviet official attitude toward literature, away from purely propagandistic works glorifying communism, and back to the Russian classical authors, is strikingly apparent these days.

This trend has been under way for several years, but of late it is much more pronounced.

With official encouragement Soviet literary circles recently commemorated the 20th anniversary of Leo Tolstoy's death. A nation-wide tribute to Alexander Pushkin is being planned for his centenary, January 27, 1937.

Commissar of War Klement Voroshilov will head the commission of high government officials appointed by the All-Union central executive committee to popularize among both adult workers and school children the writings of "Russia's Shakespeare"—as Pushkin has been called.

Pushkin hardly ranks as a revolutionary author, although he was sympathetic with the "Decembrists" who, in 1825, attempted a futile revolution against Tsarist power. But the admiration he is now receiving from the bolsheviks is based not so much on his political beliefs as on a desire to honor a Russian man of letters who wrote some of the greatest poems and plays in their national literature.

The Leningrad Union of Architects has appointed a commission to restore many of the spots connected with Pushkin's life in the village of Mikhailovsk, nearby. The grove on the bank of the Black Titvut where the poet lost his life in a duel is to be restored and a small summer house in the style of Pushkin's period will be built hard by it.

The State Music Publishing house plans to issue several songs, to which poems by Pushkin will be adapted, to be sung by school children.

Michael Bulgakov, one of the most talented Soviet playwrights, is at work on a play about Pushkin. The poet himself will not be one of the characters, as Bulgakov explains that "the writer is not born who could convey the genius of Pushkin." But his presence will be felt through characters who were his intimates.
