

FAMOUS SONGS OF SOUTH WIN HONOR ABROAD

WASHINGTON (UP)—Stephen Collins Foster, most famous of North American composers, is to be introduced to music lovers abroad as a result of inter-American musical enthusiasm fostered by the Pan-American Union.

Foster is the best loved of American song writers because of his four great songs which reflected kindly sentiment of old plantation days in the south and inspired American pioneers in their trek into the western plains and deserts.

Among dozens of songs which he wrote prior to his death at New York in 1864, those best known are "Way Down Upon de Swanee Ribber," "My Old Kentucky Home," "Masses in de Cold, Cold Ground" and "Old Black Joe." Another of his hits, "Oh! Susanna," attained modern popularity as the theme song in the western pioneer epic of the films, "The Covered Wagon."

Through the talent of Luis Guzman, a Colombian by birth, now member of the United States marine band, 20 of the best Foster melodies have been selected and arranged for concert band. As result of the beneficence and enthusiasm of Josiah Kirby Lilly, manufacturer of Indianapolis, Ind., 500 sets of the "Stephen Foster Melodies," for 17-piece bands, are about to be circulated to musical organizations throughout Latin America.

The movement to introduce Stephen Foster abroad reciprocates the general contributions made by musicians of the southern republic to this country for popularization through a series of Pan-American Union concerts. These frequently were nationally and internationally broadcast.

The movement for Pan-American musical co-operation is credited here in large part to Franklin Adams, former counsellor of the union, himself a musician, who for 25 years spared no effort to popularize work of the best Latin American composers in the United States. Adams, now retired, resides at Athens, Greece.

The internationalization of Stephen Foster is said to be the result of a suggestion by Adams Lilly, an ardent admirer of Foster, wrote to the Pan-American Union asking that a biography of the composer be deposited in the union library.

Adams, alert to musical possibilities, countered with a suggestion that Foster's music be arranged for the use of United States service bands and Latin American organizations which are participating in the Pan American musical movement. Lilly replied favorably and Luis Guzman, a distinguished composer, undertook the technical work.

A beautifully printed series of publications, the "Stephen Foster Melodies," is dedicated to Lilly, "whose generosity and love for Foster's songs made possible the presentation of this melody." On back of the music is a biographical sketch of Foster in the Spanish language.

HAIGHT WILL SEEK SEAT IN CONGRESS

BEND, Ore., March 20.—(AP)—State Representative C. P. Haight, the Blue Mountain sage, wants to raise his renowned voice in the halls of congress.

He announced today his candidacy for the Democratic nomination as congressman from the second Oregon district.

"My platform or slogan will be the Townsend plan," he said.

SALEM, Ore., March 20.—(AP) U. S. Burt of Corvallis filed with the secretary of state today his candidacy for the nomination for state treasurer on the Democratic ticket.

Burt's campaign slogan read simply, "Economy and efficiency." W. E. Burke of Yamhill county is the only other candidate yet to file for the treasurer's post, now held by Rufus Holman. Holman has indicated however, he will be a candidate for re-election on the Republican ticket.

BEE LOSS HEAVY IN PAST WINTER

PORTLAND, Ore., March 20.—(AP)—Oregon beekeepers suffered abnormal losses in most sections from the cold weather of January and February, market sources said today.

Package bee shippers in the south are heavily booked for April shipment and are taking May orders. Honey stocks are light in all sections and the market trend is upward.

West of the Cascades reports said brood rearing was late although increasing rapidly. Filberts, willows, apricots, chickweed, manzanita, mustard, wild turnip and choke cherries are in bloom although dandelions are delayed. Some colonies are being reseeded for pollenation of apricots, peaches and pears at $1.50-2.00 per colony. Dealers are paying 18-19 cents in Portland for beeswax.

THE DALLES INVITES STATE GRANGE MEET

THE DALLES, Ore., March 20.—(AP)—The Dalles Chamber of Commerce and the county Pomona Grange invited the Oregon State Grange today to hold its annual 1937 session here.

It was proposed that the session theme be a commemoration of the completion of Bonneville dam.

This year the Grange will meet at Leeson in June.

HANDBILLS TRACE THEATER IN U. S. FROM 1795 START

ITHA, N. Y.—(UP)—Cornell university has a collection of 6000 handbills which trace the history of the American theater from 1795 to 1905.

The collection was willed to the university by the late Benno Loewy, a lawyer and bibliophile of New York City.

As best a sketchy one, the history of the American stage is traced in as complete detail as possible, according to Dr. Otto Kinkeldey, Cornell's librarian. The bills represent early theaters of virtually every old American city, and a majority deal with the pre-Victorian and Victorian playhouses of England and the United States.

The handbills will be available to research students when their arrangement is completed. Dr. Kinkeldey announced. They fill five large wooden chests.

Among the earliest bills in the collection is one dated January 5, 1795, and which comes from a New York playhouse. The dodger is merely entitled "Theater"—no other name of the playhouse is given. It offers "the very popular opera of the 'Haunted Tower,' performed by the Old American Company in Philadelphia with unbounded applause."

To pad out the evening, a comedy in three acts called the "Midnight Hour" was also scheduled. For these performances box seats sold for eight shillings, pit seats for six shillings and gallery seats for four shillings.

The curtain was scheduled to rise at 8:15 p. m., but in bold type dodger advised "ladies and gentlemen to send their servants at 5 o'clock to keep their places."

Then, with irrelevant gusto, came "The Republic" (long live the republic) in the lower right-hand corner.

"Buy American" even was popular in 1834.

On a handbill for the American theater, Bowery, New York City, dated August 11, is the statement: "The public is respectfully informed that this establishment will reopen for the season this evening, August 11, when it is the intention of the manager to pursue more diligently than ever the same course he adopted at the commencement of his managerial career four years ago, the encouragement and promotion of native American talent."

The bill then advertises the forthcoming presentation of "Virgilius," a tragedy. The star of the piece was one Herr Cline, a Swia. Immediately after the performance, and for the gratification of one and all, Herr Cline was to present "a study of all the human passions," in an amazing routine of gymnastics. The versatile Cline was then to wind up the merry evening by giving his "famous Swian Wooden Shoe Dance."

The American theater in New York believed in giving its patrons their money's worth. One bill from this establishment presents this bounteous fare: "Four acts of the Merchant of Venice; a solo on the flute by Mr. Cuddy, who will introduce several popular Irish airs; the popular extravaganza of 'Zip Coon,' by Mr. Bob Farrell; after which a new farce written by a gentleman of this city and called the 'Removal of the Deceased' will be presented." The evening was to wind up with the "Forest of Bondy, or the Dog of Montargis."

Through the Civil War, nothing of the sinking of the nation's spirit was reflected in the theater. There was no departure from the policies of the "noisy thirties."

But by 1865 grand opera was edging its way in ever so slightly. On December 2, Meyerbeer's "L'Africaine" saw its second night in America at the New York Academy of Music.

In the Civil War dodgers such notices as "the free list is entirely suspended with the exception of the press" were common.

Anniversary programs of colored satin were the vogue for the 100th performance of a play. One beautiful program of yellow and green brocade told patrons that Lawrence Barrett, as Caius Cassius, had been starred for the hundredth consecutive time in "Julius Caesar" at Booth's theater on December 27, 1875.

HERE ARE THE REAL FACTS ABOUT BRAN

Brought Out by Tests with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Some years ago, there was considerable difference of opinion regarding the use of bran. So to discover the actual facts of the case, the Kellogg Company asked for a series of laboratory tests at leading universities.

Experimental studies on a group of healthy women showed that the continued use of bran was thoroughly satisfactory. Unlike cathartics, it did not lose its effect.

Other independent tests on men indicated that, with certain people, the "bulk" in bran was more effective than that found in fruits and vegetables.

Laboratory analysis proved that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplied vitamin B and iron as well as plenty of bulk. This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle in action. It absorbs a great deal of moisture, and cleanses the intestinal tract.

ALL-BRAN corrects constipation due to insufficient "bulk." It is the natural way—far better than using pills and tablets. Serve as a cereal—or use in cooking. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.
