

HEDGPETH HOME IS RAIDED AGAIN BY PARK BEARS

This said that lightning does not strike twice in the same place but then Crater Lake national park bears aren't lightning. Though they are just as fast and sometimes as damaging.

At any rate the park bears struck twice in rapid succession last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hedgpeth and a merry time they had, too.

Thursday evening while Mr. and Mrs. Hedgpeth were sitting a big bear broke through a window of their home and tossed all the contents around in wild confusion.

The broken window was barred up securely with boards and all food was removed from the house but apparently the aroma of things good to eat lingered on for the next night, while the Hedgpeths were having dinner at the government mess hall, three bears went to their home, ripped off the boards from the broken window and clambered inside.

The bears found no food but they left nothing returned in their search. Once more the house was combed from end to end and once again the Hedgpeths, upon their return, found everything topsy-turvy and upside-down.

Mr. Hedgpeth, mechanic in the park service, is thinking of barricading his home with barbed wire entanglements, it was related today by J. Carlisle Crouch, chief ranger who visited at the park Sunday.

SLAYER OF STEER WAITS GRAND JURY

Edward W. Lassell, a woodcutter of the Bishop creek district in the Applegate, entered a plea of guilty yesterday in justice court to killing a steer and was ordered held to the grand jury. Lassell claimed he slew the steer to obtain food.

Claude C. Holmes, an oil truck driver, charged with non-possession of a PUC license, showed that he had filed for the license but it had not been received, and was freed.

Arthur P. Powell (not the Central Point editor), was fined $10 and costs for non-possession of a PUC license.

For driving an auto without a tail light, Arlie O. Walker, an orchard worker, was assessed $1 and costs.

A SAPPHIRE JEWEL IN DAZZLING WHITE

Only those who have seen Crater Lake in its winter setting can conceive the beauty of this wonder work of nature over a mile high in the Cascade mountains of Southern Oregon. The Oregon State Highway Commission has kept both the highways from Medford and from Fort Klamath open to the park boundary throughout the winter. The National Park Service has kept the balance of the route open to Government camp just below the rim and will shortly have it cleared to the top. The upper photograph shows the lake in its robes of white. The lower view gives some conception of the beauty of the highway carved out through snow ranging from a foot deep in the lower levels to more than 14 feet in the higher elevations. From the point where one must leave his car, it requires slightly over half an hour to climb to the rim. Snow shoes or skis are desirable for the climb, according to the Travel and Information Department of the Highway Commission.

UTILITY DISTRICT COST PROHIBITIVE

SALEM, April 14.—(AP)—The state hydroelectric commission today reported it "not likely" that the proposed Marion county people's utility district for distribution of electrical energy from Bonnaville, "under present day circumstances would consider the construction of the system upon which the estimate of cost, ($2,023,000) is based."

The report was made after a study of data and information taken at a recent Mt. Angel hearing, and was similar to the recommendations made of the proposed Linn county district, which it had termed "extremely hazardous." Secretary Charles E. Stricklin said.

SIREN TO CLEAR FIELD INSTALLED AT AIRPORT HERE

A siren to warn of the arrival and departure of planes was in use today at municipal airport. It was installed yesterday by Frank Rogers, city building inspector, and tested during the day.

The siren, now standard safety equipment at all modern airports, is intended as a means of averting ground accidents by warning of the approach or take off of all ships. When the siren sounds the field is supposed to be cleared.

Testing of the siren yesterday aroused considerable curiosity in the rural section surrounding the airport. Tom Culbertson, field manager, was kept busy answering telephone calls from neighboring residents who wanted to know why the airport had installed a fire siren and whether its blast meant that was a big fire somewhere. It can be heard for about two miles.

Five ships called at the airport yesterday for refueling. They were a Stearman open-cockpit plane owned by J. B. Quinn and piloted by G. W. Tyson, en route from Oakland to Seattle; two navy attack ships piloted by Capt. L. B. Sheedman and Lieut. G. A. T. Washburn, en route from Oakland to Seattle; an army bomber flown by Private J. D. Kreysler, en route from Hamilton field, Cal., to Portland; and a private Beechcraft owned by O. F. Dwyer and piloted by W. H. Turner, en route from San Francisco to Portland.

SPRING CONCERT OF GLEEMEN IN WEEK OF MAY 3

The spring concert of the Medford Gleemen has been set for the week of May 3, which is national music week. Tentative dates under consideration are May 5 or 8. Definite announcement of which date is determined upon will be made later. For several months past the Gleemen have been rehearsing for this event and those familiar with the organization know that Director James Stevens has a treat in store for the patrons when he announces he is ready to "shoot the works."

Assisting the Gleemen will be the Teachers' chorus, another wonderfully trained group of singers recruited from the ranks of Jackson county's teachers, appearing under the very capable direction of Esther Church Leake. In several appearances before Medford audiences, this chorus of women's voices has won high praise for the artistry of its presentations.

Another added attraction will introduce to Medford a juvenile orchestra under leadership of Jeuneuse Butler. Thus again the Gleemen, sponsored by the Kiwanis club, will offer as their contribution in the observance of Music week the outstanding musical treat of the season.

To Set Blossom Tour. SALEM, April 14.—(AP)—Salem's blossom day, annual visit to cherry and prune orchards in this vicinity under direction of the Salem Chamber of Commerce, may be next Sunday. A committee will meet tomorrow night to determine a definite date.
