The woman repents her unkindness to the missionary solicitor and vows ever after to be sympathetic to the call of a world-wide need. The public is invited.

The massive dahlias which you see at exhibitions are not beyond the amateur's grasp. This flower has been developed so intensively in recent years that anyone can grow them from seed or tubers. They make excellent background plants, and growing exhibition flowers is a fascinating hobby.

PIONEER VALLEY TEACHER CALLED

Friends and relatives in Medford and Ashland were deeply grieved to learn of the death on April 16, of William W. Willits, long-time resident of Rogue river valley.
He was born in Cedar county, Iowa, Oct. 21, 1858, the fifth and youngest son of Amos and Sarah Thornton Willits. The family came west to Ashland, Oregon in 1874. Here he attended school and with his brothers and youngest sister, took active part in the school and social life of that day.
For several years he taught school in Jackson county but later turned to office work and accounting, living for a time in Portland, Oregon. In 1884 he returned to southern Oregon where he had lived, until about a year ago, on his stock ranch at Persist, near the headwater of Elk creek, in the northern part of Jackson county.
In 1883 he was married to Irene Wrisley, a native daughter of Jackson county whose father John B. Wrisley came to Rogue river valley with his family, by ox-team, in 1853. Mr. and Mrs. Willits lived for fifty years in their ranch home where the postoffice of Persist was established with Mr. Willits as postmaster. Here they reared their family of three sons and one daughter, and here in later years their grandchildren dearly loved to spend vacations and as much other time as possible.
About a year ago, ill health forced them to leave the ranch and during the past twelve months they have made their home with their youngest son, Merle M. Willits of Santa Maria, California, from whom the word came on Friday of the passing of his father.
Surviving Mr. Willits are his wife, Irene W., a daughter, Mrs. Inez McDonough, and one son Merle M. Two sons Amos R. and Roy Thornton Willits passed away several years ago. Besides these there are three granddaughters, Dorothy Willits, Irene and Lillian McDonough, and one grandson Billy Willits, many relatives and a host of friends and long-time neighbors, who join with the family in grieving over the loss of a kind and loving husband and father, and a true friend and neighbor.
Funeral services will be held at Conger's chapel Monday forenoon at 10 o'clock. Interment at Mountain View in Ashland.
