

GAG ON LONDON SET BY HEARST CHARGES ICKES

from hearing Governor Landon make 10 speeches? In his address Ickes read a memorandum he said was presented in a court case as being from Hearst to Harding, which read: "I was very much impressed by what you had to say about Governor Landon not making too many speeches. If you will write me to that effect, expressing your views as frankly as you did when you were talking, I will, with your permission, send the letter to Governor Landon. I cooperate with and supports what I have already told the governor, and I feel that such views coming from such an important man as yourself would have a great and valuable influence."

Conversation Unrecalled. Harding declared at Chicago that he did not recall the conversation with Hearst, but said: "However, I do not care to dignify the charges with an answer. It seems that this is the only way they can attack Governor Landon."

Hearst's name also was mentioned last night by Senator McAdoo, California Democrat, in an address to a dinner which launched Mr. Roosevelt's campaign in the coast state. McAdoo described the publisher as "the fascist." Senator William G. McAdoo declared the Republican party "is today nothing more than a racketeering gang," and added that the "New Deal" opposition was led "by millionaires privilege seekers and tax evaders, with a following of inflammatory demagogues and Democratic renegades in the pay of the American Liberty league."

"Hearst over Topeka." Secretary Ickes, taking "Hearst Over Topeka" as the theme of his address, declared that Landon has evaded issues during his eastern trip "except for his promise last night at Buffalo, if elected, to reduce taxes on corporation surpluses."

The cabinet member declared that Hearst's antagonism to the New Deal was attributable to the curtailment of "certain special privileges." Ickes said the court memorandum to which he referred was included in depositions between Harding and Adlai Clark Harding. It evidently had no bearing on the case and was used in explanation of Harding's absence from an earlier hearing.

"While there is no written evidence to prove that Mr. Hearst also has told Governor Landon that he should say as little as possible and then only in unctuous innuendoes on those occasions when he could not avoid making speeches, who can doubt that he has done so?" said Ickes. "How otherwise explain the Republican candidate's 'electioneering' efforts? Has any aspirant for the high office of chief executive ever said so little that is worth listening to? Concluding, he asserted: "Hearst over Topeka. Do the American people want to see Hearst over the White House? This is one of the most important issues, if not in fact the transcendent issue, of the campaign."

tainly appear to be non-political by comparison with his next one. It has not yet been decided officially, but the last week in September he will start a swift swing around the western circle. He will go thru the northwest, touch every Pacific coast state and return to concentrate in the middle west and east during the last two weeks of the campaign. His final campaign speeches will be in upper New York state, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Illinois.

Most of his advisers now agree the swing-trip is advisable, but he probably would go anyway. You may have noticed the scene at the president's first pause on his non-political drought trip. It was at Willard, Ohio, and it was only a pause, because the White House announced the first stop would be Bismarck, N. D. However, engines and train crews must change. The train passed for operating purposes. Mr. Roosevelt did also. He asked the crowd around the back platform how things were out there, and received the snappy response: "All right, since you have been in."

This is the new campaign style which causes admiring chuckles from all in his entourage. He used it first on his flood trip through Pennsylvania and New York a few weeks ago. He made no political talks, did no hand shaking, but at each town he would invariably appear and observe: "Things certainly look a lot different around here since I was last here in 1932," or, if he had not visited the community in 1932, he would ask the crowd how things were. Those accompanying him thought this pointed psychology brought better results than speeches.

STRONG BACK WINS JOB FOR BRYAN UNTIED OF STUDENT RESCUE FAME

TABERNASH, Colo., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Bryan Untied, whose courage in the Tower, Colo., bus tragedy made him a national hero, went to work today because he has "a strong back."

"I'm glad to get any kind of work," he said as he took over a truck driving job on a road construction project.

Bryan is 18 and is six feet tall. He is trying to help his mother and father, who were faced with the problem of supporting themselves and four children on a dry farm in the southeastern Colorado "blow lands."

The youth was invited to the White House by President Herbert Hoover five years ago after the Tower tragedy.

March 17, 1931, a sudden blizzard engulfed a school bus traveling the flat plains near the Untied home close to Tower.

Bryan was one of the 21 school children in the bus. He broke up seats to make a smoldering flame and gave his coat to the other children. Five of those who rode the bus died but 16 lived and Bryan's courage was credited with saving them.

Two weeks ago Bryan came to Denver seeking a job. Walter Lear, secretary to the governor, sent him to the national re-employment service. They called him yesterday and told him to report at Tabernash for a job that pays 55 cents an hour for 48 hours of work a week.

Children's Meals Now Featured On S. P. Dining Cars

There's a big surprise in store for boys and girls the next time they travel on a Southern Pacific train and hear the welcome call to the dining car. For instead of sitting idly at table while their elders order full course meals, from which certain easily assimilated foods will be parceled out to the youngsters, the little folk will be presented with menus all their own, listing specially prepared children's meals. And the prices will be as appealing as the good things to eat!

Announcement of Southern Pacific's dining car innovation was made yesterday by Harry A. Butler, head of the railroad's commissary department, with the appearance of the "children's menu," a work of art in itself. Profusely illustrated, in the manner of Mother Goose books, the menu not only give youngsters a choice of hearty meals for breakfast, luncheon and dinner, but also contain a series of clever nursery rhymes about members of the train crew and items on the menu—spinach, for example. The low-price children's meal service is now in effect on all Southern Pacific dining cars, along with the popular "meals select" for adults, according to the announcement.

Profit taking stemmed the advance for some groups, but favored utilities, alcohol, farm implements and specialties were resistant throughout. The close was firm. Transfers approximated 1,400,000 shares.
