

ENGLAND URGED AS TOKYO ALLY TO KEEP PEACE

Anglo-Japanese Alliance Is Described As Solution to Unrest in Far East Area By Nippon Organization

TOKYO—(UP) An Anglo-Japanese alliance would be the greatest possible influence toward world peace, it is asserted in a pamphlet issued by the Kenkokukai, patriotic organization.

Kaju Ino, commentator on foreign affairs, declares:

"Since it withdrew from the League of Nations, Japan has been internationally isolated. It is, however, with the purpose of strengthening the peace and order of Manchukuo and not to enroach against China that Japan has helped Manchukuo's national construction work.

"Japan's international uneasiness has reached its height. It is engrossed in bringing about friendship with China. Nevertheless, China, far from coming into friendly relation with Japan, has tried to resist by taking advantage of foreign powers. It is true, however, that China is fearing Japan's military power. Britain and the United States have confronted Japan in economic affairs. By taking advantage of this situation, Soviet Russia is ready to make a southward advance at any moment.

"To meet such a delicate situation, Japan has made and will be required to make efforts for strengthening armaments, with the result that it is worried over excessive expenses for armaments. What is worse, it is expected that, in case of emergency, Japan would be isolated from every other country. Even if the Japanese patriotism and armaments were strong enough to meet the worst possible case, we should avoid it if possible. And it should be advisable to reduce the burden of munitions manufacturing and to bring about and strengthen the friendship with other nations. We should say that in present-day Japan the military affairs are leading the diplomacy.

"One of the reasons why Japan has experienced the present uneasiness should be attributed to the abrogation of the Anglo-Japan alliance. It was in 1902 that the alliance was concluded between the two nations. It was because Britain, who was weary after the South Africa war, wished to protect rights in China thru obtaining Japan's support. Through the alliance, however, not only Britain but also Japan enjoyed a considerable advantage; that is to say, it could check Russia's southward advance.

Kissed Hitler

Pact Cancelled
"After the Russo-Japanese war, it has been extended to an offensive and defensive alliance, with a view to securing a peace in both China and India. In 1911, in view of the fact that the United States seemed to collide with Japan in regard to the China question, Britain proposed and succeeded in revising the alliance. When the World War broke out, Japan attacked Germany because it placed high value upon the Anglo-Japan alliance. Despite this fact, dissatisfied with Japan's rising influence in China after the war, Britain abrogated the alliance with Japan with a view to restrain Japan through the influence of the United States.

"If the Anglo-Japanese alliance be restored, the United States would moderate its insistence upon increased warship building, for it is impossible for America to wage war against both Britain and Japan. Not only the naval competition is mitigated with the result that the expenses are decreased, but also a peace would be brought about on both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. Thus, the naval expenses of this country should be greatly decreased, and it would be possible to strengthen the army further. However, the army expenses also should be reduced to a considerable extent.

"Because, through the possible Anglo-Japanese alliance China's and Japan's movement and the Soviet's southward advance possibly are checked. On the part of Britain, less energy might be concentrated toward the Orient, and it would be able to turn main power to Europe, with the result that a peace is brought about there. Considered thus, the Anglo-Japanese alliance safely should be called as the main stay of the world peace."

facist offensive without bringing damage to the city.

Anarchists and communists, whose numbers were estimated at 500, were reported to have adopted a "no surrender—no quarter" stand, favoring setting fire to the city before surrender to the invading attackers.

Facists On March.
Two columns of facist attackers moved toward the Basque resort, which was once held by the rebels after bitter fighting during the first weeks of the uprising against the Madrid government.

The first marched along the coastal roads from the raised city of Iruin, occupied after days of vicious shelling, aerial bombardment and hand-to-hand fighting.

The second angled from the south through the little town of La Sarte, subduing the territory through which it tramped and widening the circle of facist domination along the northern coast.

A small band of determined government defenders still occupied one gun turret on top of Fort Guadalupe from which the majority of socialist field artillery had been moved westward to the San Sebastian line of defense.

At Madrid, government commandos, jubilant over reported victories in Toledo province, asserted officially today that rebel resistance in the southern stronghold of Cordoba had "given away."

Claim Victories.
The new government of Premier Francisco Largo Caballero, called to office last week, laid claim to extensive victories at Talavera de la Reina, 40 miles northwest of Toledo and scene of bitter fighting between rebels and socialists for several days.

The official report lacked further details of the reported situation at Cordoba, seat of extensive rebel operations since the outbreak of the facist rebellion against the Madrid government 82 days ago.

Confidence in the new government, which includes two communist ministers in the cabinet, was asserted to have been bolstered by the socialist successes reported from the field.

Government militiamen, described by major centers as "like a devil incarnate," drove the rebels back 15 miles with frontal and flank attacks from the hills onto the highway held by the facists.

PARK VISITATION NOW OVER 162,000

With over 3,000 visitors passing the entrance of Crater lake national park Sunday, this season's attendance soared over the 162,000 mark, 65 per cent above the total visiting the scenic wonder last year. Park officials stated this morning that the perfect weather prevailing over the week-end and Labor day should see 3,000 visitors pass the checking stations.

With three weeks yet to go the season's attendance is expected to far surpass all previous records.

BEST WORKERS MANUAL IS GOD'S GOSPEL SAYS PRESBYTERIAN PASTOR

Choosing for the theme of his Labor Sunday sermon "All Ye That Toil," Rev. Sherman L. Divine, D.D., in the pulpit of First Presbyterian church yesterday morning said:

"Jesus stands today in the midst of the working multitude of earth, his soul stirred with that same compassion as of old, thinking their problems, yearning to hear and relieve their burdens."

"He is the labor peer of the ages. He is no self-seeking idealist, no scheming divisionist, no red destructionist but the God man who knows, who unites, who builds for peace and prosperity."

"Reared in the atmosphere of privation where the home never knew more than barely enough for daily needs; toiling early and late in a carpenter shop where there were no union hours, where tools were crude and aids to the worker few, practical experience taught him to know the life and the load of the men of toil. His hands were scarred and calloused long before they were pierced on the cross."

"His teachings are clothed in words and terms of industry. His most beautiful symbolisms and parables are born out of the peasant life he lived for thirty years. The best worker's manual ever written is the Gospel of the Man of Toil."

"Out of his own soul's struggle and triumph He brings to the men of toil a spiritual gift to lighten the load. He is ever lifting the eyes from the grim and grind to visions of life's larger meanings and richer joys. 'I am come that they might have life more abundant' is the slogan of His unending campaign."

YOU TAKE THE HIGHROAD - I'LL TAKE THE RAILROAD!

Thousands of people (canny youngsters from 1 to 91) are joining Sandys as he pipes his merry ballad of the safe, smooth way. They "take the railroad" because it offers more comforts than ever—thanks to the satisfying luxury of our air-conditioned trains. They've found rail fares at 2¢ A MILE AND LESS mighty low cost transportation. With reduced Pullman charges, tray food service for 5¢ and 10¢, low priced dining car meals and other new train economies—'tis no wonder Sandys' song is so popular—a "hit tune" of the travel parade.

Los Angeles . . . $16.15 $28.70

meeting which chanted "airplanes to Spain."

The premier told the metal workers through Leon Jouhaux, president of the general confederation of labor, that by their strike they might imperil France's domestic defenses.

"The strike cannot make me change my mind on the conduct I believe is imposed on the government by the present circumstances," the premier said.

Jacques Doriot, former communist who split with the party after a trip to Moscow, he described as "disturbing" urged the workers not to strike.

France, meanwhile, concluded a subsidiary agreement with Poland, if formal sources said, to bolster the 1923 military mutual assistance pact between the two countries.

AUSTRIAN LAWS ON STAMP USE TRIP TOURISTS

VIENNA—(UP)—Travelers to Austria must beware lest they fall into the snares of ancient, but not venerable laws.

While touring the picturesque country the traveler naturally will want to send picture cards home from one of the lakes or mountain peaks. He may make a mistake in the address and detach the unused stamp to use it for another card.

Beware!
By so doing the law is broken and the person is subject to a severe fine.

Under a law of 1835, which has survived two revolutions, the breaking down of one of Europe's most ancient monarchies, and is still in force, "the transferring of a post stamp from one paper to another is forbidden" and punished by a fine of 15 times the "defrauded" amount. The minimum fine is five schillings, or about a dollar.

Should the "corpus delicti" be an airmail letter to Africa, South America, the United States or to the Far East, the fine easily might be $100 or more.

What the traveler has to do, is to present the stamp at a post office where it will be exchanged for a new one against pay of two groschens, or 0.4 cent.

The law is naturally quite superannuated as it was passed at a time when modern methods of invalidating stamps were unknown. Its implication that the government glue is an integral part of the stamp is, of course, untenable.

But, reasonable or unreasonable, law remains law until it is formally abolished. The Austrian government
