

NEW CROP TURKS BRING TOP PRICE

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 8.—(AP)—Firm prices are prevailing on the Portland market for new crop turkeys.

One leading wholesaler put out a selling price of 24-25 cents a pound compared with 20-23 cents for old crop hens. Old crop toms are quoted 18-19 cents dressed for good birds.

Prevailing values on broiler birds are considered excellent, with demand constantly increasing. Most producers prefer to await greater weights with maturity but the increasing demand for young birds is fast becoming a factor in the industry.

Weights of new crop turkeys are as high as 18 pounds, a heavy bird for any period of the season. The birds are showing exceptionally early maturity.

JEAN GOES BACK TO BROWN HAIR

Though she believes a "screen trade-mark," such as her own platinum blonde hair, may help a player at the start of her career, Jean Harlow believes in the long run it is a handicap. Hence she has let her locks grow back to their normal brown. The pictures show the before-and-after contrast. (Associated Press Photos)

ered about three acres of grass and brush behind the Opp mine in the Jacksonville area. It required five men eight hours to suppress the blaze. The fire was caused by a cigarette, the warden's office said.

Two and a half acres of grass and brush were burned north of Table Rock when a stubble fire got out of hand. A crew of seven men put the fire out in two hours.

The warden's office today issued a stern warning against carelessness with matches, cigarettes and rubbish fires. It was emphasized that September is invariably the worst month of the year for forest fires and that therefore strict vigilance is necessary.
