BELCASTRO FACES CHICK MONDAY IN ARMORY GRAPPLE

Pete Belcastro, Pacific coast junior heavyweight champion, will return to Medford Monday to meet Dude Chick, phenomenal airplane spinning cowpuncher, in the main event wrestling match at the Armory, and Prince Iki Mihalakis will have a chance to measure Lee Wolfe for a suit of camel locks and dragon scissors, in what Mack Lillard describes as the strongest lineup he has ever had in ten years of promoting.

Belcastro, one of the fastest, most versatile and crafty wrestlers in the game will unleash his dropkicks, Mexican death-locks and other torture holds in an effort to stop the long winning streak of the range rider. He, with a reputation here nearly as deadly as Chick's own, is given a better chance of turning the seemingly impossible stunt than anyone the cowpoke has met in the last several months.

Chick is not complacent about the match. He wrestled the Weed Avalanche on a previous encounter in Klamath Falls, and won, but only after nearly an hour of battling in which Belcastro swarmed over him like a hive of bees. On several occasions in that match it looked as though Chick had been stung, and he has already launched a serious training grind for the match. The Italian has been wrestling almost nightly since he left here several months ago (on one card defeating two men in one night at Marysville, each man outweighing him) and he has his heart set on dumping Chick, he wired Lillard.

Attendance records are likely to be shattered to bits, with the outstanding main attracion being forced to give much ground to the middle event grudge battle between Lee Wolfe and the Arabian flash, Mihalakis. Hundreds of fans, their affection for Wolfe changed to disgust, are anxious to see the desert rider give the Texan a beating.

Wolfe declared after last Monday's match that the blow to the chin with which he dropped his opponent had been delivered with his elbow and not his first as charged by Mihalakis and fans alike, and added that he would defeat the Arab any time they met. Fans don't think so, according to a general check-up since the match, and interest in the battle has flamed to almost unbelievable heights.

The curtain raiser to the battling is on a plane with the other struggles, Lillard stated, in announcing a new man to appear against Pat O'Brien, veteran Irish grappler. The newcomer is Genie Moore of Missouri, known as the Max Baer of the wrestling game; not because he clowns, but because he resembles the Livermore Lover in general architectural outline and facial characteristics. He is said to be a powerful and brilliant wrestler.

The first two matches will be under Australian rules, with the main go under the American code.

WORSE DUST STORMS DUE IN MIDDLE WEST ACCOUNT BARE SOIL

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 18.—(AP)—D. L. Gross, extension agronomist at the Nebraska Agricultural college, asserted today that conditions brought about by protracted drought in the middle west held a threat of dust storms in 1937 "infinitely worse than those of the spring of 1935."

From observations in his own state Gross said he was convinced that "should the spring of 1937 be a dry one, the stage already is set for dust storms the like of which Nebraska has never witnessed.

"Millions of acres in Nebraska are now bare of vegetation," he said. "Soil on these acres is in a powdery, blowable condition and with the freezing and thawing of winter will become more so."

The agronomist said more than half of Nebraska's 10,000,000 corn acres were unprotected by cover crops or weeds and that an additional two or three million acres of land which never was summer fallowed before was in danger of blowing.

He urged the seeding of small grains such as oats and barley and fall rye or pasture crops to cover the soil and hold it from the blowing winds of the winter and spring.

ANGELS LOOKING FOR LELIVELT SUCCESSOR

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The Los Angeles baseball club shopped around today for a new manager to replace Jack Lelivelt.

President David P. Fleming may not have to shop far, since Harry (Truck) Hannah, who has been Lelivelt's right-hand man and coach for many seasons, has been mentioned for the job.

Lelivelt, carrying out a wish he announced last winter, announced his resignation last night and said he was seeking a position as scout for a major league club.

THREE PROPOSITIONS WILL BE PLACED ON BALLOT IN ASHLAND

Ashland city council at a special meeting last night adopted resolutions placing the following two propositions on the November election ballot.

1—Shall the park board be abolished and its duties transferred to the city council?

2—Shall the members of the common council be allowed to sell goods or services to the city during their terms of office?

There will therefore be three proposals on the ballot as the council approved one at its regular meeting Tuesday. The third proposition to be decided by the city's voters is: "Shall the city's liability in cases of accidents caused by the disrepair of streets, sidewalks, etc., be reduced to a maximum of $50, provided the city has been notified of such a condition and has had ample time to make repairs?"

A petition against placing the park board proposition on the ballot was presented to the council last night. It contained 253 names. Louis Dodge, chairman of the park board, and Hal McNair, former member, spoke in favor of continuing the board, but the council decided the public should record its attitude.

New business taken last week by the 202 mills was 103,003,404 feet, and shipments were 99,806,705 feet. The unfilled order file at the mills stood at 428,369,962 feet, an increase of about a million feet over the previous week.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 18.—(AP) New business for 115 mills for the week ending September 12, which included Labor day, totaled 67,406,000 feet or a decrease of 8 per cent from the previous week, the Western Pine association reported today.

Shipments were 64,572,000 feet and production 77,333,000. The same mills for the corresponding week a year ago showed orders of 69,249,000 feet and production of 82,431,000.
