

WATER NEEDS OF VALLEY TOLD AT CONTROL HEARING

Economic Picture Presented At Rogue River Flood Control Session Saturday

A comprehensive economic picture was presented at the public hearing held yesterday morning in the Jackson county courthouse auditorium on Rogue river flood control.

About 40 persons attended the hearing, with representatives present from Jackson, Josephine and Curry counties. The hearing was conducted by Lieut. Col. Milo P. Fox, United States army engineer in charge of the Portland district. County Judge Earl B. Day was chairman. Congressman James W. Mott was present and participated in the discussion. He is author of the congressional bill authorizing the holding of hearings on flood control.

Col. Fox called the meeting to order after reading pertinent sections of the governing congressional bill asked Judge Day to present the speakers.

Judge Day stated that whenever floods are controlled the impounded waters are usually utilized. He emphasized that southern Oregon was interested in the use of the water.

Mr. Mott told the meeting that he had determined the control of floods to be a national policy. He said that in the past two sessions of congress he had received letters from 20 or more Rogue valley farmers who complained of flood damage.

"I realize," Mr. Mott said, "that Rogue river land is the richest in the state and I have come to this meeting to procure first hand knowledge of floods on the Rogue river and its tributaries."

Wilford Allen, leading civic worker of Josephine county and former manager of the Grants Pass irrigation district, gave a general picture of the resources and requirements of the Rogue valley. He said that in any survey the valley would have to be considered as a unit.

Mr. Allen stressed that while the Rogue valley is primarily agricultural, it is one of the outstanding mining districts on the coast and one of the few sections of the United States where there are still large stands of valuable timber. Despite all this, however, the valley's greatest asset is its recreational facilities, he declared.

"Reclamation of lands must come into any picture of flood control," Mr. Allen continued. "Without irrigation water the valley would not be worth anything agriculturally. We have gone now as far as we can with the present system of irrigation."

Mr. Allen told how irrigation not only increased production in Josephine county but had converted hitherto arid land into productive areas.

"Through irrigation," he said, "hundreds of families have been enabled to make a living in Josephine county and more people are coming in all the time, especially now from the coast."

the middle-west where drought has driven them out."

Mr. Allen said he hoped a survey would be made that would solve the problem for the farmer, the miner and the recreation planner.

Reginald Parsons, member of the directorate of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States who has several commercial interests here and who resides here part of the time, asked Col. Fox to include the human element in any survey that might be made of flood control in the Rogue valley.

"The population here is small compared to the potential population that could be supported by the area if it were developed and the water controlled," Mr. Parsons said. He added that while the valley has many valuable features, its climate was outstanding as it permitted relaxation without a decrease in energy.

"We could increase the population tremendously if we could get people here from the dust bowl wire conditions now are deplorable," Mr. Parsons stated. "The first survey of the valley should be so general and sympathetic that no unnecessary delay in utilizing flood waters would be encountered."

Karl L. Janouch, supervisor of the Rogue river national forest, asserted that much barren land could be made productive if the waters now wasted could be stored until needed. He said there is much soil and sheet erosion because there is no control of flood waters.

Mr. Janouch told of the rate of flow of the Rogue river at Gold Ray dam, saying that in January, February and March the flow is five times the basic flow. He expressed the belief that dams should be built to avert floods and conserve water, saying that there were several logical dam-sites, one being above Gold Ray dam.

Clinton Smith, Jackson county watermaster, presented data showing the peak flows of the Rogue and its tributaries. Olen Arnsperger, manager of the Medford and Talent irrigation districts, said he could visualize a number of dams, one being at Casey's camp where a huge amount of irrigation water could be stored. He said that with additional water 30,000 acres could easily be developed in Sams and Evans valleys.

"With our present irrigation systems, we have about reached our peak development," Mr. Arnsperger concluded.

Others who presented testimony included J. L. Dougal, member of the Josephine county planning commission. L. W. Wiperman, a farmer who told of damage done to seven farms by Rogue river floods in the past ten years. V. B. Stanberry, executive secretary of the state planning board who said the Rogue valley's primary problem was water conservation and utilization, and W. A. Carterright, representative of Curry county.

When it became apparent that all the speakers were stressing water conservation rather than flood control, Col. Fox pointed out that under the congressional act it would be necessary to show actual and direct damage resulting from floods, emphasizing that the act did not embrace collateral problems like irrigation. He added, however, that if flood control is found justified, any construction plan would undoubtedly include the utilization of impounded waters.

Judge Day then inquired if it would not be advisable to proceed no further with the investigation under the present bill so as to avert an unfavorable report on the need of flood control in the Rogue valley. He asked if it would not be wiser to mark time for the present and wait until congress had provided for a comprehensive study that would include water conservation. He said he was somewhat disturbed lest an unfavorable report on flood control delay water development plans for ten years or a generation.

Col. Fox then asserted that the act authorizing the flood control hearings is new and no one can tell how it will be interpreted. He said he thought it advisable to proceed with the hearings.

"This is primarily a flood control bill but I do not see how these hearings and reports thereon could hinder any other legislation designed to develop water resources," Mr. Mott stated.

TAYLOR ASSUMES ALLEN INTEREST AUTO FIRM HERE

New Owner Leaves For District Meeting in Seattle—1937 Models Displayed Soon.

L. C. Taylor, veteran automobile man, assumed active management of Pierce-Allen Motor Co., Dodge Bros. and Plymouth headquarters, 112 South Riverside, Saturday, September 18. He has purchased W. W. Allen's interest in this well-known automobile firm which was incorporated exclusively eleven years ago, September 18, 1925.

The new owner and active manager of Pierce-Allen Motor Co. is widely acquainted throughout southern Oregon through his association with local car agencies. In 1931 he located in Medford and was associated with the used car department of the Gates Auto company until 1933, when he accepted a position with Pierce-Allen Co. as sales manager in the used car division. An interest in the business was secured by Mr. Taylor in 1935, and since that time he and Mr. Allen have operated the establishment jointly.

Twenty-one years experience in car selling has familiarized Mr. Taylor with all angles of the automotive industry. His first connection with motor companies was in 1915 at Modesto, Calif. Following that he spent seven years in Fallon, Nev. where he handled the Ford agency.

Continuing under the same policies carried out by W. W. Allen during the past eleven years, the new owner will maintain the name of Pierce-Allen Motor Co. A number of improvements in the show rooms and garage are contemplated by Mr. Taylor. The staff will be retained with the addition of new members.

To meet with Dodge and Plymouth dealers from all sections of the northwest, Mr. Taylor left today for Seattle, where 1937 models will be displayed and plans formulated for the fall and winter selling campaign. Dates for the Medford showing of the new Dodge and Plymouth cars will be announced by Mr. Taylor upon his return to this city.

BLIGHT CUTTING PROGRAM READY TEST WEDNESDAY

Arrangements have been completed with the Upton Brothers to hold a pear blight cutting demonstration at their orchard, 2 1/2 miles northeast of Central Point, announces C. B. Cordy, assistant county agent. This meeting will be held Wednesday, September 23, at 1:30 p. m.

Several old time orchardists in the valley have said that pear blight has been worse this year than any other year they can recall. This is true only of the northern part of the county.

Some orchards are so badly blighted that entire blocks will be pulled, the operators figuring that it would not be profitable to attempt to clean them up. Other orchards can be saved only by cutting the trees so severely that the crop will be greatly reduced for three or four years.

While this extreme condition is not general throughout the valley, it does serve to show how serious a menace this disease is to the pear industry.

Howard Warner, county horticulturist, will be on hand to give a practical demonstration of proper methods in blight cutting. Common errors in blight cutting will be pointed out so they may be avoided in future dealings with the disease.

Professor F. C. Reimer of the Southern Oregon Experiment Station will give a short discussion on blight resistant stock for pear trees.

Fined For Slashing Fire

Adolph Olson of Trail pleaded guilty in justice of the peace court yesterday to a charge of setting slash fires without a permit. He was fined $25 and costs by Judge W. R. Coleman. He was cited to appear in justice court by the Rogue river national forest service which rigidly enforces laws designed to avert forest fires.

MEN'S FURNISHING STORE WILL OPEN, FLUHRER CORNER

An entirely modern men's clothing store, featuring young men's and business men's styles, will open in this city at 305 East Main street on or about October 15 under the name of Reinhart and Barker, Inc. It was announced yesterday.

Frank Reinhart, for 19 years associated with the smart DeNefe's, Inc. in Eugene, and William Barker, also of Eugene, will be co-proprietors. The store, located in the building at the corner of Main and South Central streets recently purchased by Wm. H. Fluhrer, will be completely remodeled with a new front, modern new fixtures now being made by Irowbridge Cabinet works, and with the office housed in a balcony in the rear of the 25 by 60 feet space.

The space was formerly occupied by the Economy Meat company, which prepared yesterday to move out of the quarters into the Piggly Wiggly store one door south, where it will be operated by Roy Guyer.

The new store will handle a complete line of men's furnishings and clothing, featuring high grade, nationally advertised standard brands. No shoes will be stocked to start with, it was announced.

Announcement of the signing of the lease was made by Fluhrer. The two buildings he recently purchased at the site will be completely remodeled into seven ground stores, with tenants already announced for three of them, including besides the jewelry store and the Piggly Wiggly, the outside of the buildings as well as the inside will be remodeled.

Mr. Barker was married Thursday in Eugene to Miss Sue Hurley, popular daughter of Dr. and Mrs. I. G. Hurley. Dr. Hurley is a prominent Eugene physician and surgeon. The Barkers will make their home here at 1214 West Main street.

Mr. Reinhart is brother of Bill Reinhart, former baseball and basketball coach at the University of Oregon. Mr. and Mrs. Reinhart and their three children have moved to Medford and are making their home at 302 Vancouver avenue.

14 GRADUATE IN CCC DRIVE CLASS

Fourteen graduates of the Medford CCC district army truck drivers school were reminded at exercises held in the detachment library yesterday that they will frequently be in a position where the safety of lives and government property will depend upon their carefulness.

By Don Mace

Fourteen graduates of the Medford CCC district army truck drivers school were reminded at exercises held in the detachment library yesterday that they will frequently be in a position where the safety of lives and government property will depend upon their carefulness. Capt. W. G. Ryan, who gave out the diplomas, also told the graduates that a good record as a truckdriver in the CCC is often sufficient recommendation to secure employment in outside industry.

The current drive for safety in Medford district is reflected in the strictness of the requirements made for graduates. Only 14 of the 19 students qualified. Honor students were Harold H. McLean, Edward Drzewski and Clarence Messier. In the order mentioned.

Capt. Lee Bown, who heads the state police in this district, cooperated with the school faculty. He lectured on the state laws and the relationship of the vehicle operator to the state police. Other members of the faculty were Capt. Glenn J. Key, motor transport officer, Joe Manua, chief mechanic, Charles Jerabek and Stanley Ramer.

In addition to what the state requires of truck drivers, the students had to learn Medford regulations and the care and maintenance of trucks. One week is devoted to lectures on theory, and another week to actual driving tests conducted at the fairgrounds and on the public highway. Captain Key has been promised road signs which he will eventually set up in the fairgrounds to simulate actual road conditions for the purpose of giving tests. The signs will come from the state highway department as a loan.

The district will conduct a school a month, drawing students from the 21 district camps until a reserve of truck drivers is built up. Yesterday's exercises marked the end of the second school. The August school graduated nine men.
