Wrestling Prince Talks At Kiwanis

Princess Mikhalak, versatile Arabian wrestler, high diver, musician, writer, sculptor and wood carver was guest speaker at the Kiwanis noon luncheon meeting at the Hotel Medford today. He discussed Arabian customs, his many incidents that have occurred in a life of travel and adventure and held his audience for 45 minutes, getting a good response when he finished.

He told the Kiwanians, among other things, of having been stranded in Singapore, broke, and of having to wire his family for money to get away from the "crowds" of the world. He mentioned the 187-foot turning high dive he made from a bridge in Toledo, Ohio. He told of his organ playing, and stated that he expects to improve greatly on that instrument under the direction of Sebastian Apollo, Medford Kiwanian and organist.

Moving pictures of the high dive, the only turning dive ever made from that height, will be run tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at the Rialto theater, free to all those interested. The Kiwanians were told.

LOYAL SOLDIERS RETREAT BEFORE MOORISH CHARGE

central Spain, ordered hasty encroachments dug for a pitched battle and a radio appeal summoned all government reserves to their barracks to await orders.

Capture of Maqueda would place the insurgents in a strategic position for assaults on both Madrid and Toledo. It is a junction of two main highways, one leading northeast to Madrid, the other southeast to Toledo.

Despite the explosion of two one-ton dynamite mines which crumpled the stone and mortar walls of the Alcazar into a powdery debris, the insurgents sent a steady stream of machine gun bullets and grenades from behind their shattered walls.

Government commanders, alarmed at the increasing death toll in their own ranks, ordered a "no quarter" infantry charge.

Plays With Bad Thumb

ened at the airport, shook his pilot's hand and was sped to a Geneva hotel under heavy police guard.

There were reports that Maxim Litvinoff of Russia and J. Limburg of The Netherlands were holding out for Ethiopia on the credentials committee, but it was believed they would refrain from making a minority report against the expected decision to deny Ethiopia a seat.

The report was not expected before tomorrow.

Italy Unrepresented
Meeting late today after a recess, the assembly accepted the preliminary credentials report. Italy, which has refused to participate in the assembly sessions if Ethiopia is seated, was one of six nations unrepresented today.

The opening session of the 17th assembly heard from Manuel Rivas Vicuna of Chile, a fervent appeal to "avoid war at any cost."

Rivas Vicuna, presiding at the meeting which was attended by the full Ethiopian delegation, urged the peoples of the world to "raise their minds and hearts above matter, and above force."

He characterized this year as "crucial beyond all others to the destinies of mankind." "We must listen to the voice of the working people, whose will is for peace," the Chilean said. "We must hear the cry of women who are united in condemning war and clamoring for mutual love between people."

"We must listen to the voice of heaven which beseeches for peace on earth, good will toward men."

William Powell In Craterian Picture Delights Audience
Write down all the words that mean funny, capricious, deliciously daffy and exuberantly loony. Add them all together and you have a description of "My Man Godfrey," which opened yesterday at the Craterian theatre. William Powell and Carole Lombard, in starring roles together for the first time in three years, rise to new heights as experts of light comedy and the rapid fire retort.

Carole Lombard, as the reckless debutante, engages in a high society game called Scavenger Hunting. She comes back with the "forgotten man" in the person of William Powell. She falls for his overpowering masculine charm and employs him as a butler.

Supporting the two stars is a cast of exceptional quality. Alice Brady is the dizzy mother, and who could choose a better one? Eugene Pallette

In "Girls' Dormitory" she plays the part of one many students at an exclusive girls' school, where everything is taught to equip the students to make their way in the world except the most important things—life and love. And this neglect brings matters to a head on the eve of Simone's graduation. Living in a world of dreams—childish a secret love for the head of the school—Herbert Marshall—she writes a love letter in which she puts on paper all the things she would like to come true. When the letter is found and she is accused of having had a rendezvous with a young man, her pride refuses to permit her telling the truth, until Ruth Chatterton, one of the teachers, succeeds in learning the reason behind the letter.

When Marshall learns the truth, he also discovers his own love for the girl, she flees from him and in a rapid succession of events the climax of the story is brought to a forlorn close.

The other picture on the program Robert Young, one of the screen's romantic favorites, in a new type of role—that of villain. Also in the cast of "Secret Agent" are Madeleine Carroll, and Peter Lorre, the latter a cheerful outburst who delights in nothing so much as murdering enemy spies. The adventures and thrills of war time intrigue make the film an exciting screen entertainment.

TEACHERS URGED FOR FILM ROLES

NEW YORK (UP)—Motion picture draft men and women from virtually all walks of life. There are lawyers, engineers and bankers who are actors and directors today. Seamstresses, carpenters, athletes, college boys and models are enjoying success, too, but the picture business didn't know one of its new stars was a school teacher until Madeleine Carroll identified herself as a teacher of algebra in an English girls' school before she entered the show business.

Appraised of the fact that her teacher's background makes her somewhat of a rarity in biographical annals of filmdom, Miss Carroll expressed amazement.

Teaching, according to Madeleine, is an ideal training for an actress, since every teacher, before she can hope to be successful, must have control of her emotions. This quality is a prime requisite for an interpreter of roles before a camera. Miss Carroll said.

She cannot understand why film talent scouts have overlooked the classroom in their search for new material.

"We realize that there are difficulties; but insurance companies are writing policies today covering risks that they didn't consider feasible a few years ago. I believe that the question of crop insurance should be given the fullest attention."

NORMAL ENROLLMENT BEGINS TODAY WITH INCREASE EXPECTED

With a 10 to 15 per cent increase in enrollment expected, formal registration at the Southern Oregon Normal school in Ashland began this morning. Over 100 students had taken advantage of early registration facilities at the end of last week. Regular classes will not get under way until Thursday, according to President Walter Redford, the intervening time being taken up with registration and placement and entrance examinations.

Appointed this week to fill vacancies in the faculty were Homer Freeman, University of Iowa, who will take the place of Dr. V. D. Bain as instructor of psychology, and Dr. Winifred Bradway, University of Oregon, who has been named to fill Mrs. Bertha Smith's position as health instructor. Nan K. Wiley, University of Oregon, who had been appointed to fill the position of Miss Lucille Burris as art instructor for the year, has accepted a permanent post elsewhere, leaving another faculty position open. Dr. Redford stated.

An allotment of $570 a month for fall quarter has been received from the National Youth Administration, which will give financial aid to between 50 and 60 needy students, the president announced. Similar sums are expected for winter and spring terms.
