TWO MORE BODIES FOUND IN BANDON; PERIL SEEN PAST

70 per cent of the residential district was insured and 30 per cent of the business section.

Insurance of about $600,000 was carried on the $1,250,000 destruction of personal and real property.

Normal economic conditions were being restored as rapidly as possible. Farmers were again giving attention to their lands and idle mills, representing one of the district's major industries, were expected to resume shortly.

Prospects of early operations at the three mills saved from the Bandon fire were drawing residents back to their home community.

300 Find Homes

Three hundred persons out of the normal population of 3,500 had found temporary homes this morning. Tent houses dotted the destroyed residential district. City officials now scattered through the refugee camps were expected to gather soon to resume municipal government.

There has been no further advance of fire lines toward Coquille and Myrtle Point. Schools in those cities, however, remained closed.

One incident yesterday afternoon revealed that the dread of new fires has not yet relaxed. Persons returning to Bandon were thoroughly alarmed when a screaming siren announced a brush fire on the outskirts of the community.

Although it was quickly extinguished, nerves were jumpy for several hours.

Forestry officials have been unable to complete a check on the 400,000-acre fire zone. The estimate that 15,000 to 20,000 acres of timber and brush had been burned still stood.

Red Cross Brings Hope

The hard-hit territory learned with joy that efforts had been renewed at Portland to provide Red Cross relief funds. Already $6,700 of a $20,000 quota has been raised in Multnomah county. The coastwide goal is $130,000.

C. C. Hockley, PWA administrator for Oregon, said $500,000 would be required to replace public buildings. The need has been referred to officials at the nation's capital.

The re-settlement administration was conducting a survey to determine how much would be necessary to put aside for the rehabilitation of farm property.

State police said a boy was held in connection with incendiarism following the burning of a ranch home near Coquille. Other rumors of fire bug activities are still under investigation.

EX-LEGION CHIEF WILL SPEAK HERE

Republican headquarters here today received a telegram from national headquarters advising that Edward E. Hayes, past national commander of the American Legion, will be in Medford Thursday, October 8, to outline party policies and give interesting highlights on the present political campaign.

Hayes is an outstanding speaker, and the local Republican fathers were jubilant today over the prospect of securing him. The address will probably be presented in either the Holly theatre or the Senior high school auditorium, although no place has been definitely set.

The Republican sound truck arrived in the city this morning, paraded the city, and presented a speaker in an address to a fairly large crowd at the city park before moving on to Ashland.

It is estimated that the average man shaves 20 square miles of face during a life time.

A bascule bridge is one of one or two leaves which can be raised to a more or less vertical position.

COMMUNIST CANDIDATE CAST IN JAIL BEFORE TERRE HAUTE SPEECH

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Sept. 30.—(AP) A militant police chief backed by his mayor, took steps today to prevent a scheduled communist rally here by jailing Earl Browder, the party's presidential candidate, and four associates.

The chief, James C. Yates, arrested Browder as he stepped from a train from Chicago.

Waldo Frank, a novelist, and Seymour Waldman, both of New York, were arrested with Browder.

Later, Chief Yates arrested Charles Stadtfield, the party's state chairman, and Andrew Remes, a party worker.

Vagrancy charges were placed against the five. They were taken to jail and Chief Yates said they would be held at least until tomorrow.

Asserting he had the support of other public officials, business men and patriotic organizations, Yates said: "There will be no communist meeting here tonight or any other night. We are going to clear out agitators and reds."

Comic Cast In Coming Picture!

Boasting a cast of fun favorites that has Adolphe Menjou, Patsy Kelly, Ted Healy, Alice Faye and Gregory Ratoff featured in top roles along with the Ritz brothers—who bring a new sort of musical nonsense to the screen, "Sing, Baby, Sing" comes to the Craterian theater tomorrow for a three-day engagement.

With Alice Faye swinging torchy new tunes and romancing with Michael Whalen; Adolphe Menjou going daffy and roaming around in his nightie; Ratoff, the demon dialectician, mangling the English language; Patsy and Ted bickering with each other for more laughs, the film is amply supplied with comedy, which with the interlude provided by the song numbers and romantic sequences, keep the picture moving along at top speed throughout.

The story travels from a night club where Alice Faye is employed as an entertainer, to an alcoholic ward in a hospital, where Menjou winds up a grand spree and starts spouting poetry to all who would listen, to a big broadcasting studio, to speeding planes, and finally to a side-splitting climax that winds up the picture in a gale of laughter.

Rialto Drama

"I Stand Condemned," the powerful drama of love and espionage in World war Russia, plays at the Rialto theater today and tomorrow on the same program with "Women Are Trouble," starring Stuart Erwin, Paul Kelly and Florence Rice.

"I Stand Condemned" boasts three new stars who promise to become favorites of American film-goers. It marks the debut of Harry Baur, France's leading film actor and an artist who has been hailed as the peer of Emil Jannings and Charles Laughton.

Laurence Olivier and Penelope Dudley Ward are featured with Bauer in his London film, which casts him as a wealthy Russian war profiteer who finds himself in a position where he can send the young soldier sweetheart of his fiancee before a firing squad.

"Women Are Trouble" tells of a star reporter and a girl on the staff, who set out to cover the activities of a typical big city gangster. Stuart Erwin and Florence Rice are the reporters in question, with Paul Kelly filling the "sit in" job as city editor, whose biggest trouble is keeping up with his wife's weekly demand for alimony.

Furniture Workers Out.

PORTLAND, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Higher wages and union recognition were asked by members of the Furniture Workers' union, on strike today at the West-Made Desk corporation. Company officials said only nine of the 50 employes were out. Union leaders said the number was from 12 to 14.
