

MEDFORD MAIL TRIBUNE

Published by MEDFORD PRINTING CO. 14-21-28 N. 9th St. Phone 18

ROBERT W. RUIB, Editor. KENNETH R. GILSTRAP, Manager.

Entered as second-class matter at Medford, Oregon, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Subscription Rates: Daily, one year, $1.00; Daily, six months, $0.50; Daily, one month, $0.15.

Advertising Representatives: M. C. MOGENSEN & COMPANY, Inc.

MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATION OF PUBLISHERS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF EDITORS

MEMBER OF THE UNITED PRESS

MEMBER OF THE ADVERTISING BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF PUBLISHERS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF EDITORS

MEMBER OF THE UNITED PRESS

MEMBER OF THE ADVERTISING BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF PUBLISHERS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF EDITORS

MEMBER OF THE UNITED PRESS

MEMBER OF THE ADVERTISING BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF PUBLISHERS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF EDITORS

MEMBER OF THE UNITED PRESS

MEMBER OF THE ADVERTISING BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF PUBLISHERS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF EDITORS

MEMBER OF THE UNITED PRESS

MEMBER OF THE ADVERTISING BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF PUBLISHERS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF EDITORS

MEMBER OF THE UNITED PRESS

MEMBER OF THE ADVERTISING BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF PUBLISHERS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF EDITORS

MEMBER OF THE UNITED PRESS

MEMBER OF THE ADVERTISING BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF PUBLISHERS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF EDITORS

MEMBER OF THE UNITED PRESS

MEMBER OF THE ADVERTISING BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF PUBLISHERS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF EDITORS

MEMBER OF THE UNITED PRESS

MEMBER OF THE ADVERTISING BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF PUBLISHERS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF EDITORS

MEMBER OF THE UNITED PRESS

MEMBER OF THE ADVERTISING BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF PUBLISHERS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF EDITORS

MEMBER OF THE UNITED PRESS

MEMBER OF THE ADVERTISING BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF PUBLISHERS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF EDITORS

MEMBER OF THE UNITED PRESS

MEMBER OF THE ADVERTISING BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF PUBLISHERS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF EDITORS

MEMBER OF THE UNITED PRESS

MEMBER OF THE ADVERTISING BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF PUBLISHERS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF EDITORS

MEMBER OF THE UNITED PRESS

MEMBER OF THE ADVERTISING BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF PUBLISHERS

MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF EDITORS

MEMBER OF THE UNITED PRESS

MEMBER OF THE ADVERTISING BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

Making Communists

EARL BROWDER, the Communist candidate for president, knows his onions politically. Released from jail in Terra Haute, Indiana, where he was held, as a vagrant, to prevent him from exercising his right of free speech, he heartily thanked his captors.

"Thanks, chief," he remarked to the Terra Haute head of police, "for giving me a much larger audience than I would have otherwise enjoyed."

And later he called upon the nation, "to witness his imprisonment as the rise of fascism" which of course it was. Not the rise, literally, but the employment of the approved Fascist method, which is to deny free speech and crush human liberty by force.

Had Browder been granted his right to speak, as the leader of an accredited political party, little or no attention would have been paid to what he said or did, at Terra Haute, Indiana.

But thanks to bone-headed action of a smart-alec chief of police, Browder got front-page play, in the newspapers of the country, and the speech he wasn't allowed to broadcast, was broadcast by one of his followers to a greatly augmented audience.

If Communism ever gets a foothold in this country—it will be partly due to such illegal, un-American and incredibly stupid, methods to suppress it.

Not only are such methods legally wrong, but they defeat their own purpose. Instead of checking radicalism, they advance it. Instead of discouraging the Reds, this fascistic strong arm stuff, gives them a big boost on their way, for it makes martyrs of them, arouses sympathy among true believers in Democracy and fair play, where normally there would be none, and gives them free publicity that could be secured in no other way.

"But Afraid to Strike"

WHILE on this subject of communism, as a part of the anti-Roosevelt propaganda, this issue is about as clear, as most of the others in this "cock-eyed" campaign.

The first blast in this direction was delivered by Mr. Hearst, who charged the president with being a communist, and presented documents from Moscow which he claimed proved it.

The Republican press, as a whole, did not fall in line with America's distinguished fascist, apparently placing no more credence in his alleged Soviet documents, than others which in the course of his career, his papers have published.

Practically all of them stated definitely Roosevelt was not a Communist. That was silly, of course. But there was also, no doubt the Communist party was going to the polls and vote for him—that no one denied.

But now someone does deny it. Not only someone, but Mr. Browder, the Communist presidential candidate, and his dusky team mate. Both of them, declare the members of the Communist party, will vote for them, not Roosevelt,—that American Communists have no use for Roosevelt, he is blow-hot, blow-cold type, vacillating, not dependable, in other words a "washout" (An opinion incidentally which places some of our good Republican friends, in complete accord with the Communists!)

So what? Usually the accredited leaders of a party, are the official spokesmen of that party, what they say their party is going to do, or not do is accepted as a fact. But not this campaign apparently.

At least we note in an up-state anti-Roosevelt paper, commenting upon the Browder statement, that such an obvious bit of pro-Roosevelt propaganda deceives no one. The president is not a Communist, he not only did not ask for Communist support, but if given repudiated it, but the undisputed fact remains, the Communists are going to the polls, and mark their ballots for the Democratic candidate.

So it goes, the music goes round and round and comes out nowhere.

But this much seems fairly clear. The Republican press which will not take the responsibility for declaring the president a Communist will take the responsibility for declaring he will receive that party's support, even though the leaders of that party deny it.

They will take no responsibility for concocting the poison, but they are not averse to distributing it by indirection, and thus reaping the political benefit—if any!

Look at Your Hole Card

THE idea seems to be prevalent that the Literary Digest poll has never missed a bet. Has not only been 100% correct in forecasting the national result, in a presidential election, but in each state.

The national phase of the matter is correct. But in a presidential election like this which is so close and so mixed; so unpredictable and unprecedented, those who are already celebrating a Roosevelt defeat, on the present Digest tabulations, are advised to look up the record before they wager their family jewels on it.

Take 1932 for example. The final figures of the Digest forecast a victory for Hoover over Roosevelt in New Jersey by 150,000. Roosevelt carried New Jersey by 30,946.

The Digest figures indicated Hoover would carry Massachusetts, by 400,000. Roosevelt carried Massachusetts by 63,189.

The total indicated a Roosevelt victory, in the country, and this was correct. But it did not indicate a landslide, and an overwhelming landslide was the result.

Now while all the political experts agree, the election will be a close race, that the changing of just one state, from Landon to Roosevelt, or visa versa, may determine the result; one merely has to assume, the Digest figures will be as accurate as they were four years ago—and no more—to admit, that as an infallible barometer in this election, the Digest poll is all wet.

Poultry Expert To Take Special Arizona Course

Elton Waldron, well-known southern Oregon poultry expert, will leave here today for Tucson, Ariz., to enter a department of the University of Arizona specializing in poultry and turkey culture.

After completing his course Mr. Waldron plans to return to Medford in December to resume activities in the Rogue River valley. Poultry and turkey raising in this section of the state is making rapid progress and there is an increasing demand for scientific information regarding correct feeding and treatment of diseases. Mr. Waldron stated. He has already had seven years of experience in assisting growers with their bird raising.

AUTO LOANS AND REFINANCING W. E. Thomas, 45 S. Central.

Time in KSL every evening. Monday thru Friday, 8 p.m.

Use Mail Tribune want ads.

Personal Health Service

By William Brady, M.D.

Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letters should be brief and written in ink (owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady, 265 El Camino, Beverly Hills, Calif.

THE BABY TRAINING BUSINESS.

The eutrophics (eutrophy means healthy nutrition) infant carefully trained acquires control of the bowel at the age of six months or earlier. Control of the bladder comes later, about the end of the first year, though many babies not carefully trained continue wetting the bed and their clothes until they are two or two and a half years old.

Begin at the age of a month. Watch the baby nursing or taking the bottle. When his behavior indicates the desire for movement of the bowel, lay him on his back across your lap and hold a small chamber pot firmly against his buttocks to catch the stool. Do this at a regular time twice daily. When the baby is four months old hold him sitting on the chamber in your lap, his back to you. By the seventh or eighth month he should sit on the chamber without your support. No toys or other distractions while the baby is on stool; ten minutes is long enough to keep him on stool at any time, if there is no immediate evacuation. Never resort to soap suds or injection to stimulate the movement.

When the baby begins to try to get up on his feet, at the age of eight or nine months, begin training the bladder. Place him on chamber pot or small toilet seat at intervals of two hours throughout the day. In many instances napkins may be dispensed with in the daytime when the baby is ten or eleven months old. By right attention to this clockwork schedule the well-nourished infant a year old may be trained to indicate his desire to empty the bladder. By the age of two years a well-trained baby can sleep from 10 p.m. until early morning without wetting the bed. Children who continue to wet the bed after the age of two years are almost invariably subjects of a deficiency of vitamins. (Monograph on management of bed-wetting available to correspondents who ask for it and inclose 3-cent-stamped addressed envelope. Dr. Doctor Brady, he does NOT pay the freight.)

When the Baby Walks. During the fourth month the baby begins to hold the head erect when sitting is supported; at seven months he can sit erect without support for a minute or two. At nine or ten months he tries to get on his feet, but not until 13 or 14 months can he take a few tottering steps on his own. Do not discourage these voluntary efforts; on the other hand, do not try to coax the baby to walk and never use a "walker" or any mechanical gadget calculated to make the baby walk. Some healthy infants walk only when they are fifteen or sixteen months old. The common explanation of delayed walking is rickets.

Then She Talks. Girl babies begin talking two or three months earlier than boys and manage to have the last word, too. Any baby a year old should begin to say papa and mamma, and in the second year gradually learns to speak short sentences.

Cross-Eyed. All young infants look cross-eyed at times. Control of the eyes and ability to focus properly on an object comes at the age of two or three months. Don't hang dangling toys over the baby's crib or carriage before the baby is six months old.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Prostatic Obstruction. We have continued to enjoy success with the transurethral electric resection of prostatic glands and have not found it necessary to do an operation in more than four years. — C. F. E. M.D.

Answer—For the benefit of men past middle age who are in the early stages of prostatic obstruction, Dr. E. is a leading urologist. Medicine marches on! Men who are beginning to be bladder conscious, send stamped addressed envelope for monograph. Good hygiene may prevent considerable trouble, but will not help you much if you procrastinate. This modern improvement, transurethral resection, is a godsend to sufferers from prostatic obstruction, who do not postpone too long proper treatment. — Dry Labor.

Speaking of haircuts, there was a Dutch quipster merchant in our town who would journey all the way to Pittsburgh to be properly tonsured. He was reminded of Col. Henry Watterson down at Louisville, who would drop his tools on occasion and hie to Paris for some of his favorite sauce-drenched dishes and a carafe of his favorite rose-colored wine. A toddy drinker at home, he would partake of wine only in France.

And Russ Cole tells me of a fellow in the internal revenue department at Washington, an aesthete with the spunk to carry out his notions, who sends his shirts to St. Louis to be laundered. He believes they get a certain "do" on them in the Missouri metropolis he cannot acquire anywhere else. Swank Englishmen years ago used to send their laundry across the channel to Paris. Out of this laundry business grew the famous haberdashery salon of Charvet in the Place Vendôme. The first Charvet was a washer-man.

Memory: That black cloud that rolled up out of the southwest upon an afternoon circus performance in our town. And with the enormous top billowing into mountainous waves and side poles hopping, the announcer stood on a blue trick animal tub and shouted: "Ladec and gentlemen: A violent storm is approaching. All those who remain under this canvas do so at their own risk." Then the first blow of the twister. Trees weeping like feathers. Women and children hurrying helter-skelter screaming. The trumpeting of the elephants and the quick, snarly roar of the lion. Then big raindrops hitting the tent like bullets. I recall the clown who took me by the hand and comforted: "Now, Bub, don't cry. You'll be all right!" And what little boy could cry with his hand in that of a circus clown?

They tell it on Lucius Beebe. One recent midnight he somehow appeared in the Grand Central subway station in tails, white tie and silk topper. Stepping into a shuttle train, he found a whole car complaining of not getting started. Beebe walked to the middle of the car, held a white kid glove hand aloft, and bellowed: "Trainmen, do you realize we must get to Times Square with the serum. Be off—moments are precious!" (Copyright, 1936, McNaught Syndicate.)

Ed Note: Persons wishing to communicate with Dr. Brady should send letter direct to Dr. William Brady, M. D., 265 El Camino, Beverly Hills, Calif.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—When a big liner has docked during the day, I like to go down to the piers around dusk to watch the crew fellows, all crinked up, come ashore for an evening in town. They are mannerly, seemingly content to walk the streets two and four abreast, just looking.

Most of them, too, seem under-sized, with milky complexion, oddly cut clothes and teeth. They are full of sadness and have a delightful way of expressing themselves. They never talk to strangers unless approached, and then seem pleased to converse. The majority are victims of the cheap waterfront barbers—haircut and shave 20 cents—and are turned out with ramifications of the bowl style of cutting. As a result they suggest picked chickens and are compelled to bear the atrocity for weeks. Then, too, there are the pert manicure girls and the snarling dressed managers of the specialty shops aboard ship. All are accomplished linguists. Most of them, I hear, are happily married. And the Romeo who expect them easy pickups find something else again.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal. No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with anything less than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble to aid nature to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, your druggist is authorized to guarantee Creomulsion and to refund your money if you are not satisfied with results from the very first bottle. Get Creomulsion right now. (Adv.)

EATING WAS A TORTURE UNTIL HOUSEWIFE FOUND ARMY DOCTOR'S FORMULA. THOUSANDS of men and women have found quick and wonderful results with Williams' S.L.K. Formula, in many cases of long-standing illness from sluggish stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys. From every part of the country grateful testimonials have poured in—like this SWORN STATEMENT from a housewife. Read every word of it, and see for yourself what this medicine has PROVED for itself!

Quick Action. "For some time, eating was simply a torture to me. Cooking my meals left me sick, and I could hardly eat afterward—and in the night I would be miserable with blood and stomach gas. I took all kinds of medicines, but they didn't help me. Then I heard about how much good Williams' S.L.K. Formula was doing around here, and I decided to try it. Just a bottle ended my suffering—so that I can eat and sleep without any pain or worry. I am certainly thankful and I wish every housewife could know about Williams' S.L.K. Formula." (Mrs. James Johnson, Tudor, Calif.)

Free Trial To Prove Beyond the Shadow of a Doubt—how Mrs. James Johnson wonderfully this new medicine can help you—your druggist offers to let you have it on a MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE: Get a bottle today from Health Drug Store and if you are not completely satisfied with the relief it will give you in ONLY 10 DAYS—the druggist will refund—without question—every cent of the purchase price! Don't delay! Give Williams' S.L.K. Formula a chance to help you!

Use Mail Tribune want ads.

Table Rock gardens hit by severe frost.

Mrs. Ed Hanley of this city widely praised for political address in behalf of Republican cause at Portland.

Table Rock gardens hit by severe frost.

Ed Note: Persons wishing to communicate with Dr. Brady should send letter direct to Dr. William Brady, M. D., 265 El Camino, Beverly Hills, Calif.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—When a big liner has docked during the day, I like to go down to the piers around dusk to watch the crew fellows, all crinked up, come ashore for an evening in town. They are mannerly, seemingly content to walk the streets two and four abreast, just looking.

Most of them, too, seem under-sized, with milky complexion, oddly cut clothes and teeth. They are full of sadness and have a delightful way of expressing themselves. They never talk to strangers unless approached, and then seem pleased to converse. The majority are victims of the cheap waterfront barbers—haircut and shave 20 cents—and are turned out with ramifications of the bowl style of cutting. As a result they suggest picked chickens and are compelled to bear the atrocity for weeks.

Then, too, there are the pert manicure girls and the snarling dressed managers of the specialty shops aboard ship. All are accomplished linguists. Most of them, I hear, are happily married. And the Romeo who expect them easy pickups find something else again.

Speaking of haircuts, there was a Dutch quipster merchant in our town who would journey all the way to Pittsburgh to be properly tonsured. He was reminded of Col. Henry Watterson down at Louisville, who would drop his tools on occasion and hie to Paris for some of his favorite sauce-drenched dishes and a carafe of his favorite rose-colored wine. A toddy drinker at home, he would partake of wine only in France.

And Russ Cole tells me of a fellow in the internal revenue department at Washington, an aesthete with the spunk to carry out his notions, who sends his shirts to St. Louis to be laundered. He believes they get a certain "do" on them in the Missouri metropolis he cannot acquire anywhere else. Swank Englishmen years ago used to send their laundry across the channel to Paris. Out of this laundry business grew the famous haberdashery salon of Charvet in the Place Vendôme. The first Charvet was a washer-man.

Memory: That black cloud that rolled up out of the southwest upon an afternoon circus performance in our town. And with the enormous top billowing into mountainous waves and side poles hopping, the announcer stood on a blue trick animal tub and shouted: "Ladec and gentlemen: A violent storm is approaching. All those who remain under this canvas do so at their own risk." Then the first blow of the twister. Trees weeping like feathers. Women and children hurrying helter-skelter screaming. The trumpeting of the elephants and the quick, snarly roar of the lion. Then big raindrops hitting the tent like bullets. I recall the clown who took me by the hand and comforted: "Now, Bub, don't cry. You'll be all right!" And what little boy could cry with his hand in that of a circus clown?

They tell it on Lucius Beebe. One recent midnight he somehow appeared in the Grand Central subway station in tails, white tie and silk topper. Stepping into a shuttle train, he found a whole car complaining of not getting started. Beebe walked to the middle of the car, held a white kid glove hand aloft, and bellowed: "Trainmen, do you realize we must get to Times Square with the serum. Be off—moments are precious!" (Copyright, 1936, McNaught Syndicate.)

Ed Note: Persons wishing to communicate with Dr. Brady should send letter direct to Dr. William Brady, M. D., 265 El Camino, Beverly Hills, Calif.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—When a big liner has docked during the day, I like to go down to the piers around dusk to watch the crew fellows, all crinked up, come ashore for an evening in town. They are mannerly, seemingly content to walk the streets two and four abreast, just looking.

Most of them, too, seem under-sized, with milky complexion, oddly cut clothes and teeth. They are full of sadness and have a delightful way of expressing themselves. They never talk to strangers unless approached, and then seem pleased to converse. The majority are victims of the cheap waterfront barbers—haircut and shave 20 cents—and are turned out with ramifications of the bowl style of cutting. As a result they suggest picked chickens and are compelled to bear the atrocity for weeks.

Then, too, there are the pert manicure girls and the snarling dressed managers of the specialty shops aboard ship. All are accomplished linguists. Most of them, I hear, are happily married. And the Romeo who expect them easy pickups find something else again.

Speaking of haircuts, there was a Dutch quipster merchant in our town who would journey all the way to Pittsburgh to be properly tonsured. He was reminded of Col. Henry Watterson down at Louisville, who would drop his tools on occasion and hie to Paris for some of his favorite sauce-drenched dishes and a carafe of his favorite rose-colored wine. A toddy drinker at home, he would partake of wine only in France.

And Russ Cole tells me of a fellow in the internal revenue department at Washington, an aesthete with the spunk to carry out his notions, who sends his shirts to St. Louis to be laundered. He believes they get a certain "do" on them in the Missouri metropolis he cannot acquire anywhere else. Swank Englishmen years ago used to send their laundry across the channel to Paris. Out of this laundry business grew the famous haberdashery salon of Charvet in the Place Vendôme. The first Charvet was a washer-man.

Memory: That black cloud that rolled up out of the southwest upon an afternoon circus performance in our town. And with the enormous top billowing into mountainous waves and side poles hopping, the announcer stood on a blue trick animal tub and shouted: "Ladec and gentlemen: A violent storm is approaching. All those who remain under this canvas do so at their own risk." Then the first blow of the twister. Trees weeping like feathers. Women and children hurrying helter-skelter screaming. The trumpeting of the elephants and the quick, snarly roar of the lion. Then big raindrops hitting the tent like bullets. I recall the clown who took me by the hand and comforted: "Now, Bub, don't cry. You'll be all right!" And what little boy could cry with his hand in that of a circus clown?

They tell it on Lucius Beebe. One recent midnight he somehow appeared in the Grand Central subway station in tails, white tie and silk topper. Stepping into a shuttle train, he found a whole car complaining of not getting started. Beebe walked to the middle of the car, held a white kid glove hand aloft, and bellowed: "Trainmen, do you realize we must get to Times Square with the serum. Be off—moments are precious!" (Copyright, 1936, McNaught Syndicate.)

Ed Note: Persons wishing to communicate with Dr. Brady should send letter direct to Dr. William Brady, M. D., 265 El Camino, Beverly Hills, Calif.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—When a big liner has docked during the day, I like to go down to the piers around dusk to watch the crew fellows, all crinked up, come ashore for an evening in town. They are mannerly, seemingly content to walk the streets two and four abreast, just looking.

Most of them, too, seem under-sized, with milky complexion, oddly cut clothes and teeth. They are full of sadness and have a delightful way of expressing themselves. They never talk to strangers unless approached, and then seem pleased to converse. The majority are victims of the cheap waterfront barbers—haircut and shave 20 cents—and are turned out with ramifications of the bowl style of cutting. As a result they suggest picked chickens and are compelled to bear the atrocity for weeks.

Then, too, there are the pert manicure girls and the snarling dressed managers of the specialty shops aboard ship. All are accomplished linguists. Most of them, I hear, are happily married. And the Romeo who expect them easy pickups find something else again.

Speaking of haircuts, there was a Dutch quipster merchant in our town who would journey all the way to Pittsburgh to be properly tonsured. He was reminded of Col. Henry Watterson down at Louisville, who would drop his tools on occasion and hie to Paris for some of his favorite sauce-drenched dishes and a carafe of his favorite rose-colored wine. A toddy drinker at home, he would partake of wine only in France.

And Russ Cole tells me of a fellow in the internal revenue department at Washington, an aesthete with the spunk to carry out his notions, who sends his shirts to St. Louis to be laundered. He believes they get a certain "do" on them in the Missouri metropolis he cannot acquire anywhere else. Swank Englishmen years ago used to send their laundry across the channel to Paris. Out of this laundry business grew the famous haberdashery salon of Charvet in the Place Vendôme. The first Charvet was a washer-man.

Memory: That black cloud that rolled up out of the southwest upon an afternoon circus performance in our town. And with the enormous top billowing into mountainous waves and side poles hopping, the announcer stood on a blue trick animal tub and shouted: "Ladec and gentlemen: A violent storm is approaching. All those who remain under this canvas do so at their own risk." Then the first blow of the twister. Trees weeping like feathers. Women and children hurrying helter-skelter screaming. The trumpeting of the elephants and the quick, snarly roar of the lion. Then big raindrops hitting the tent like bullets. I recall the clown who took me by the hand and comforted: "Now, Bub, don't cry. You'll be all right!" And what little boy could cry with his hand in that of a circus clown?

They tell it on Lucius Beebe. One recent midnight he somehow appeared in the Grand Central subway station in tails, white tie and silk topper. Stepping into a shuttle train, he found a whole car complaining of not getting started. Beebe walked to the middle of the car, held a white kid glove hand aloft, and bellowed: "Trainmen, do you realize we must get to Times Square with the serum. Be off—moments are precious!" (Copyright, 1936, McNaught Syndicate.)

Ed Note: Persons wishing to communicate with Dr. Brady should send letter direct to Dr. William Brady, M. D., 265 El Camino, Beverly Hills, Calif.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—When a big liner has docked during the day, I like to go down to the piers around dusk to watch the crew fellows, all crinked up, come ashore for an evening in town. They are mannerly, seemingly content to walk the streets two and four abreast, just looking.

Most of them, too, seem under-sized, with milky complexion, oddly cut clothes and teeth. They are full of sadness and have a delightful way of expressing themselves. They never talk to strangers unless approached, and then seem pleased to converse. The majority are victims of the cheap waterfront barbers—haircut and shave 20 cents—and are turned out with ramifications of the bowl style of cutting. As a result they suggest picked chickens and are compelled to bear the atrocity for weeks.

Then, too, there are the pert manicure girls and the snarling dressed managers of the specialty shops aboard ship. All are accomplished linguists. Most of them, I hear, are happily married. And the Romeo who expect them easy pickups find something else again.

Speaking of haircuts, there was a Dutch quipster merchant in our town who would journey all the way to Pittsburgh to be properly tonsured. He was reminded of Col. Henry Watterson down at Louisville, who would drop his tools on occasion and hie to Paris for some of his favorite sauce-drenched dishes and a carafe of his favorite rose-colored wine. A toddy drinker at home, he would partake of wine only in France.

And Russ Cole tells me of a fellow in the internal revenue department at Washington, an aesthete with the spunk to carry out his notions, who sends his shirts to St. Louis to be laundered. He believes they get a certain "do" on them in the Missouri metropolis he cannot acquire anywhere else. Swank Englishmen years ago used to send their laundry across the channel to Paris. Out of this laundry business grew the famous haberdashery salon of Charvet in the Place Vendôme. The first Charvet was a washer