ASHLAND OFFICERS JAIL ALMS SEEKER

Charged with seeking cash under false representation, Anna Anderson of Los Angeles was arrested by Ashland city police Saturday after she had appeared on the streets with a tambourine seeking alms which she claimed were for the "Good Samaritan Mission." Police found almost $500 on her person, including three $100 bills.

In a signed statement, Miss Anderson admitted that the money was for her own use, although she had done such soliciting for various missions in Los Angeles, starting about four years ago. She said she had worked in California, Chicago and the northwest, including such cities as Portland and Seattle.

She also said, according to police, that she had recently solicited in Eugene, Roseburg and Medford besides Ashland. "When asked by persons what I was collecting the money for," she said, "I would tell them it was for the Good Samaritan Mission, although they seldom asked me."

Ashland police allowed her to post a $75 bond for appearance in city court today.

CAMP WIMER WINS CCC SAFETY FLAG; MISHAPS REDUCED

Company 4742, Camp Wimer, is winner of the Medford CCC district safety flag for the quarterly period just ended and will fly the new green and white banner for the next three months.

Company 709, Camp Gasquet, was second, with Company 3740, Clear Lake, third and headquarters detachment fourth.

In announcing the winner, Maj. G. R. Owens, district commander, pointed out that the district's safety campaign has born fruit during the past several months and that a noticeable reduction has been made in the number of small as well as major accidents.

"The winning of the flag is indicative of the high morale and cooperative spirit of the company and of the cooperation existing between Project Superintendent Erickson and Capt. Rupert T. Gilbert, company commander," he said. "In addition to winning the safety banner the company has rated superior in all respects during the past period."

Details of the safety campaign have been carried on under the direction of Capt. Franklin H. Canlett, district inspector, who has been making a study of the causes of accidents and their prevention. Safety meetings are held regularly in camps with the men taking part, and conferences are held between the technical agency and army overhead in each camp and ways and means of reducing accidents are discussed.

Every type of injury from cuts with hand tools and falls of persons to major accidents were taken into consideration in the ratings. Hand-tool cuts and falls are responsible for most of the accidents. Capt. Canlett pointed out, and while they are less dramatic than the more serious accidents and so receive less attention normally, he finds they can be reduced by cooperation on the part of those in charge of work and recreation hours in bringing to the attention of the men the necessity for carefulness in ordinary activities as well as on the obviously dangerous jobs.

That the number of accidents in CCC camps can be reduced by the exercise of careful supervision on the part of the company commander and project superintendent has been shown by the tabulations of injuries from all causes in this district.

The past quarter, during which a vigorous campaign was carried on, showed a reduction of 30 percent in accidents over the period previous and a reduction of more than 30 percent over the first period of the year.

U. S. HAS TURNED RECOVERY CORNER ROOSEVELT AVERS

after the administration had "laid the ghost of the old gold parity of the dollar" and when it purchased gold and silver.

"The great bullion reserves now in the United States treasury," he said, "are sufficient to redeem every dollar of our currency for more than one hundred percent, and yet people for partisan purposes are willing to spread the gospel of fear that our currency is not in a sound foundation."

"I tell you, and you know, that our monetary system is the soundest in the world today."

Employment Rising

Turning to recovery, he asserted: "I tell you, and you will agree, that we are around the corner. Private employment is picking up. That means that government expenditures for work for the unemployed are coming down. That means that the total of government expenditures will decline."

"Turning the corner also means that government income from existing taxes, without new taxes, is going up."

"I repeat to you what I said in Pittsburgh a week and a half ago, that decrease in expenditures and increase in income mean within a year or two a balanced budget and the beginning of reduction in the national debt."

The president led up to his discussion of government spending by calling attention that this was Columbus day.

He said there were those who felt the cost of Columbus' great voyage was too high and others who "offended him the cost of despair."

"But the valiant admiral, firm to his purpose, sailed on," he said. "And all America pays him tribute today."

Lauds Cattle Program

He said the administration was "proud" of its cattle buying program during the drought years, which Republican leaders had called a "policy of waste."

"Lack of foresight on the part of former administrations," he asserted, "compelled us to buy up sheep and cattle which otherwise would have died in their tracks from lack of food and water."

Not only the stockman, banker, merchant and packer benefited, he continued, but "above all those who benefited most were the unfortunate men and women and children on the relief rolls—hundreds of thousands of families all over the country—to whom the meat was distributed."

Turning to water conservation, the president recalled his speech in the summer of 1934 dedicating Fort Peck dam in Montana and said he wanted to see the day come when "we are going to make every ounce and every gallon of water that flows from the heavens and the hills count before

JAPAN TO WATCH SPIES CAREFULLY BUT AID TOURISTS

TOKYO.—(UP)—Japanese authorities have started the seemingly contradictory and delicate task of increasing vigilance against foreign spies while at the same time giving greater liberties to foreign visitors.

An idea among certain sections of the police that all foreigners are spies must be abandoned, according to the views of Shiro Miyano, director of the peace preservation section of the home ministry.

But it is constantly necessary, authorities say, to be on watch against international espionage agents, who are said to have increased their activities since the February 26 revolt.

The unsettled period of the trials of the insurgents, 17 of whom were sentenced to death, was particularly trying to those entrusted with detecting all secret activities considered hostile to the government.

It is believed here that the strict surveillance to which foreigners have been subjected in the past has injured the tourist business and caused many foreigners to stay away from Japan.

The newspaper Miyako declares that Miyano will tell directors of the foreign affairs of the prefectural police that foreigners should be shown more courtesies, should be afforded adequate protection and should be given every opportunity to see the country.

The rule will not hold true, however, for foreigners against whom the Japanese have raised strict taboos.

DROUGHT VICTIMS COME TO OREGON

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 12.—(AP)—About 8,800 families from the drought-stricken middle west have migrated to the three northwest states since last January. H. E. Selby, chief of the land use planning section of the resettlement administration said today.

Idaho was first with 4,557 new families because, Selby said, it was the "first state in the line of migration from the midwest drought areas."

Washington had 2,329 and Oregon 1,930 families.

Of Oregon's 1,930 new families, 1,215 will need relief, 454 loans, and 182 are self-supporting. There are 337 farm units.

PRIVILEGE ABUSE HELD WORST SIN

LITCHFIELD, Ill., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Eight hundred persons from 32 states and Canada who participated in a contest in connection with the Rev. L. A. Crown's Sunday sermon had his conception of the "worst sin" today as the "abuse of high privilege."

The 49-year-old Union avenue Christian church pastor selected Mrs. Lizzie Langert, a teacher at the church Sunday School, as the winner. She received a large picture of "Jesus and the Rich Man" as the prize.

The abuse of high privilege, Mr. Crown said in his sermon last night, has made the United States "a nation of policies without principles, wealth without work, pleasure without conscience, knowledge without character, industry without morality, science without humanity, worship without sacrifice."

Points to Janus

"When Republican leaders speak out here," the president said, "they proclaim their sympathy with all these western projects and promise you more and more of them."

"When they speak to audiences in the east they proclaim that they are going to cut government expenditures to the bone."

"There was an old Roman god named Janus. He faced both ways. He had two mouths. I need not explain that parable any further."

The president was introduced by Senator Alva Adams (D., Colo.) after he was welcomed with a great shout and a 21-gun salute.

Burton has spent a great deal of the time since 1927 in China and has contributed to various American magazines and newspapers. He is reported to be critical of the central Chinese government as well as the Japanese.

To deal more effectively with espionage efforts in Japan, authorities have built up the foreign affairs police service. Ten to twenty men were added to each of the sections at Tokyo, Yokohama, Kobe and Nagasaki, and increased personnel was assigned also to Kyoto, Osaka, Nagoya and in the Hokkaido.
