Oregon Tax Limitation Situation Explained

Editor's Note: This is the third of a series of articles on the tax situation in Oregon, written for this newspaper by Dr. James H. Gilbert, dean of the college of social science at the University of Oregon. Dr. Gilbert, who is also professor of economics at the University, is regarded as an authority on the tax situation in the state of Oregon and is frequently consulted by state officials and others.

Tax Limitation and Reduction Procrustean Treatment of Budgets.
By JAMES H. GILBERT.

What should be the trend of governmental budgets in the future? No economist or public official can give a certain answer. All depends on the expansion or curtailment of public functions. If the only "safe guide to the future is found in the experience of the past," functions and services are not likely to be curtailed—rather extended.

Still another uncertain factor affecting the money cost of government is the probable price level of the future. The price level of the present is still 20 percent under that of 1926. Even though inflation be controlled and currencies managed, prices may rise 25 to 30 percent in the next five years.

With rising costs of living, wages and salaries of public officials should be adjusted to a higher level. Pay cuts were upheld on the ground of falling costs of living and increased buying power of the dollar. It's a poor rule that won't work both ways.

It is a well known fact that salaries on public employment in Oregon are unduly low. They must be upped somewhat if private business under the stimulus of returning prosperity does not draw away the most competent public servants by the offer of better pay.

In the face of almost certain increase in the money cost of government the tax limitation measure proposes a 20 percent cut from the 1935 tax levy. It reminds one of the story of Procrustes, the old outlaw in Greek mythology. He lured his victims to his lair and tried them on the famous bed. If the victim was too short he stretched him out to fit. If he was too long old Procrustes lopped off the overhang.

Sponsors of the amendment differ from Procrustes in two particulars. They assume that the victim is 25 percent too long and instead of one amputation the process is mercifully spread over a period of five years.

AIRMAIL ARRANGED TO SANTA BARBARA

Santa Barbara, Cal., will be made an airmail stop beginning on November 1. It was announced today by Postmaster Frank DeSouza. This means, he explained, that there will be direct airmail service between Medford and Santa Barbara.

The new service, Mr. DeSouza said, will be of special interest to philatelists who may follow the usual procedure of sending letters to the Santa Barbara postoffice for dispatch on the first airmail schedule out of the California city. No announcement has been made as to whether special cachets will be used for the first airmail from Santa Barbara.

United Air Lines made Santa Barbara a port of call on October 1 for passenger service.

An assembly program displaying high lights from electrical displays at the Century of Progress exposition in Chicago was presented at the senior-high school Tuesday morning. The program and display, arranged by the National Assemblies production, was sponsored by the Torch Honor society of the school. A number of such education programs have been scheduled by the school for this year. The assemblies are gotten together by the national company and sent on tour of schools and other organizations interested. A school club sponsors each group, with students paying admission.

The demonstration this morning included numerous illustrations of modern electrical science. Physical examinations are now being conducted at the high school for both boys and girls and will continue this week. The inter-organizational debates will be started tomorrow and concluded Friday.

FORD FOR LANDON IS FORMAL WORD AT DETROIT VISIT

Auto Magnate Pictures Republican Candidate As Business Man Who Knows How To Make Ends Meet.

By William L. Beale
DETROIT, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Henry Ford formally declared his support for Gov. Alf M. Landon today as the Republican presidential nominee pursued a cross state campaign for Michigan's 19 electoral votes.

"I admire and believe in him; I hope he is elected," the motor car manufacturer said in a statement after conferring with the Kansas governor.

"I am not criticizing the New Deal," Ford continued. "I am only saying that we have had enough of it, we have had about all the country can stand."

The veteran industrialist, who talked with Landon together with his son Edsel, stated his position for the first time just before Landon headed his campaign forces toward Grand Rapids.

Landon sees threat the candidate said the New Deal was "a threat to our American form of government" in an address last night before thousands in the chill wind swept American league baseball park.

Concentration of power in the hands of President Roosevelt, Landon said in the third major address of his lake states campaign, represented the "first steps" toward destruction of the "rights and liberties of the people" which would make the executive "all powerful."

Promising, if elected, to ask repeal of all laws "giving autocratic powers to the chief executive," Landon called upon his Democratic opponent to "tell us before election day just what amendments to the constitution he has in mind."

This reference to the president was followed by boos from the audience.

Ford pictured Landon as "a business man who knows how to make both ends meet," and who "ate out of a dinner bucket for years and still thinks along with the men who carry dinner buckets."

Ford Well Impressed "I gained three very distinct impressions of him," the tall, thin automobile magnate said. "First, he is exceptionally well informed and has experience along many lines; second, he is able to speak his mind in the frankest way—he is open and honest in his opinions; third, he knows where he stands because he has thought things through.

Turning to the social security law, Ford said "what disturbs me is that the New Deal is now making the workmen the same impossible promises that it made to the business man."

Ford said New Deal "intentions may have been good but its performance was very poor."

"As a manufacturer," he said, "I have been its special target for about three years, but I don't hold that against it—it has kept me thinking. All of us have to thank the New Deal for keeping us on the alert for our country."

Without naming Ford, Landon drew applause in his open air speech when he said the automobile industry "resisted" NRA, and "one of its most distinguished leaders never signed the code of the blue eagle."

High School News by STUDENT REPORTERS

By Mary Wallace.

The new projection equipment now in use at the senior high school makes possible the showing of either silent or sound moving pictures. The pictures can be projected from any place in the auditorium, including the projection booth.

This equipment can be used as a public address system. It is portable so can be moved for use in the gym, field or any other place where electricity is available.

C. G. Smith, principal, stated: "This equipment will make possible the showing of innumerable educational films now available on a rental basis or supplied by commercial institutions for use in schools."

This equipment is valuable in training radio speakers and for class-room instruction.

Mr. Brickell, expert projection engineer, spent two days last week instructing several members of the faculty and six students in the proper use of the equipment.

The purchase of this equipment was made jointly by the auditorium fund and school district 49.

How to get more out of MIDDLE LIFE

Conserve your youth. Avoid over-eating, over-drinking and other forms of over-indulgence... If you drink, give thought to your whiskey—be sure it AGREES with you.

If a whiskey tastes good, and agrees with you too, it is your ideal whiskey. You probably know that your system responds differently to different kinds of whiskeys.

Now come the results of an exhaustive research, sponsored by Seagram, and conducted by a nationally known group of trained, fact-seeking men, to tell you to the form of whiskey most likely to agree with you. Our research has proved that Seagram's Crown Blended Whiskies are this form of whiskey—A Most Wholesome Form of Whiskey.

They are rich, fine tasting whiskeys. Taken in moderation, they are easier on the average man. Their kindness today means more dependable tomorrows.
