

"Buzz" Brown Risks Featherweight Mitt Title Here Monday Night

LEATHER PUSHERS OUST WRESTLERS ON ARMORY CARD

Promoter Heeds Demands Of Fans For Change Of Diet—Three Other Bouts To Round Out Program.

A boxing match for the featherweight championship of the northwest will be held in Medford Monday evening, with Elmer "Bum" Brown, 126-pound dynamer as the defending champion against a Mustafa, young Spokane slugger, in a 10-round battle.

The boxing match will take the place of the usual weekly wrestling card. Promoter Mack Lillard announced today. Brown has for several months been the headliner in boxing battles in Portland, Tacoma and Seattle, putting the finger on the Portland pride, Al Spina, by a 10-round decision to ricochet into the limelight.

Brown is a former St. Paul, Minnesota, scrapper, and will be boxing in Medford for the first time. He is said to be an aggressive glove toser with the killing instinct of a Jack Dempsey despite his size.

Recently Brown battled Henry Armstrong, California featherweight champion, in a 10-round match and lost by a close decision. Recently he fought Varr Milling, champion of the Orient from Manila, and got a draw from the fast and clever Filipino.

Lillard said he decided to put on the boxing card instead of wrestling after hundreds of southern Oregon fans had asked for it. He would have presented the card last week, he said, but could not secure Brown. Mustafa has been asking for a chance against the lashing Brown for several months, and intends to lift the crown Monday here if he can. If Mustafa wins, either by a knockout or a decision, the title that was created by the Portland boxing commission in 1924 will go to him, Lillard said.

The northwest featherweight belt carries a 126 pound limit, as compared to the world title limit of 126 pounds. Brown has frequently been mentioned as a world title contender as soon as he gets more ring experience, Lillard said, and can cut his fighting weight to 126 pounds if necessary.

The championship battle will be the main event on a card that will see three other bouts. A six-round semi-windup will be offered, with Lillard still negotiating for two outstanding punches. There will be two preliminary cards, possibly with southern Oregon contenders if two men of sufficient talent can be secured, Lillard said.

The fight that saw Brown lifting the title he holds from the brow of Spina was held in Multnomah stadium in Portland, and drew almost 10,000 spectators.

SAINTS TO PLAY POINTS SATURDAY

Two teams that are embarking on regular football schedules for the first time this year will clash Friday afternoon at 8:45 on Van Scoyoc field here, when Central Point high school meets the St. Mary's high eleven of Medford in the second game of the year for both teams.

Last Friday the Pointers went down before the Ashland high second team at Ashland 14-6. Ken Hulbert, former end on the Albany college is coach of the Pointers and describes his squad of 26 men as "fairly heavy but inexperienced."

Hulbert teaches in the Central Point school. His last college season was in 1932. In the last winning game that Albany won before embarking on one of the most sensational losing streaks in college football history.

Russ Acheson, Medford Junior high mentor, will act as referee in the game.

Coach Wallace Rickett of St. Mary's stated today that his team profited by the 14-0 thumping handed them by the Medford Juniors Friday, and that the remainder of this week will be devoted to fundamentals and defensive work.

KUNZMAN, SMITH PROVING METTLE ON FROSH SQUAD

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Oct. 21.—(Sp.)—Two former star athletes of Medford here are proving their mettle these days on the university's outstanding freshman football squad. Both Stan Kunzman and Robert Smith rendered long service on the Medford gridiron.

Smith, a six-footer who tips the scales at 188 pounds, has a name-sake on the team who plays in the backfield; in play, however, his flashy style distinctly sets him apart from his backfield teammates.

Smith's versatility has been well demonstrated in other athletic lines; in high school he played three years of baseball, basketball, and football. He has won his numerals in freshman basketball and baseball at U. of O. and is now in line for another repetition of this honor, a marked distinction of athletic ability. He is enrolled in the school of social science.

Nineteen-year old Stan Kunzman is one of the youngest members of the frosh football squad. He plays end on John Warren's promising team. Also a three-year letterman at Medford high, Kunzman has been noted by the popular freshman coach as one of the finest varsity football prospects of the year.

Kunzman is a journalism major at the university, and plans to enter newspaper work following graduation.

Grants Pass, with one of the most powerful teams in the school's history, is already looking upon the southern Oregon conference championship, with only one game remaining as a stumbling block. That game is against Medford here Saturday.

That the game will be the meeting of two powerful offenses is assured. The Climate City squad is big, rugged and fast, and unlike many Grants Pass teams in the past, is not covering with fear before the black juggernaut from Medford. They have a good team and they know it, and they will shoot the works this week if they have nothing left to play a single game after that.

The attitude of Grants Pass, as well as the attitude of the team is illustrated in the following clipping from "Calling 'Em Out," Grants Pass sport column:

"The eyes of every football fan in southern Oregon turn this week on eyes Saturday's tilt at Medford between the Grants Pass Cavemen and the Medford Tigers, for, as far as Grants Pass is concerned, the conference crown is at stake.

"If the Cavemen win, the crown is theirs, and with a dozen other teams they will get a crack at the 'state title' for they have won their other two conference games. If the Black Tornado wins, Medford still has to fight it out with Ashland and Klamath Falls, and there would still be a possibility of either a three-way or a two-way tie.

"The two teams' stack up powerfully strong on the record sheets. The Blue and White has five straight victories and no losses, against their five opponents the Cavemen have made nine touchdowns and scored seven conversions with 38 first downs for a total of 61 points. The five opponents have been held to two touchdowns and no conversions, with 36 first downs, for a total of 12 points.

"The Bengals, on the other hand, have made three straight victories, but started their season with a loss to their alumni squad. Then they defeated Eureka, Roseburg and Marshfield, and Jim McMillen, 220, Antioch, Ill., threw Ed (Strangler) Lewis, 245, Illinois, three falls, one fall in 18:20.

"A Portland sports scribe tried to hand Medford the crown (though it was a pewter one) with the following song of joy: 'Looks like another winning high school football team for Bill Bowerman at Medford. To date Medford has defeated Eureka, winner of the northern California championship last year; Grant high school of Sacramento, and Roseburg.'

"Only the Sacramento victory seems to be a myth. For the Tigers never played them. Probably hadn't thought of it. And the Portland scribe overlooked the 13-0 drubbing the Black Tornado took from the Alumni at the season outset.

"But that whipping was good for them. With that over their heads, the Tigers have the reminder that they are not invincible and that if they are going to win football games they will have to play football. Getting cocky over a few wins has put more than one champion on the to-bogean.

"And local fans saw what happened under the lights of the Grants Pass field last Friday. An over-confident set of butter-fingered Cavemen ball fumble, secure in their ardent worship of their prowess over an undefeated record and in their inherent superiority over a supposed 'lock of duhs from the pint-sized town of Yreka, took an ill-earned 20-0 victory over one of the scrappiest and gamest teams that has played here this year.

"The Blue and White showed no championship stuff in that game. Although Associated Press summed up the teams with: 'Grants Pass, only infrequently heard from as a championship contender, slugs ahead of the ever-powerful Medford eleven for southern Oregon conference honors,' the same source in another story related some pitiful facts about last Friday's game—about the fumbles, penalties, fluke touchdowns, and some of the other bubble-bursting incidents of the game.

"But 'behind the clouds the sun's still shining,' and there is indeed a bright spot for the Cavemen in the game. They realize fully the brand of ball they played against Yreka and they have gone into practice this week with their hearts set on reducing one certain Black Tornado to a paper-toosing whirlwind—on plucking the 'Tiger's' claws and making the big cat purr.

"More of that stuff, and less of the 'you better be scared of us, we've won a game' attitude, and the Cavemen will stand every chance of putting the skids under Bowerman's rapid action machine. This season the Cavemen have shown that they can upset heavy odds, and on the Medford turf field Saturday afternoon they will have the chance of their lives not only to vindicate the Yreka game but to block the Tornado's sweep.

The quotation referring to the Medford win over Grant high of Sacramento is from Gregory's Sport Column in the Oregonian, and mystified most of us as greatly as it did Grants Pass.

Genevieve Grant is Chicago's perfect model and the Venus of 1936, as selected by Sculptor Carl Hallthammer. She was picked from 140 girls as the one whose figure, by actual measurement, came closest to that of the classic Venus de Milo. (Associated Press Photo)

Gregory was undoubtedly referring to the Eureka win over Grant of Sacramento for the northern California title last year, mentioned in this paper several times previous to the Eureka game with Medford this year. The Grants Pass scribe slips up a little, too, although not so glaringly, when he mentions the 13-0 victory of the Alumni over the Tigers. The score was 13-6.
