

GOVERNMENT FILM TO SHOW BENEFITS SOCIAL SECURITY

Picture Of Suffering During Depression Will Be Contrasted With Conditions Under Later New Deal.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—A government motion picture about the federal social security program was on its way today into the nation's theaters.

"We, the People, and Social Security" is the title of the film, which had its first showing today in Washington motion picture houses.

The film presents quick-step shorts of suffering during the depression. Under the caption, "Missionary Society, South Kitchen" it shows bread lines of jobless, crippled and aged getting a handout of soup and a ladle of what looks like beans.

The characters act in pantomime. Through the scene mechanism, a voice intones the story of depression suffering and what remedies the social security board holds in store.

As the voice recites the social security program for the blind, Uncle Sam's postal service delivers a letter to a home where a blind old man sits himself on the front porch.

A small boy opens the envelope which contains a government check. The blind old man smiles.

An aged couple display the same smile as they stop at the RFD post box for their old-age pension check. They are heavily laden with fishing tackle.

City "Shot" Shown The camera moves to the city where a "closed" sign symbolizes a factory shut-down. A youth steps up to a teller's window and gets his unemployment insurance check.

One of the animated drawing shots shows a worker and his employer dropping dollars into a box labeled "old age insurance." The voice reports that these are taxes, paid by 26,000,000 workers and their employers, to pay old age pensions when the worker retires at 65 years of age.

The film closes with a full length shot of the declaration of independence.

100 Bandon Homes On Relief Program BANDON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—United efforts of the Red Cross and the WPA will bring 100 or more homes to Bandon within 60 days, citizens were promised.

The WPA buildings will be assigned to persons without finances and requiring immediate aid. Persons not eligible under WPA regulations will be assisted by the Red Cross.

A statement issued by J. W. Richardson, director of the Red Cross disaster relief committee, appealed for more contributions to finance the housing program.

Expansion Of Pea Industry Traced PORTLAND, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Growth of the pea industry in major enterprises of the Imballela country was described here by A. L. Powers, Pendleton banker, in a report to the education committee of the Oregon Bankers Association.

Pea growing in the famous wheat section started six years ago, he said. This year three plants, representing an investment of a half-million dollars, canned 650,000 cases.

The peas are grown on land that is idle between wheat crops. Righteen thousand acres were under pea cultivation this year.

BEATEN GIANTS SPLIT WORLD SERIES MELON; EACH TO GET $4,655

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Although they lost the world series, the New York Giants will be consoled with $4,655.50 for each player who was assigned a full share of the world series money.

The victorious Yankees are collecting $6,430.55 apiece. The losers' shares are record "cuts" of the largest world series "gate" on record, while the Yanks came close to the record for a winning team.

The official figures were announced yesterday when baseball commissioner K. M. Landis mailed the checks to 35 Yankees and 32 Giants as well as the members of the second, third and fourth place clubs in each league.

The total receipts were $1,304,399, including the $100,000 from the sale of radio rights. The players' pool, drawn from the receipts of the first four games and a pro-rata share of the radio money, was $460,002.66.

Both figures were new financial records for a world series.

Of this a total of $193,201.12 went to the Yanks and $128,800.74 to the Giants. Each club awarded 27 full shares plus various minor "cuts."

MUSTOLA IMPRESSIVE WHEN BATTLING GETS INTO CLOSE QUARTERS

When Elmer ("Buz") Brown defends his northwest featherweight title against Al Mustola here Monday night, his famous left hand will have to do apartan duty to keep the strong fighter, Mustola, away from his body, a survey of Mustola's record shows.

The Spokane lugger, who has been clamoring for a chance against Brown for almost a year, has a ring style of his own, consisting chiefly of rushing inside an opponent's guard and hammering away at the body in an effort to cut him down.

That the effort has been successful is shown in the fact that Mustola has never been defeated at his own game.

Brown will not follow the game, however. A clever boxer with a cobra-like left hand, the little champion stings and cuts his opponent with that flicking left until he finds an opening for his crashing right. A left hook is another Brown specialty, a weapon particularly effective against fighters such as the Spokane prize.

Mustola is the stronger of the two, but slower. His knock-out punch, a right smash, is considered fully as dangerous as Brown's sleeper.

The two thumpers, with their managers, are expected to arrive this evening or tomorrow morning.

Ray Morgan, who meets Sonny Enders of Klamath Falls, is given the edge in the semi-windup. Both are the slugger type, Enders relying on long range blows for his heavy artillery, while the shorter, stockier Morgan pumps his lethal clouts from a shorter range. Morgan, at 145 pounds, is a popular scrapper in and near his home town, of Portland, while Enders, at 150, has done most of his fighting in the bay region of California.

The participants in the two preliminary skirmishes are still to be signed. Promoter Mack Lillard announced today that he is negotiating to have Burt Luman of Medford swap punches with "Wallop" Wilson of Klamath Falls. Luman is no Joe Gans in the ring, but lack of technique is largely overcome by his boundless enthusiasm for fighting.

Lillard said today that he has practically convinced Luman that his pugilistic prowess is being wasted outside the ring and stated that Luman appears to be willing and eager to fight Wilson. Wilson is another amateur puncher who believes such a battle would be a natural crowd pleaser.

Veteran Suicides. OREGON CITY, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Frank L. Costley, 37, Tuslatin war veteran, was found dead inside his closed automobile by O. N. Weber, Deputy Coroner A. F. Bierman and Deputy Sheriff Victor Thompson said they discovered a hose attached to the exhaust and leading into the interior of the car. They said Costley had taken his own life.

End Long Feud. CLEVELAND, Oct. 23.—(UP)—Thirty-two years ago in McKeesport, Pa., Louis Karolye alighted John Horvath over a girl and then married her. A month ago the men met in a Cleveland cafe. Today, Horvath was given a suspended sentence for stabbing Karolye in the shoulder. They shook hands and walked from the courtroom together.

WEBFOOTS READY FOR TOUGH GAME

EUGENE, Ore., Oct. 23.—(AP)—The Oregon Webfoots, winding up the lightest practice week of the season, rested today in expectation of a bruising battle with the Washington State Cougars here Saturday.

Hayward Field will be turned over to the Cougars this afternoon. The invaders will reach Eugene at noon.

With the exception of Tom Blackman, sophomore fullback, the Webfoots will be at top strength for the first game with Washington State in ten years. Col. Bill Hayward, trainer, removed all chance of Blackman's playing when he said the youth had not recovered from a leg injury.

SALEM HIGH WINS 26-18 IN McMinnville Tussle McMinnville, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The Salem high school football team came out on top of the touchdown spree in the contest with McMinnville here last night when the final whistle blew. THE AROMA WINS Coffee tasters cheer the delicious aroma of Pen-nant because they know that therein lies the fine flavor.

Coffee guzzlers (most men... you know) think the taste is everything. But, anyhow, everybody's happy to know that such sweet contentment can be captured in a cup.
