Campus Activities

Many and Varied

Social and sporting activities on the Oregon State college and University of Oregon campuses are increasing with each week-end. University students are celebrating a high school week-end with Homecoming festivities. Hundreds of alumni and former students made the trek to Eugene this past week-end with many from Medford joining the throng. Among chief events on the program was the "Russian Rendezvous" dance Saturday night. The committee in charge being headed by Dave Lowry, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Lowry of this city.

Luncheons, breakfasts and various affairs by fraternities and sororities combined to make an active week-end for visitors and students.

Informal house dances sponsored by the women students featured the week-end at Oregon State college. President and Mrs. George W. Pavy were hosts to faculty members at open house Thursday in their new residence on the campus.

Open house was held for all students at the new Memorial Union building Saturday, with house teas and exchange dinners making a full week-end for social activities.

Committees are busy this week completing arrangements to entertain fathers of the students at the annual Dad's Day next Saturday, when over 1000 visitors are expected on the Corvallis campus. Highlights of the program include the O. S. C.-Montana football game in the afternoon and a banquet honoring dads later in the evening.

University of Oregon students are planning to descend on Portland to a body next week-end for the Oregon-Washington game, which is expected to attract large crowds from all over the state.

Mrs. Harding Is Honored in North

Portland's Wahkeena chapter, Daughters of American Revolution, is among those recently entertaining for Mrs. Hoons G. Harding of this city, state D. A. H. regent, who is making visits to all chapters in the northern part of the state.

Wahkeena chapter arranged a tea in her honor Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Everett M. Hurst. Tomorrow Mrs. Harding is again to be in Portland as the guest of Multnomah chapter at luncheon at the Campbell Court hotel followed by a meeting at the University club.

Mrs. Harding is visiting the Astoria chapter today and has concluded visits to Roseburg, McMinnville, Newberg and Woodburn. She left here last Tuesday and expects to be away until about November 15.

Eastern Visitors Vacating Here

Fall in the Rogue River valley seems to attract almost as many travelers as do spring and summer. Among recent arrivals are Mr. and Mrs. N. P. Wheeler of Endeavor, Pa., who arrived Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler are spending a short time in Prospect and Rogue river resorts where continued beautiful weather adds greatly to advantages of the region as a vacation spot.

Mr. Wheeler is president of the Rogue River Lumber company located in the Prospect area. He and his wife plan to continue travels today or tomorrow.

Service Group Meets Thursday

Mrs. Frank Widner will be hostess to members of the service club of Col. Sargent's auxiliary, U. S. W. V. Thursday afternoon at her home, 813 West Ninth street, it was announced today. All members are urged to be present.

ASSAIL NEW DEAL POLICIES

Almost simultaneous speeches attacking the Roosevelt administration were made by Arthur Vandenberg (left), Republican senator from Michigan, and John W. Davis (right), former Democratic candidate for president. Davis at New York played what he termed the administration's "callous disregard of party principles, platform promises and personal pledges" but did not mention the name of Gov. Alf M. Landon. Vandenberg in his talk before a Republican rally at Wilmington, Del., commented on his being cut off in a broadcast from Chicago. (Associated Press Photos)

SHACKLES BROKEN BY BRITISH JUDGE IN BRIEF HEARING

size, her automobile roared away from the court precincts. She had left the court room even before Mr. Justice Hawke handed down his decision.

Known as a stickler for correct court procedure, the judge was stern both with Counselor Birckett, one of England's most able lawyers, and with Mrs. Simpson's other attorney, Walter Frampton.

On the other hand, Mr. Justice Hawke paid not the slightest heed to the svelte plaintiff, studying the papers in the case and devoting his attention to the lawyers without even so much as looking at Mrs. Simpson once.

Decree Nisi Finally, with a resigned gesture, the celebrated jurist flung the papers aside on his desk and announced: "Very well, a decree nisi."

There were rumors, entirely without substantiation, that Mr. Justice Hawke had objected to hearing the case, feeling that his court might be suffering an imposition.

When the case was over, all the doors to the court room were locked for a few minutes and even the attorney in the proceedings were unable to leave.

Outside, a police car pulled up across the road while the Simpson automobile rolled out of a courtyard gate and sped away.

Occupants of the machine held newspaper up in front of the windows to prevent Mrs. Simpson from being photographed.

The former Baltimore debutante was already standing in the witness box when reporters and spectators were permitted to enter the carefully watched court room.

Reporters' Holiday Not once, during all her testimony, did she turn and face the crowd.

The London newspapers, none of which had printed a word regarding the divorce, sent reporters to Ipswich who were placed in the unusual position of holding merely "watching briefs" in the court room.

Chances were that most newspapers in the United Kingdom would completely ignore the case in tomorrow's editions.

To millions of Britons, going about their normal affairs, no inkling of the potential importance of the case seeped through the self-imposed censorship of the British press.

Only a comparative few in court circles and the upper strata of English society, were aware of the case at all. Those few were gravely concerned.

Momentous Action The fact that Mrs. Simpson, for more than two years, has been the constant companion of Britain's 42-year-old bachelor monarch, and as likely as not may become the bride of the strong-willed Edward six months hence, made it one of the most momentous divorce actions in history.

Not since Henry VIII divorced Catherine of Aragon and married the ill-fated Anne Boleyn, in 1533, there by completing the rupture with the Church of Rome, had any severance of marital ties held such far-reaching possibilities.

Again and again, Edward has stressed the importance of the case.

ed his right to "private happiness." He has made it clear that his life as King Edward belongs to his peoples but that his own life when duties or affairs of state are done belongs to himself, Edward, alone.

Fear Abdication Far-thinking advisers and subjects of the king wonder how the empire would react to having a twice-divorced woman, however charming, as legal consort to its king.

They dread the thought that the strong-minded Edward might abdicate in order to save the wife of his choice from any embarrassment and leave himself free to enjoy the happy unfettered existence of her company—possibly retiring to his beloved "Z P." ranch in the foothills of the Canadian Rockies.

Since the "affaire Simpson" broke with the announcement of divorce proceedings almost a fortnight ago, it has filled that part of official and influential England which knew about it with nothing but forebodings.

SPECIAL MEETING

Apostolic Faith, 42 N. Front Street announces our Overseer and Minister, Rev. R. R. Crawford with workers and singers from Portland, Ore., will be here

Tuesday, 7:45 P. M.

Don't fail to come and hear the evangelist proclaim and expound the old time gospel truths with power.

EVERYBODY WELCOME

Come and bring your friends with you.

I GUESS I'M A LUCKY KID, being born under the Roosevelt Administration. Daddy says things were sure tough before. He was working for just peanuts and the boss was giving him "aitch-ee-double L" every morning. Now his salary is three times what it was before, and he's also had a bonus the last two years, and the boss is just swell. He says that when he and mummy were married three and a half years ago, th... had a dinky little apartment with nothing but a skylight in the bedroom. Now we're buying our own home and our own furniture.

DADDY SAYS THAT PEOPLE went hungry and lots of kids were stunted for lack of milk. And shoes?—hardly any kids my age had shoes, but you can see for yourself that I sure have swell shoes.

BUT I GUESS EVERYTHING is going to be all right, for daddy says that lots of people had tougher going than he did, and that anyone who did is certainly not going back to another Hoover Administration, and that's what he says Landon would give us. He says he heard that the average school teacher's salary in Kansas was about nine dollars a week.

P. S.—Daddy is paying for this ad himself. He says that it really is a small thing for him to do considering what Roosevelt has done for us.
