BUZZ BROWN WINS TECHNICAL KAYO IN TITLE BATTLE

Emer ("Buzz") Brown, with a stinging left hand and a whistling straight right, last night retained his northwest featherweight championship title by hanging out a sixth-round technical knockout over Al Mustola, plucky but outclassed Spokane challenger.

Mustola seemed to have an edge in the first round but a low blow to Brown's leg, when the two fell to the canvas in a tangle, gave the judge's decision to Brown. The next was even, with Brown taking the edge in the third. In the fourth round the Portland pride seemed to have Mustola helpless during the first half but the Spokane youth rallied in the last half to even that round.

The fifth round was even, Brown missing with wide lefts but landing several hard rights to the head. Mustola rallied during the round and staggered the champion with several roundhouse cuffs to the head, and uppercuts to the body, but if any margin was given Brown would have taken it on superior boxing.

The blow that really ended the battle came in the first minute of the sixth round, when Brown landed a cutting left smash to the head as Mustola attempted to work out of a corner. Piston-like amasses with lefts and rights drove the challenger across the ring into another corner, where the champion kept his head rocking from side to side with hard, jolting blows. With Mustola helpless against the ropes, his seconds tossed in a towel and Referee Ray Priebis raised Brown's hand. Brown weighed 126, Mustola 125½.

The semi-final also ended in a technical K. O. Sonny Enders, 159½, Klamath Falls, pounding out a fourth round victory over Ray Morgan, 150, Portland. Morgan exhibited by far the cleverest boxing but was no match for the crushing attack of his opponent. The fight was replete with clinchings. Enders knocked Morgan down three times in the fourth round, the plucky Portlander dragging himself off the canvas each time to launch hopeful if futile haymakers in an attempt to turn the tide of battle.

In a special six-round event, Joe Lopez, 182-pound Phoenix, Ariz., negro, won a decision over an outclassed but game Ray Lutman, 177, of Grants Pass. The two preliminaries, featuring Red Melbourne, 155 and Dave Morris, 147, both of Klamath Falls, and Tony Oris, 118, Klamath Falls, and Gilbert Jones, 129, Dairy, ended in uninteresting draws. The two matches consisted mostly of clinching, with hardly a solid blow landed during the eight rounds of the two matches.

A fairly large crowd witnessed the first professional boxing matches in this city in several years.

BALSAMO FACING TEST WITH RISK

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Harry Balsamo, the "belting brakeman" who has become New York's latest fistic sensation faces a test tomorrow night which probably will show whether he is as good as the fans believe.

A slinger who fairly lifts the hair off the customers' heads when he fires a punch, Balsamo tackles Babe Risko of Syracuse, former middleweight champion, in a ten round bout at the Hippodrome.

After seeing him hammer Eric Seebig around, the experts have decided that the punching power the former subway brakeman packs, rates him a shot at Freddie Steele's middleweight crown. Now it's up to him to prove it.

A knockout victory over Risko, who lost the title to Steele but remained on his feet throughout two meetings with the Seattle boy, would automatically put Balsamo in the position of leading challenger.

RACE DOG OWNERS CRUEL TO CATS, WOMEN CLAIM

BELMONT, Calif., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Racing dog owners have just 15 days to get their charges out of Belmont. The city council revoked all dog kennel licenses last night after two club-women charged cats were maimed and fed to the dogs to make them better racers. State humane officers said the charges were unsupported.

JUBILANT FROSH POINT FOR WASHINGTON BABES

EUGENE, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The Oregon freshmen, jubilant over their 18 to 4 triumph against the Oregon State rooks, were back on the job today with nearly two weeks to prepare for the University of Washington babes.

The annual game will be at Seattle, November 7.

While basking in the contented knowledge that we have made an entirely mad bet in giving away 33 points and odds of two-to-one against Klamath Falls in Saturday's football game here, we are beginning to have pangs of memory regarding a football fiasco between Medford and Ashland in 1927, on the top-sided pasture that used to serve as a gridiron in the Lithia City.

Prink Callison was coach at the time, and Medford's present coach, Bill Bowerman, was one of the sturdy athletes. In an earlier game that year Medford had marched over Ashland, 7-0, and there was no suspicion on anyone's part that the score wouldn't be equalled or bettered.

Callison started his second, or third, team but the scrubs couldn't get anywhere. He sent the first team into the fray, and the first team bogged down and floundered through the rest of the game on the short end of a 12-7 score until late in the last quarter. A desperate Medford pass was knocked down by an alert Ashland defense but the ball skittered away to land plunk in the arms of Ned McDonald, Medford end, reposing in the end zone. Medford won, 13-12, but Callison and the bettors who had given big odds, were almost white-haired.

That same thing may happen against Klamath Falls. There remains but little doubt but what Medford has by far the best team. But Klamath Falls, as Coach Bowerman puts it, is coming primed for blood and they may get it.

Here's our prediction: Medford will either wallop Klamath by an unmerciful score, and they can if they're clicking, or they will run into an inspired Klamath defense that absolutely won't be put aside, and the difference in score will only be a matter of a few points. Something like 7-6, 13-12, or the like. Regardless of what happens, we warn you again not to miss the game. It's going to be good.

A recent news story on the sport page of the Oregonian, a special from here, stated: "Fans are starting agitation for a game with some outstanding upstate team, declaring the southern Oregon teams do not offer sufficient competition" (to Medford).

Coach Bowerman said today, in reference to the story: "The writer of that article was either misinformed or uninformed. The sentiment does not express the views of the fans, as it claims to do. Medford fans are quite aware that Medford has already signed to play two strong upstate teams in Salem and Eugene, with many of them objecting to the fact that we are not paying the Thanksgiving game in Medford instead of away from home. As for the southern Oregon competition, the writer might well have waited until we got by Ashland and Klamath Falls. We're not looking for set-ups in either of these two games. The statements do not come from any official sources, you may be sure."

Which is a good thing. If Klamath Falls did knock Medford off the perch, what a howl they'd have coming! And what a howl, naturally, they'd make Medford would never hear the last of it.

Random Observations: Breynon Pinch, Medford line coach, has as one of his major ambitions a trip, afoot from here to the coast, through the wilderness, taking only a gun, ammunition, a blanket, compass, and sail. He'd expect to get lost a hundred times but declares the trip would be ideal. . . . Russ Acheson, Junior high coach who went to Oregon State but originally wanted to go to Washington, punted an average of 65 yards against the Huskies in the first game he played for the Beavers. Coach Jimmy Phelan still feels hurt about it. . . . Incidentally, during the Grants Pass game Pinch wanted to be reminded to kiss Stocks after the game. . . . This will serve as a reminder to Breynon, and a warning to Stocks, who should be able to stay out of sight until the whole thing blows over. Stocks deserves a few kisses for his performance in the game, but would probably rather have some nice gal instead of Pinch give them to him.

LEWIS TO START AGAINST KLAMATH

Ray Lewis, stocky left halfback flash of the Medford Black Tornado, will start in the game here Saturday against Klamath Falls. Coach Bill Bowerman announced today, Lewis romped through signal drill last night with all his old form, cutting, spinning and dodging without a trace of a limp from the ankle injury that sent him from the game in the season opener against Eureka.

The return of Lewis puts the Medford team at full strength for the important Klamath tilt. Coach Bowerman, fearful lest his charges pick up the popular conception that Klamath Falls would be a breeze, pointed toward the near-upset last year when an under-dog pelican outfit was downed only in the last 20 seconds of play.

Such an upset is not impossible this year, he warned his players, adding that Klamath Falls would be here with but one purpose in mind—to beat Medford if it meant crippling their team so they wouldn't win another game all year. Klamath has had a disastrous season after a promising beginning, but all would be forgiven if they dump the rampaging Tigers, critics agree.

JITSU WRESTLERS HERE ON FRIDAY

A troupe of 30 American-born Japanese Jiu-Jitsu experts, returning to their homes in Washington after attending a Jiu contest in Los Angeles, will stop off in Medford Friday evening to put on a series of exhibition bouts at the Armory. It was announced last night by Carl Tengward, who is handling the arrangements.

Medford wrestling fans got a glimpse at Jiu-Jitsu last winter with their tea too they wouldn't win kuma, gigantic Nipponese black-belt champion, in action against catch-as-catch-can grapplers, but have never had an opportunity to see two Jiu experts in action against each other.

G. Fujimoto, Medford Japanese, said the Jiu experts are of "assorted sizes."

JUNIOR TEAMS TO PLAY RETURN TILT

The Medford Junior high school Bulldogs Thursday afternoon play a return engagement against the Ashland Junior high squad on Van Scoyoc field, the game to be called at 3:45.

The game will be played on Thursday instead of Friday, because of Teacher's Institute at the two schools. In an earlier game Coach Acheson's Medford team defeated the Ashland outfit, 13-0. Since then both squads have improved, with the Medford Juniors losing only one game, to a vastly heavier Jacksonville high school eleven.

The Lithia City team averages almost the same as Acheson's squad. Interest at the local school is high, and a downtown pep rally will be held Thursday afternoon by the students.

On the same afternoon the Jacksonville and Central Point high schools will meet for the first time this season.

RIFLE CLUB ELECTION SCHEDULED THURSDAY

The annual meeting and election of officers of the National Rifle club of Medford will be held Thursday evening, October 29, at 7:30. The meeting will be held in the Southern Oregon Sales office building at the corner of Stewart avenue and Pacific highway.

All old members and all those interested in joining the rifle club are invited to attend, according to an announcement sent out by M. C. Gleason, club secretary.

Mr. Herb Gray, Advertising Manager
Medford Mail-Tribune
Medford, Oregon

Dear Mr. Gray:

You and your newspaper have always been willing to go beyond what could be ordinarily expected in assisting advertisers in your newspaper in their merchandising problems.

We have appreciated assistance you have given us from time to time and, in reciprocation, we thought we would give you some information which, this time, might be of value to you.

During the past few months we have been conducting a special advertising campaign on MOBILIL in your newspaper. Sales of this product in your trading area during this period have been greater than at any other time by a wide margin.

We feel that the advertising of MOBILIL in your publication has had a greater effect in bringing about these increased sales than any other single factor.

May the Medford Mail-Tribune continue to be the most potent advertising medium which we have found it to be.

Sincerely yours,
GENERAL PETROLEUM CORPORATION OF CALIFORNIA
