On Rialto Bill

"Hearts in Bondage" is a thrilling, heart-tugging story of the Civil War with James Dunn, Mae Clarke, David Manners, Charlotte Henry and Henry B. Walthall in leading roles. Dunn and Manners are engaged as brother officers, one on the North and one for the South. The action of the film centers around the famous battle between the Monitor and the Merrimac.

"Killer at Large" co-stars Russell Hardie and Mary Brian with George McKay and Thurston Hall included in the cast. Terror grips a city as a maniac of a thousand faces threatens to ravage every living inhabitant within. Thousands are panic-stricken when the headlines scream: "Mr. Zerk Strikes Again!" "Who Is This Madman?" "What Is His Fantastic Murder Vendetta?" It tells a story of nerve-shattering suspense of a madman terror that stalks a city until he is stopped by a police barrage of bullets—and it's positively guess-proof at that.
