

Klamath Pelicans Seeking Revenge - Light On Tiger Field Saturday

LOCALS NEED WIN TO HOLD PINNACLE IN DISTRICT RACE

Invaders Coming Primed for Blood—Bowerman Plans to 'Shoot the Works'—Contest Starts at 2 P. M.

Threatening skies today gave warning that tomorrow's football game here between the Medford and Klamath Falls high schools might be played on wet turf, increasing the chances of tumbling, considerably slowing the damming attack of the Black Tornado and cutting much from the efficiency of the vaunted Pelican aerial attack.

The United States weather bureau here today predicted a very light downfall tonight and tomorrow morning, but no deluge. Attaches at the bureau said that there was little probability of rain during the game tomorrow afternoon.

In the meantime, letting the weather situation take care of itself, Coach Bowerman of Medford, and A. V. Arritt of Klamath Falls, were grooming their charges for one of the crucial games of the year, for Medford, Klamath is already out of the running for an undefeated season, but a victory over the Tigers would add to their more satisfaction than any other two victories during the season.

Medford must win the game to retain her lead in the league race.

Klamath is coming primed for blood. Cognizant of the fact that they are the underdogs for the fray the Pelicans have everything to win and nothing to lose, a mental advantage that may make a difference in the outcome of the game. Last year Klamath lost a heart-breaking 18-14 decision in the last 20 seconds of play against the Tigers, and after the game they made charges ranging from crooked officiating to Bowerman's coaching his men from the sidelines.

After that game Klamath was invited to play the encounter over, on another field, an offer that was declined. The bitter feeling aroused by the Klamath charges still smolders in Medford, although a Klamath sport scribe alleges there is no trace of it in the Pelican city.

The battle has created more interest than any other game this year. The Jackson county chamber of commerce, pledged to work toward a record-breaking attendance, today announced that they were convinced the game would be a sell-out. Fans from Ashland and Grants Pass are also expected to attend, in addition to a large crowd of spectators from Klamath.

A Klamath Falls win would throw the southern Oregon league race into a three-way tie, with Klamath, Grants Pass and Medford all having one defeat. A Medford victory, however, would virtually secure the locals the league honors, with only the twice defeated Ashland Orioles standing in the way.

Bowerman intends to "shoot the works" tomorrow. The first team will start the fray and only in the event of a wide lead will the shock troops take over as a body, as they have done in nearly every game this year. The Medford entry is looking for a stubborn Pelican defense, with a strong possibility they will flash offensive strength they have not shown this year. In last year's encounter the Klamathites emerged from a season-long slump and showed at the Tigers for the entire game, being in the lead on two different occasions. Bowerman remembers that and will be looking for a similar inspired defense tomorrow.

Expect Record Crowd
At last week's Grants Pass game an estimated crowd of 3200 fans were on hand. Estimates for tomorrow's game foresee another 1000 or 1500 added to that throng, with prospects of one of the best games of the year.

The clash will be the last in 11 days for the Black Tornado, with the next game to be on Armistice Day, against Ashland here. Following that game the Tigers will lay off until Nov. 21, when they meet Salem at the home of the Pelicans.

Pair of Dependable Tiger Wingmen

Above are the two Medford wingmen who will be depended upon to drive Klamath Falls plays into the center of the line, stop end sweeps, charge passers, get down on punts, snatch passes and make themselves generally a nuisance to the Pelican offense here Saturday. They are Red Root (left) and Bob Wilson, two as dangerous ends as the Black Tornado has boasted in several years. Wilson's sensational leaping catches have been the outstanding features of at least two football games this year, the Eureka and Grants Pass encounters, while Root reached the pinnacle on defense against Marshfield two weeks ago. Root has been compared, pound for pound, with a wildcat, with the feline getting all the worst of it.

KLAMATH UNDAUNTED BY MEDFORD GRID PROWESS

The following is a reprint from the Klamath Falls Evening Herald, published last night under the heading "Pelicans Refuse to Tremble at Reports of Tiger Power," and serves as an indicator of Pelican feeling in regard to tomorrow's game here. That Klamath is banking heavily on Medford overconfidence is shown in the report, which follows:

Word comes from Modoc field this week that the Klamath Pelicans aren't a bit frightened of those Medford Tigers they are scheduled to face in the Rogue River valley city Saturday afternoon.

They hold a healthy respect for Bill Bowerman's gang, which has run over all the high school opposition it has met so far this season without ever being forced to play its ace. But they're far from ready to concede that the Peepers have any claim yet to state title honors.

Medford overconfidence is in part what Klamath is counting on. There's no question that, in view of Grants Pass' defeat of Klamath, the Tigers feel pretty cocky over that 31-7 licking they administered the Cavemen last Saturday.

There's no question, either, that they are a better than fair bunch of players. Good clubs, however, have been caught off guard and stumbled before, and Klamath may be the team to do the tripping this year. At least, that is what the Pelicans are hoping. Nothing to lose, they'll be doing battle with one idea—to end the long, unbroken string of defeats at the hands of the Tigers.

Both outfits will be near top strength for the contest. Klamath pulled through the Eugene game without serious injuries, and Medford will have at least one regular first-stringer ready to go out of the group which was on the sidelines last week.

Medford reports a near-capacity crowd is expected to witness the game. Lured by what was anticipated would be a close game, 3200 fans, a thousand more than the Modoc field stands will hold, saw the Grants Pass-Medford tilt, and at least as many will be on hand this week for the traditional Klamath-Medford encounter.

For the first time the Pelicans will be playing on a turf field. Whether grass will work to their advantage or not won't be known until the late hours of Saturday afternoon.

UNTAMED BRONCS FACE ALABAMANS IN COAST CLASSIC

West's Only Undefeated, Untied Team Meets Tough Test Saturday—Huskies Favored to Down Oregon

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Santa Clara, the west's only major undefeated and untied team, will clash with unbeaten Alabama Poly here tomorrow in an inter-sectional tilt which may steal the coast football show.

Washington's championship-headed Huskies are heavy favorites over the twice-beaten Webfoot of Oregon while Washington State meets California and Stanford tackles U. C. L. A. in outstanding coast conference games. Southern California is idle.

Alabama Poly and Santa Clara shape up about even on seasonal performance. Alabama has defeated Tennessee, Detroit and Georgia, and played Tulane to a scoreless tie. The Bronco's outstanding victory was their 13-to-0 triumph over Stanford. Oregon counted on its traditional jinx over Washington for a win at Portland.

Washington State, whose only black mark is a scoreless tie with Southern California, may find California's twice-beaten Bears have nothing to lose and are willing to shoot the works for a win. The Cougar, victors 3-to-0 over Oregon last Saturday, are favored to retain their undefeated status.

Stanford, which showed a more polished attack last week end in losing to Southern California, 14 to 7 will present a strong barrier to U. C. L. A.'s Bruins, who are considered still a title contender despite their early season thumping by Washington. U. C. L. A. downed Oregon State, 22 to 13, last Saturday.

Oregon State, in the conference cellar with four defeats, meets Montana at Corvallis while little Gonzaga, which upset University of San Francisco, 17 to 7, last Sunday, clashes with University of Idaho at Spokane.

Coast conference championship standings:

Team	W	L	Td	Pts	Pts
Washington	3	0	0	46	7
So. Cal.	3	0	1	78	14
Wash. State	2	0	1	17	13
U. C. L. A.	2	1	0	39	33
California	1	2	0	13	30
Stanford	0	2	1	27	35
Oregon	0	2	1	7	35
Oregon State	0	4	0	37	86

LINCOLN AND GRANT STRUGGLE TO DRAW

PORTLAND, Oct. 30.—(AP)—The sixth game of Portland's inter-scholastic football season was recorded last night. Lincoln and Grant struggled four quarters without either team making a point.

PORTLAND, Oct. 30.—(AP)—The Franklin high quakers dropped Benson's football championship hopes with another upset, 7 to 6. Benson was on the heels of the leaders until Franklin staged its uprising from the cellar ranks.

Extradition Ordered.
SALEM, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Governor Martin today authorized the extradition of Gary Webster who is wanted in King county, Wash., on charges of embezzlement. He is under arrest at Klamath Falls.

GOOD SEASON SEEN FOR WATER FOWL, BEARS PLENTIFUL

The following sports bulletin was issued today by the Rogue River national forest service:

"With the termination of the deer season last Sunday and the bird season tomorrow, the attention of the hunter is now turning to elk, bear, duck and geese.

"Reports from Klamath lake indicate that very good shooting may be expected in that territory when the season opens November 1. There are many ducks as well as geese on the Upper Klamath lake and more are coming in each day. There are several new laws governing water fowl shooting and it is suggested that each hunter familiarize himself with the hunting laws.

"Bears, on which the season opens November 1 in Jackson, Josephine and Klamath counties, are reported quite plentiful throughout the forest.

"The elk season opens November 8 in parts of northeastern Oregon because of the special equipment which is required by elk hunters, a careful check of the laws should be made by those who contemplate an elk hunt.

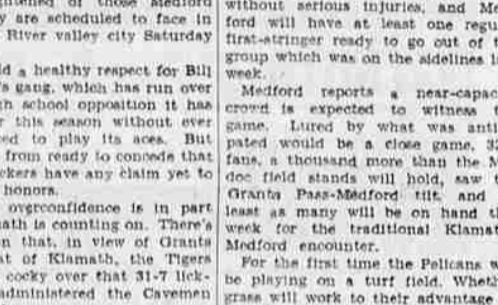

"Two forest fires occurred during the past week on the Rogue River national forest. Each was caused by a careless smoker. The fact that one of these fires spread to some 300 acres in size and required the efforts of 240 men to control it emphasizes that serious danger still exists.

"Not all the fires are confined to the forest. Many serious conflagrations have occurred in the past in the marsh and tule lands. In addition to such fires destroying the feed and cover for duck and geese, there is also the danger that they will spread to adjoining timber land. Because the marsh lands surrounding Klamath lake is peat, which burns very readily when dry, hunters should be very careful of their warming fires and when smoking."

Carl Y. Tengwald is in charge of the arrangements, and said today that a small admission price will be charged, with no seats reserved. The same price will prevail for ringside and balcony. The doors will be opened 45 minutes before the matches are scheduled to start.

BIRD SEASON ENDS SATURDAY EVENING

The 1936 upland game bird season closes tomorrow night at sundown, hunters were warned today by state police. After that hour the season will be closed for another year on Chinese pheasants, quail, grouse and native pheasants.

Shooting in the flour of the valley has been slackened considerably during the past week with those birds not annihilated by the heavy volley of firing taking in flight to the foothills, where a underbrush has protected them.

Many pheasants and covers of quail have deserted their usual haunts for these protected places, hunters report. Although birds can be freely seen in brushy country it is extremely difficult to get a shot at them, it is said.

The first few days of the open season saw limit bags turned in from all parts of the valley. As on the closing day of the deer season, an unusually heavy bombardment is expected with many hunters in the field, and many of these will again turn in limit bags, police estimated.
