that city, and two hours after their arrival stole a Ford coach to continue their hunt. About twelve miles south of Roseburg the car developed a flat tire, and was in turn abandoned. Halfman told police.

The three youths then walked into Myrtle Creek, he said, where they remained four or five hours before stealing a Ford V-8 sedan, driving it to Medford. After their arrival here they decided the car did not have enough gasoline to risk further journeying, so they abandoned it and started search for another machine. Halfman related to police.

Shortly after abandoning the car stolen in Myrtle Creek, Medford city police picked up the trio for investigation. The admission of theft followed. The sheriff of Douglas county where two of the alleged thefts occurred, was to arrive today to take the youths into custody and return them to Roseburg to face charges. A report on the Portland police bulletin today lists the three youths as runaways.
