

CANADIAN MOTHER READY TO BATTLE FOR STORK PRIZE

Mrs. Lily Kenny Threatens to Slap Jurist's Face if Ordered to Divide $500,000 With Five Others

TORONTO, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Upon the difference between a "C" and a "K" may hang $500,000 and the hopes of half a dozen champion childbearers.

Mrs. Lily Kenny

their share, the sixth, Mrs. Lily Kenny, announced her two "missing babies" had been found, properly registered at the bureau of vital statistics.

It is just a matter of spelling, Mrs. Kenny said. The infants were registered as offspring of "Mrs. Cenny."

"This definitely proves that Mrs. Kenny is the sole winner of the prize for childbearing under the terms of the late Charles Vance Millar's will," her counsel said.

"There was never any question about her being the mother of nine eligible babies, the same as the other five mothers claim. With this proof of the two other births here total goes to eleven—and that's the top."

posed for more pictures as he enrolled for the next democratic primary.

Crowd Applauded

A crowd of several hundred applauded as he alighted from his open car. Another group gathered inside.

Outside again, the president called correspondents to his car for an informal press conference.

It was here that he disclosed President Jackson's watch chain—a heavy gold one with figures of dogs chasing a fox.

The chain was attached to an old gold hunting case watch that belonged to the president's father. Mr. Roosevelt opened the watch and demonstrated how it strikes the hour and quarter-hour.

He said he was going out in the woods with the boys this afternoon.

Asked about the maritime strike, he said he knew nothing new but that both sides were still trying to hold a conference.

Declaring 55,000,000 Americans were eligible to vote today, he expressed the hope that "all of those 55,000,000 will vote."

HOOVERS VOTE AT PALO ALTO POLL

PALO ALTO, Cal., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Former President and Mrs. Herbert Hoover voted today, chatting briefly with old friends on the election board and then stepped aside to permit a waiting line to cast ballots.

Mr. Hoover, who excoriated new deal policies in an election eve speech at San Jose last night, voted first, and then Mrs. Hoover marked her ballot in the booth at the Stanford University Women's clubhouse.

The former president and his wife shook hands with O. L. Elliott, emeritus registrar, an old personal friend, and with five women members of the election board.

The Hoovers then returned to their home on the campus.

Write Votes Quickly.

At the polling precinct, which was crowded to its capacity, a Democratic election judge, Mrs. Paul Otto, gave the Republican candidate his ballot.

Mrs. Landon required five minutes to finish voting and Landon six.

In a jovial mood, Landon jested with cameramen as he went through the motions of voting again at their direction.

The voting over, Landon and his party went to his rambling two-story home for a brief visit with friends before going to the home of Mark Mitchell, an oil man and friend, for lunch.

A 19-gun salute had boomed as the "Sunflower special" pulled into the station.

Landon, smiling broadly, immediately spotted old friends in the throng. From the rear platform he called to many by their first names.

"Well, by golly, Jim," was a typical greeting.

Knows Home Folks.

"More people call me by my first name and I know more people by their first names here than anywhere," Landon said.

"I want to tell you how much I appreciate this friendly and cordial reception in my home town," he added.

Another cheer went up as Mrs. Landon and Peggy Anne emerged.

Landon was handed a large bouquet of chrysanthemums which he gave to Mrs. Landon.

Mayor Mitchell, who boasts he has given Landon all his campaign hats and already has purchased a high silk hat "for his inauguration," was in the crowd.

When a voice shouted, "Where is your high hat, Alf?" Landon said, smiling:

"I don't have a high hat and I still wear the same size."

EDWARD PLEDGES BRITAIN TO SEEK EUROPEAN PEACE

nation in London next May he would go to India to be crowned emperor.

Calls Conference

He also called an imperial conference to meet in London next May.

The state opening was robbed of part of its brilliance by a heavy rain which forced cancellation of the scheduled procession from Buckingham palace.

"Thousands of his subjects, jamming the mall and the horse guards' parade in Whitehall, stood in the driving rain to catch a fleeting glimpse of Edward as he passed in a closed motor car.

It was an uncrowned king who opened parliament. Not authorized to wear the imperial crown until after the coronation May 8, Edward followed the glittering jeweled emblem of the nation and empire in the procession from the robing room.

The emblem, along with the sword of state and the cap of maintenance, was carried before him on cushions by the Marquis of Londonderry, leader of the House of Lords, and other royal attendants.

Affirms Faith

King Edward, in a firm, resonant voice, launched into the reading of his address from the throne after first affirming his solemn declaration of protestant faith.

Sending Britain to the task of placating Europe, Edward said the nation would persist in efforts to bring about a meeting of the Locarno powers and expressed the hope that the London naval agreement of March 25 would become "the basis of international agreement to which all naval powers will eventually become parties."

He stressed Great Britain's determination to back the Spanish non-intervention committee while at the same time pursuing "every opportunity to mitigate human suffering and loss of life in that unhappy country."

The address, liberally sprinkled with the use of the intimate "I" and "my," reported his majesty's pleasure that the "work of strengthening my defense forces is being pressed on with the utmost energy and is now making rapid progress."

But he voiced the solemn assurance that Britain would "lose no opportunity of promoting general international appeasement and limitation of expenditure on armaments which would naturally follow on such an improvement in relations."

For Free Exchange

In what was interpreted as a bid to other nations to join, Edward assigned to his cabinet the task of maintaining "efforts to promote the freer exchange of goods throughout the world," recognizing that "the attainment of general prosperity here depends on our further expansion of our overseas trade."

The Queen Mother Mary, not participating in the opening of parliament for the first time in a quarter of a century, stood at a window of Marlborough house as the king's car passed in the rain, on its way to the session.

King Edward glanced at the window, saw his mother and waved the check that he held in his right hand. Queen Mary smiled, and withdrew from the window.

The king returned to Buckingham palace. All along the route of the 11-minute journey, cheering, damp crowds greeted him.

AL DONS BROWN DERBY FOR MARCH TO POLLS

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP)—With the customary brown derby perched on the back of his head and a cigar held tightly between his teeth, Alfred E. Smith cast his ballot in a Madison avenue polling place at 11:40 a. m. (E. S. T.) today.

Accompanied by Mrs. Smith, the former governor and 1928 Democratic presidential candidate, walked from his home at 820 Fifth avenue to the vacant store which served as the polling place. A crowd nearby cheered him.

sted shifts were ordered at the Inman-Poulsen mill. The Portland Lumber mill was at a standstill and the Clark and Wilson operations were ended indefinitely.

A skeleton crew will reopen the small mill of the West Oregon firm tomorrow, but the main plant will be locked.

Outputs Limited.

Mills at Knappa, Rainier and Westport failed to open. Other firms announced drastic payroll cuts and limited output.

At Bandon, where fire struck so disastrously September 26, recovery received a serious set back when all but eight men were dropped from the Moore Mill and Lumber company.

The plant is remaining open to saw logs only for reconstruction work in the fire-ravaged community.

Officials of the Island City Flouring mill at La Grande announced the plant would not open today. The mill is affiliated with the Pioneer Flouring mills which closed its operations at Union last Saturday.

Three other flouring mills—one at Astoria and two at Pendleton—ceased work last week.

Pickers continued their watch on the Portland waterfront after erecting shelter against the cold weather.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 3.—(AP)—

Waterfront employers indicated here today they would place skeleton crews aboard ships to safeguard them during the maritime strike, while at New York the leaders of two rival sailors' unions forecast the arming of men and violence.

Observers here agreed that if non-union crews were placed on ships violence would follow, and Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady was attempting to persuade the maritime groups to man the tied up vessels.

Leaders of the Pacific coast strike sought to extend the blockade to Atlantic and Gulf ports through "new policy" instructions to maritime groups.

In New York, David Grange, third vice-president of the International Seamen's union, declared his union would be ready to put crews on all ships tied up by the "sit down" strike of the insurgent seamen's defense committee.

Grange promised protection to the men "even if we have to go to the extent of arming our men."

Joseph Curran, chairman of the Seamen's Defense committee, replied "I foresee violence and plenty of it."
