REVAMPED TIGERS TRAIN FOR ANNUAL ASHLAND WARFARE

Squad Undaunted by Forfeitures — Bayliss and Maruyama, Backs, Look Good in New End Spots

With the announced shakeup of the Medford high school football team penetrating even deeper than was at first planned, Coach Bill Bowerman draws a bye this week-end and will devote the entire time between now and Armistice day to whipping his new squad into shape for the impending struggle with Ashland.

The revamping of the squad finds two backfield men, Bayliss and Maruyama, at the wing posts, and with one lineman and possibly two, Morris and Baker, in the backfield. Last night Bowerman had Bayliss and Maruyama at ends, Baker and Grow at tackles, Blair and either Santo or Earnhart at tackle and Offord, star tackle, at center.

In the backfield, the Tiger coach had Ettinger at quarterback, Morris at right half, Bowman at left half, and Sakraida at fullback. In case the ever dependable Sakraida is injured, Ettinger will move to fullback and Baker will come out of the line to quarterback, with Henry filling Baker's guard position.

The first-named backfield combination will give more power than the Tigers have had this year, but the power will be gained at the expense of speed and deceptiveness, as well as smoothness. Bowerman said that his charges have shown no great amount of chagrin at the unforeseen developments that have sidelined them from one of the outstanding teams of the state into a squad that, by forfeiture, has only one victory to its credit.

That victory is the unassailable one over Eureka. Bowerman said the squad has already put aside the bad break as an accident of the game and is now working toward the smoothness that carried them to victory in former struggles.

Perhaps the most surprising phase of the shakeup that dismantled the entire attack is the moving of Bayliss and Maruyama to ends. Bowerman said the two former backs are taking the positions nicely, and already Maruyama has crowded into the front rank. Wilson, regular left end, has been demoted to the third string because of what the coach terms "self-satisfaction" exhibited in the past few nights. Other ends who are showing ability are Montieth, Richardson, Woodcock and McCurley. Change Salem Date.

By request of the Salem high school, the Medford-Salem game will be played on Thursday, November 19, instead of Saturday, November 21. A college game is to be played in Salem Friday night, November 20, and on Saturday night the Capitol City stores remain open until late, and school officials there are afraid that a good crowd could not be assembled on that night. The Salem game will be played under lights, the first night game for Medford this year.

In the meantime the Tigers will drill for the Ashland game. Saturday morning the Medford squad, with no game for the day, will practice from 9 o'clock until noon in an effort to rebuild the missing offensive fire.

BURLEIGH GRIMES SIGNS AS MANAGER OF DODGERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(P)—Burleigh Grimes, veteran spitball pitcher and former Brooklyn Dodger ace, today was appointed successor to Casey Stengel as manager of the Dodgers for the 1937 National league baseball season.

Grimes, who closed his active major league career in 1934 and was manager of the Louisville Colonels in the American association last year, was signed to a one-year contract at a figure reported to be between $8,000 and $10,000.

The veteran was at his home in New Haven, Mo., when John Gorman, business manager of the Dodgers announced the appointment.

Stengel, who was released during the recent World series with his contract having one more year to run, will be paid off on a semi-monthly basis next year, Gorman said.

Grimes, the greatest traveler in modern major league history, serving eight clubs in both circuits over his 22 years of pitching, spent his happiest days in a Brooklyn uniform. A great hero in Flatbush with his gruff, swaggering manner, old Burleigh stayed with Brooklyn for nine seasons, winning 157 games and losing the longest he was able to stick with. The longest he was able to stick with another club was two years.

Grimes, now 43, was born in Emerald, Wis., began his Gulliver's travels in 1913 when he went to Ottumwa, Ia. He was picked up by the Detroit Tigers toward the end of the season. The Tigers turned him over to Chattanooga and after a sally into Birmingham, Richmond and back to Birmingham, he was sold to the Pittsburgh Pirates, who sold him to Brooklyn after two years of service, in 1918. After nine years with the Dodgers, Burleigh was traded to the Giants, who turned him over to Pittsburgh. From there he went to the St. Louis Cardinals to gain fame in world series engagements with the Athletics in 1930 and '31. He quit as a player two years ago.

HOODED GRAPPLER PINS PAT FRALEY

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Pat Fraley, 220-pound Minneapolis heavyweight wrestler, fell victim last night to grappler's unknown assailant, the animal weighing 180 pounds, one of the biggest blacktals killed in this part of the country. She bagged the deer near Lake O. Woods.

Harvey Field, Sr., with a 219-pound mule buck, took that division of the Hubbard contest. The deer was killed in eastern Oregon.

Cougars Prepare Attack From Air
PULLMAN, Wash., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Washington State college football workouts of the week preface an aerial offensive against Oregon State here Saturday.

Determined to keep the Cougar record clear of defeats, Coach O. E. (Bebe) Hollingberry has been training all his backs in both passing and receiving. With Halfback Bob Fletcher out with his leg in a cast, the starting lineup probably will include: Ed Goodard, leading coast conference scorer, quarterback; Rodgers Dougherty and Carl Littlefield, halfbacks; Joe Angelo, fullback.

ST. MARYS MEETS ASHLAND JUNIORS HERE ON FRIDAY

Game Originally Scheduled for Ashland Is Moved to Van Scoyoc Field—Teams Boast Flashy Offensive

The St. Marys high-Ashland junior high football game, originally scheduled for the Ashland junior high school field, will be played on Van Scoyoc field in this city Friday afternoon starting at 3:30. It was announced today by Coach Wallace Rickett of the Saints.

Rickett received a telephone call from Coach Rogers of Ashland last night stating that the Ashland field would not be available. Superintendent E. H. Hedrick and Coach Russell Acheson, of the Medford junior high school, have agreed to release Van Scoyoc field for the game.

Acheson will referee the class, with Ray Henderson acting as timekeeper. The two schools have been the underdogs of the secondary circuit, with both taking frequent beatings. Both have flashy, crowd-pleasing attacks but superior weight and experience has to do against them in most of their games. The Ashland squad was defeated by the Medford Juniors here last week, 31-0. The Medford squad defeated the Saints 13-0, in an earlier game.

Coach Rickett announced the following lineup: Gitzen and Reddy at ends; Lemere and Gritsch, tackles; Mikeche and Applegate, guards; Kates and Sakraida, halfbacks; and Schade or Wilcox, fullback.

There will be a small admission charge for the game, Rickett said.

TEAR GAS HALTS MILL TOWN RIOTS

OLYMPIA, Nov. 5.—(P)—Stones hurled at state patrolmen last night in McCleary resulted in the use of tear-gas by the patrolmen and McCleary today was virtually free of labor trouble which has raged there two or three days. Chief William Cole said.

Women had been intimidated in McCleary, Cole said. Outside pickets and working men who went to the little mill town yesterday and last night from Grays Harbor and Elma, were estimated to number 500. Mill officials said an attempt was being made to unionize the McCleary Lumber company's workers.

Chief Cole said several of the workers were beaten when they went through picket lines to the mill and that yesterday the "outsiders" were "intimidating" the women of the town.

MILKING 10 MILES OF COWS

DE LAVAL MAGNETIC AND UTILITY MILKERS

Picture for a moment the amount of work involved in hand milking. Milking ten cows twice a day 365 days in the year amounts to 7,300 cows milked in a year.

Standing these cows end-to-end would make a line ten miles long. Or placing them side-by-side in rows, they would cover 3 1/4 acres.

If you can milk eight cows an hour by hand, which is fast milking, it would require 912 1/2 hours a year to do this job, amounting to over three months of ten-hour days, nearly 30 days to harvest each "acre" of milk.

In harvesting grain with an old-time cradle, an acre a day was a fair job for one man—30 times as fast as a man harvesting milk by hand. But what modern farmer would think of harvesting grain with a cradle? He buys a grain binder, though it may be used only a few days a year.

Certainly on the basis of saving time and labor a De Laval Milker will accomplish more than any labor-saving equipment a dairyman can own—which thousands of De Laval users know from years of experience. Call on us for complete information.

There are two kinds of De Laval Milkers—the famous Magnetic and the Utility—each the best of its kind.

Bull Elk, Mule Are Found Dead In Odd Struggle

OROPINO, Ida., Nov. 5.—(P)—John Grasser, widely known central Idaho guide, found his best pack-mule lying dead across the neck of a dead bull elk.

"The mule had been tied to a feed rack," he said, "and the rope was still intact. The mule's head had been pierced by the elk's horn, like a well-placed bullet. Grasser supposed the fallen mule smothered the elk or broke its neck with a kick."

Oregon Is Primed For UCLA Battle

EUGENE, Ore., Nov. 5.—(P)—A fired-up Oregon varsity moved enthusiastically into closing practice sessions at Hayward field, eyeing a possible conference victory over UCLA at Portland Saturday.

Inspired by their strong showing against the Washington Huskies, the Webfoots were radiating with confidence.

Much of the team's optimism was centered around Dave Gammon, the sophomore half, who has turned into a powerful triple threat performer.

SAMS VALLEY CAGERS OPEN SEASON FRIDAY WITH DOUBLE HEADER

SAMS VALLEY, Nov. 5.—(Sp.)—The Sams Valley high school will begin its basketball season Friday night, November 6, with Williams furnishing the opposition. This will be a double header with the girls' team playing the preliminary and the boys playing immediately afterward.

The local teams are both composed of inexperienced players, practically all of last year's players having graduated. Two members of last year's crack girls' team remain. Forwards Leona Schulz and Helen Burreson. New players in the starting lineup are Ruth Wiemes and Lucile Breneshort, centers; and Ruth Smith and Jean Fredenburg, guards. Kenneth Thomas is the only member of last year's starting boys' team. Supporting him at forward will be Stanley Straus. At center Ray Smith will make his debut, while Roger Tresham and Dick Rush will start their first game at guard. Others to see action include Louis Houston, Robert Bishop, Robert Clark and Bill Hull.

The boys' team will appear in new suits and sweat shirts. The jerseys this year are gold colored with blue trunks. The sweat shirts are two-toned gold and blue.

Next week the warriors will meet the strong Phoenix team, last year's champs, in a Friday night game on the local floor.
