Ashland-Medford Football Game At 2 p. m. Armistice Day Feature

FINAL ENCOUNTER OF YEAR SLATED ON MEDFORD GRID

Tigers in Fine Fettle Says Coach — Ashland Hopes High for Victory Over Ancient Foes As Climax

This afternoon at 2 o'clock the Medford and Ashland high school football teams play what will be the last home encounter of the season for the Tigers, on the new turf field here. Estimates show that one of the largest crowds of the season, with merchants and businessmen off for the day, will be in attendance.

Coach Bill Bowerman last night announced his team ready for the encounter. The mental attitude of the players, he said, is at the best for the year, with no overconfidence, but an apparent determination to add the game to the local victory string after several disastrous forfeitures.

Rocked by a shake-up that affected almost every position on the team, the Black Tornado will do what few teams attempt—present an entirely new offense from the one that carried the outfit to victories in all of their games but one. Fans here are vitally interested in what Coach Bowerman, with but 10 days of drill at the new set-up, will be able to present.

Bowerman has credited the new offense as stronger on straight power plays, but less deceptive and not so fast as the brilliant combination that started the year under the red and black banner. One possible backfield combination, with Baker, Estinger, Bowman and Morris would be the fastest group of ball carriers the Tigers have presented this year, but such a combination would be possible only in the occasion of an injury to Sakraida, and the loss of the steady fullback would be far greater than the advantage of extra speed, Bowerman admitted.

The Grizzlies have been looking forward to the game all season, with their minds set upon the hope of dumping the powerful Medford eleven. Coach Skeet O'Connel, in his first year of coaching at the Lithia City school, has produced a team that has played erratic football at times, but is fully capable of rising to the heights, as their surprise win over Grants Pass showed.

As in past seasons in the bitter rivalry between the traditional opponents, Ashland will present everything they have in the nature of deception, skill, fight and recklessness. As in past seasons the game will be an unpredictable one until the final gun, although the revamped Tigers are given the edge easily in the betting.

In view of the large crowd anticipated, those expected to get good seats are warned to be at the field early.

LIEUTENANT CRAFT TELLS ROTARIANS OF OLYMPIC VISIT

A vivid, verbal picture of the colorful Olympic Games last summer in Germany was given to the members of the Rotary club Tuesday noon by Lieutenant Roy Craft, attached to the CCC staff here. The Rotarians and guests, assembled at the Hotel Medford for the club's regular Tuesday meeting, thoroughly enjoying hearing the speaker tell how he secured press credentials for the international sporting spectacle, how he attended a press dinner as a guest of Goebels, German minister of propaganda, and of the pomp and ceremony attending opening of the Olympics.

"The German people looked upon the 1936 Olympic Games as significant of the New Germany," Craft said, in describing the elaborate preparations made by the host country. He displayed a large photograph showing approximately 150,000 people packed in the huge, new Olympic stadium, and in the stands of the tennis grounds and the socker field.

Craft lauded Jesse Owens, sensational colored star who brought honors to the United States team in the international competition and, while describing Eleanor Holm Jarret, American swimming ace, as "spoiled," said "that it was the concensus in press circles at the Olympics that the United States committee had made a foolish decision in barring Mrs. Jarret from participation.

The tremendous ovation given to Adolph Hitler especially impressed Lieutenant Craft. The triumphant trip of the German dictator and the Olympic committee from down-town Berlin to the Olympic stadium, through lanes of Nazi troopers seven miles long, was one of the highlights of the ceremonies prior to the opening of the games. "It was a mervelous demonstration of man power," the speaker said.

In closing his address, Craft told of the tremendous ovation given Hitler upon his dramatic entry into the Olympic stadium; how the Nazi chief accepted a bouquet of flowers from a little girl amid a thunder of "heils" and of the colorful parade of Olympic teams.
