News Behind The News (Continued from Page One) been successful from the inside and out. The soundest stock marketeers and New Dealers regard him highly. He has followed the line hewn by the original chairman, Joe Kennedy. The New Deal has too few executive administrators like Landis, Chairman Crowley of FDIC, Jesse Jones of RFC, Chairman Eccles of the FRB, and intends to keep all it can.

Those who consider the election a mandate for everything advocated by everyone in the Roosevelt camp should make a study of the variety of reasons why people voted for the president.

They could start off with the unannounced explanation of a prominent Democratic leader, who says: "I really did not like to see the administration being so antagonistic to business. After all, the business man is the only one who will take men off the relief rolls, and inasmuch as this is an object of the administration, it should cooperate with business more."

There ought to be a friendly feeling between business and the government, and I thought I could do more to bring it about by working within the New Deal than outside it."

Against this, the reasoning of some of the socialists and communists who voted Democratic could be placed. The simplest explanation, however, may be overlooked. The greater number probably just preferred Roosevelt to Landon, without being swayed by any particular issues.

The state department has started a series of elegant handouts analyzing the reciprocal trade agreements. The first one, on the Canadian treaty, was published the other day. It covers 35 pages.

The purpose behind the publicity program is to build up interest and knowledge in preparation for further action when Secretary Hull returns from Buenos Aires. One of two minor agreements (including Chile) are now hanging fire, but bigger things are expected later.

Letters received at the White House are generally referred to one of the government departments for response. That is, if a correspondent inquires about relief, his letter is initialed "WPA" and sent to that agency. The same method is in use with TVA, AAA, FCA and all the others—except RA.

For some reason, letters referred to the resettlement administration are not marked "RA," but instead are slugged "Dr. Dugwell."

Wally's Wardrobe Watched By French Dress Designers

SIMPLE, TAILORED MODELS FAVORED BY KING'S FRIEND

By MARY FENTRESS (Copyright by United Press.) NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(UP)—Mrs. "Wally" Simpson, whose taste in clothes is listed by King Edward as one of her leading charms, according to close friends, will go to Paris shortly to complete her winter wardrobe planned in keeping with the monarch's fancy.

The king, who for years has set styles in men's clothes, has also been considered a keen judge of women's fashions. He and Mrs. Simpson frequently discuss clothes.

Paris designers have watched Mrs. Simpson's clothes carefully. Many consider she ranks with the Duchess of Kent as a style leader. They have created a number of models which are expected to appeal to the former Baltimore girl.

Simple Models Favored.

The American-born friend of King Edward is a great sportswoman and usually wears simple, tailored clothes in somber colors. On long walks, or motor rides, in the country with the king, she wears two-piece suits of tweed—either in soft blues to match her eyes or in plain black.

She will select several simple woolen dresses suitable for gardening, in accordance with the king's latest hobby—that of planting bulbs and flowers in the royal garden at Port Bellevue, the British monarch's country estate near London.

Her hats always are simple. They will be of soft felt with elevated, crushed crowns and short velvet-like front brims.

Her afternoon clothes will be simple and tailored. She usually dresses in black for town wear, choosing crepes, satins and lightweight wools. Occasionally she wears blue, sometimes pale turquoise and sometimes a deep royal blue.

Blooms at Night. Her afternoon gowns are made high at the neck, sometimes set off by touches of white or with a bright velvet scarf at the neck. With the dresses that are untrimmied at the neck she wears a strand of pearls reportedly a gift from the king.

It is only in evening clothes that Mrs. Simpson chooses bright colors and exotic styles. Shimmering laces, of all colors, are invariably found in her winter wardrobe. Many of these glittering creations are made with high-necked front bodices, a halter strap about the neck, and are completely bare in back to the waist.

These gowns are expected to be seen frequently in London's west end when the king escorts Mrs. Simpson to dances, now possible since the British court no longer is in mourning.

Her evening wraps also are of simple design in rich, luxurious materials. Black velvet, lined with white ermine, will probably be chosen for one cape, while another will be of silver fox, with 12 to 15 skins running lengthwise.

Mrs. Simpson's deshabille, or house robes, will be fluffy and feminine. Rich satins in pastel shades will be used for foundations to be worn un-

Her Dresses Charm Ruler

Mrs. Wally Simpson, American-born friend of King Edward VIII, is credited with a superlative taste in choosing her clothing. The king lists this accomplishment as among her leading charms. der long lace coats of the same shades. Some will be in fluttering chiffon caught in at the waist with aprons of perfumed artificial flowers. These house gowns, soft and clinging, are worn with matching openwork sandals of satin or velvet.

DAVIS TRANSFER IN NEW LOCATION

Davis Transfer and Storage opened today in new headquarters at the corner of South Fir and Eighth streets, after having been located at 29 South Grape street for the past 18 years.

Under the direction of J. T. Davis, who established his transfer business in this city in 1919, the two-story warehouse building has been remodeled and redecored.

The upper floor of the Davis Transfer and Storage has been partitioned into individual compartments so that southern Oregon residents may now store their household goods in separate rooms which are locked. A number of improvements have been completed in the main office which is particularly roomy and attractive. Mr. Davis' new warehouse is more than three times as large as his former location. The move was made necessary by rapidly increasing business, he stated today.

up she left the Nevada divorce legal still married. The official separation was announced April 4, 1933, after her father had hurried to New York in a vain attempt to reconcile the pair.

Domestic fireworks soon were transferred to the courts. Seeking to have her $100 weekly support raised in New York, Fay set forth her needs as $7400 a month. She also petitioned to enjoin Vallee from seeking a Mexican divorce.

The crooner countered by introducing records of "tapped" telephone conversations between Mrs. Vallee and a man he identified as Garfield Leon, an adagio dancer.

In an amended separate maintenance suit filed in California, Vallee was accused of misconduct with Alice Faye, film actress who had sung with his orchestra.

Out of the maze of litigation at length emerged as a divorce. It was granted by Fay last May by a Los Angeles judge. A cash settlement and $100 a week went with it.

Klamath Bridges Need Rebuilding

KLAMATH FALLS, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Construction of four bridges across the government irrigation canal in the city limits will be asked in a bill proposed for the next session of congress.

ROSEBURG, Ore., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Harry Van Winkle, 20, wanted at Eminence, Mo., as a parole violator, was taken to custody here today by sheriff's officers. Sheriff Percy Webb said Missouri authorities have advised him extradition proceedings will be started immediately.
