Wholesale Business Keeps Pace With Retail Houses—Few Cities Fail to Report Business Extension

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—(AP)—More uniformity was evident in the energetic advance of trade this week, as improvement spread to nearly all divisions, the weekly review of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., said today.

Retail distribution moved into the spotlight with the formal launching of the Christmas shopping season although gift-buying had been gathering force since the opening of the month, it was explained.

"Few cities failed to report an extension of consumer buying for the week, the general average of distribution running 6 to 12 percent larger than for the period immediately preceding," the survey said.

"In spite of the expanding trend at this time a year ago, the estimated volume of retail sales for the country as a whole ranged from 15 to 25 percent in excess of that for the corresponding 1935 week."

"Paralleling the rapid flow of merchandise into consuming channels, buying at wholesale was unchecked this week. While the increase varied widely, according to the type of merchandise, volume was estimated at 22 to 25 percent larger than for the comparative 1935 week."

PRESIDENT VOICES HOPES FOR PEACE AMONG AMERICANS

ter-American peace conference at Buenos Aires.

Riding in an open car to the temporary residence arranged for Mr. Roosevelt, the two presidents were seen by an estimated 300,000 persons, packed behind troops and against the walls of buildings.

More fortunate spectators, leaning from office windows in the Avenida Rio Branco, sprinkled white and pink roses on their heads.

President Roosevelt waved his light gray hat and smiled broadly.

Foreign Minister Jose Carlos Macedo Soares, United States Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, Dr. Oswaldo Aranha, Brazilian minister to Washington and James Roosevelt followed in the procession of seven cars.

Guns Boom Salute.
The cruiser Indianapolis, carrying the presidential party boomed on a 21-gun salute in honor of President Getulio Vargas of Brazil, as she entered the harbor.

Brazilian guns on the Cobras island naval base responded with a salute for the chief executive of the United States.

Naval officers aboard the Indianapolis raised the Brazilian flag as the American flag flew from the Brazilian flagship Sao Paulo.

Among the other members of the welcoming committee were United States Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, Oswaldo Aranha, Brazilian ambassador to Washington, Gen. Rodney H. Smith, chief of the United States coast artillery mission at Rio, and Captain C. C. Gill, chief of the United States naval mission.

Six of Brazil's 16 warships were lined up in the harbor with their crews standing at attention as the United States vessel glided between Sugar Loaf mountain and Santa Cruz fortress.

Children Sing.
As the Indianapolis approached Mays pier, 5000 school children sang the Star Spangled Banner to welcome Mr. Roosevelt.

The two presidents got into an official automobile and started for the residence several miles away which Mr. Roosevelt was invited to occupy during his 12-hour stay here.

They drove through a double line of helmeted soldiers, who saluted them with rifles at "present arms." Twelve military bands, stationed at various points along the route, played the national anthems of the United States and Brazil.

Crowds of the city's residents were massed behind the military lines, waving flags of the two nations and cheering the two chief executives.

James Roosevelt, the president's son, sat near his father in the tonneau of the open car.

Avenue Decorated.
The Avenida Rio Branco, the boulevard over which the procession passed, was decorated from the pier to the official residence.

The presidential cruiser was sighted shortly after 7 a. m. at the entrance to the harbor with the cruiser Chester, carrying newspapermen and secret service officers, about 500 yards behind.

The Indianapolis swung into the harbor as five Brazilian naval planes circled overhead.

Thousands of persons lined the docks as the Indianapolis passed the pier and then swung around. The presidential party waved greetings amid the din of whistles, horns and church bells.

Diplomats and government officials had assembled in the reception hall

FORESTRY PROFESSION GAINS IN POPULARITY

BERKELEY, Cal.—(UP)—Increase in the popularity of forestry as a profession has developed so rapidly that the University of California is having difficulty taking care of the number of students who desire to specialize in that branch.

The percentage of students taking forestry courses has increased 300 percent in the past six years.

Popularity of the profession is due largely to the fact that it offers a means of livelihood to those who prefer to work outdoors.

The division of forestry at the University of California was opened in 1914. By 1931 it had 95 undergraduates. This year it has jumped to 307 with an additional 22 graduate students who are taking post-graduate work.
