

BIG PARADE CELEBRATES BRIDGE

Here is a view down San Francisco's Market street as a crowd estimated by police at 500,000 lined the curbs and perched themselves in buildings to view the big civic parade to celebrate the opening of the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge. It was the biggest throng ever to witness a parade in San Francisco. Marching in the foreground are units from the United States battle fleet. (Associated Press Photo)

WYOMING'S HOUSE OF DEATH

Death will come quickly to Wyoming's condemned men in this newest lethal machine, just completed by a Denver firm. It is a gas chamber, recently adopted as a means of execution by Wyoming. Poison pellets are dropped into a jar under the chair, to which the prisoner is strapped. (Associated Press Photo)

MEXICAN WORKERS DEMONSTRATE

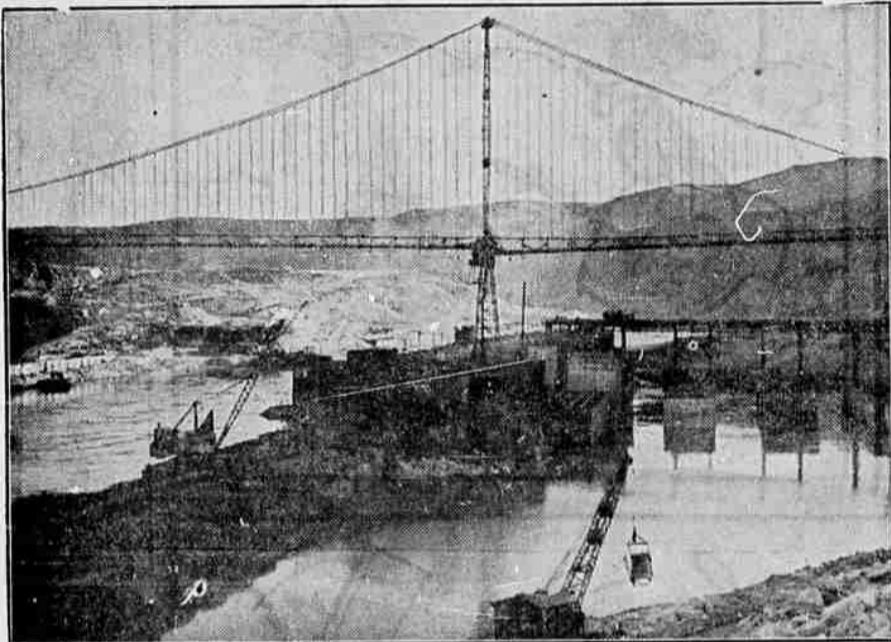

On the twenty-sixth anniversary of the revolution that ended the 30-year dictatorship of Porfirio Diaz, thousands of radical Mexican laborers participated in this huge mass meeting in front of Mexico City's ancient cathedral. Speakers denounced Fascism. (Associated Press Photo)

DIEGO RIVERA SALUTES COMMUNISM

Diego Rivera, noted Mexican muralist whose radical tendencies got him into a controversy with the Rockefeller Center at New York, raised his fist in this Communist salute during Mexican labor's anti-Fascist demonstration at Mexico City. At his right is his seldom photographed wife. (Associated Press Photo)

COLUMBIA RIVER DIVERTED FOR COULEE DAM

To proceed with construction of the big Grand Coulee Dam project on the Columbia river in eastern Washington, the river itself was diverted from its course. This picture shows the regular main channel at the left and the new artificial channel (at right) created by a diversion dam. (Associated Press Photo)

Wins Peace Prize

Carlos Saavedra Lamas (above), Argentine foreign minister who has been prominent in the League of Nations, was awarded the Nobel peace prize for 1936. Lamas will play a prominent role in the Inter-American peace meeting at Buenos Aires, to be attended by President Roosevelt. (Associated Press Photo)

REBEL UNIONS SUSPENDED

These three leaders in the fight against the Lewis "rebels" are pictured conferring on the floor of the American Federation of Labor convention at Tampa, Fla., which voted to continue the C. I. O. unions' suspension. Left to right: Matthew Woll, chairman of the resolutions committee; John P. Frey, who made the "insurrection" charges that led to the suspension, and William Green, A. F. of L. president, who said, however, "The door is still open, the hand of fellowship is still extended." (Associated Press Photo)

HELEN SHOWS NEW STYLES

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, many times women's tennis champion, has turned to dress designing. Here are two of her sports ideas as she gave them a final inspection at New York before placing them on the market. (Associated Press Photo)

SEATTLE MAYOR'S OUSTER SOUGHT

Mayor John F. Dore of Seattle faced a move for his ouster from office by a committee which filed a removal petition and announced plans for an attempted recall. Dore was accused of violating his oath of office and permitting "labor racketeering." (Associated Press Photo)

Accused Of Slavery

City Marshal Paul D. Peacher of Earle, Ark., is shown as he appeared for trial on a federal charge of aiding and abetting in causing a number of negro agricultural workers "to be held as slaves" in east Arkansas last summer. (Associated Press Photo)

LEAD FASCISTS' ASSAULT

Two of the ablest war lords of Gen. Francisco Franco, leader of the insurgent forces in Spain, are Lieut. Col. Handsche Casteljon (left), commander of Franco's left flank and hero of San Martin, and Gen. Jose Varela (right), commander of the Fascist armies outside Madrid. (Associated Press-Paramount News Photos)

LOYALISTS DIG IN FOR DEFENSE OF MADRID

Anticipating a siege of Madrid with the advance of Spanish insurgent troops upon the capital, volunteer loyalist workers are shown digging trenches to fortify the city. (Associated Press Photo)

ACCUSED POISONER KILLS SELF

The camera caught this graphic picture of John R. Kizer, 64, wealthy planter and stockman, as he was rushed to a hospital at Pocahontas, Ark., after swallowing a fatal dose of poison as officers were bringing him to a hearing on charges growing out of sudden deaths among his relatives over the past seven years. He died before he could be given treatment. Letters found in Kizer's pockets protested his innocence of an accusation that he poisoned his stepson. (Copyright by Memphis Commercial Appeal from Associated Press)

INSURGENTS' CANNON SHELL SPANISH CAPITAL

Main traffic arteries in Madrid were heavily bombarded by insurgent artillery, some of which is shown in the suburb of Alcoron. Defenders of the Spanish capital blew up a railroad bridge in an effort to check the advance. This picture was wired to London and radioed to New York. (Associated Press Photo)

SCHOOLDAYS NOW FOR BLOND QUADRUPLETS

Recovered from an illness, the blond Marlok quadruplets of Lansing, Mich., were back studying their three "R's" in their first grade classroom. Left to right: Edna, Helen, Sarah and Wilma. (Associated Press Photo)