

FEHL ASKS COURT ENJOIN PAVEMENT COST COLLECTION

Another shot was fired Wednesday in the series of litigations filed by Earl H. Fehl, former county judge, now on parole from state prison, on conviction of ballot theft.

Papers have been served upon the city of Medford, through Mayor George W. Foster and City Recorder Mose L. Alford, in which Fehl seeks "injunctive relief" from paying assessments on Park street property. The complaint is filled with characteristic Fehl charges, in which he impugns the motives of city officials. The claim that he is still "the duly elected and qualified county judge" is reiterated, and the complaint is signed "Judge Earl H. Fehl."

In circuit court yesterday, the administratrix of the estate of the late T. Helmroth, filed an answer in the suit of Mrs. Corintha E. Stalley, claiming she has a rental interest in the Pacific Record-Herald building on Sixth street. Denial is made in the answer that any agreement was entered into with Mrs. Stalley, or any sum is due, as claimed.

The sheriff's return shows that Mrs. Stalley refused to accept service of the papers.

The Pacific Record-Herald building was transferred to Helmroth and J. B. Thomas of Ashland, through a sheriff's deed, on a mortgage foreclosure four years ago.

PITCHER SALVESON BACK TO SERAPHS

(By the Associated Press.) Los Angeles baseball future loomed brighter today with announcement that Johnny Salveson, the Angels' pitching ace last season, was coming back to the Coast league after an unsuccessful effort to break into the big time with the Washington Senators.

Salveson went to the Senators at the close of the 1936 season, but failed to make the grade in spring practice. The Chicago White Sox claimed him at the waiver price of $7,500 and said he would be sent back to Los Angeles for more experience.

Coast leaguers went on another batting orgy yesterday, smashing out 103 base hits, including three homers, a brace of triples and 23 doubles for a total of 85 runs.

A high wind and the Seattle Indians all but blew Willie Kamm's hapless Mission Reds out of the ball park as the triple blasted 23 hits to win handily, 16 to 3. Sacramento measured the San Francisco Seals, 13 to 8. Oakland won its fourth game of the 1937 season by beating San Diego, 4 to 3, and Portland noosed out Los Angeles, 8 to 5.
