

ACTION TO SWELL TOURIST BUSINESS URGED BY SNELL

...easily aroused by citing the broadcasting of brief statements last year on Oregon attractions over a Call of Oregon radio station. As a result of this meager advertising, he stated, the secretary of state's office received thousands of inquiries about scenic and resort attractions and business and agricultural possibilities in Oregon.

Portrays Resources
"We have great opportunities, for nature has been generous to Oregon," Mr. Snell said. "We have gorgeous snow-capped mountains, pastoral valleys, forests filled with wild life, streams abounding in fish, lakes so beautiful as to stir the imagination, the marvel of them all, Crater Lake, being in southern Oregon, beaches on which the glorious sun casts its last radiant glow before sinking behind the placid waters of the great Pacific ocean."

"We have the scenic resources as well as great productivity. Oregon is a land of romance and glamor. Oregon beckons today with an allurements just as strong as that which urged onward that sturdy band of pioneers who trekked across the country in covered wagons."

Mr. Snell cited statistics showing the increase in auto travel and in the number of tourists coming to Oregon. Last year, he said, the motor vehicle department issued more license plates and collected more gasoline revenue than ever before in its history. The number of new cars sold and registered in 1936 was the highest in the history of the state, Oregon being second in the country on a percentage basis, he related.

New Record Set
Last year also set a new high record in the number of non-resident cars being registered, Mr. Snell stated. There was a 49 per cent increase over registrations for 1935, which was the highest year since the 1929 peak, he told his audience. In the rush season, he added, the motor vehicle department, part of the secretary of state's office, receives as many as 10,000 letters a day from potential visitors.

Mr. Snell briefly sketched the work of the secretary of state's office, telling of its ramifications and vast administrative duties. He explained the work of some of the departments over which the secretary of state has jurisdiction and the numerous boards of which the secretary of state is an ex-officio member.

For her musical program Miss Gates presented Frederick Guetzlaff in vocal solos, accompanied by his mother; Miss Virginia Loomis, state high school saxophone champion, in saxophone solos, accompanied by Mrs. Steve Whipple; Miss Gates herself sang two solos; Miss Chloe Eilenburg being her accompanist. Motion pictures showing construction of the San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge were presented after the banquet by E. F. Peterson and A. Walker of Portland.

Guests Introduced
About 125 persons attended the banquet. Guests introduced included Mrs. Earl Snell, Mayor George W. Porter, Mayor James Slover of Grants Pass and Mrs. Slover; Henry Semon of Klamath Falls, state representative; Frank J. Van Dyke, president of the Ashland Chamber of Commerce, and Mrs. Van Dyke; Mrs. Marcial Stansbury, secretary of the Ashland chamber, and her husband, Phil Stansbury; George Riddle, president of the Grants Pass Chamber of Commerce; J. R. Harvey, secretary of the Grants Pass chamber; Percy Murray, president of the Klamath County Chamber of Commerce, and E. C. Reynolds, secretary of the Ashland chamber.

too chicken-hearted," interjected Edward.

"Yes! I'm chicken-hearted," agreed the younger boy. "But I'm going to be something!"

"What do you think of Lindbergh?" an inquirer asked Robert Edward.

"I don't think much of Lindbergh. He couldn't have flown across the ocean if the Wright brothers hadn't invented the airplane. They did more!"

"When you kids were out in the brush, did you get scared at night?" replied the boys together.

"There is not a bear in that country, and coyotes won't hurt you," assured Robert Edward.

"What did you have to eat?" was asked.

"We ate a pig, chickens, lots of eggs and a pigeon, and Mr. Wickie's rooster," the older boy answered. "We wouldn't have shot Mr. Wickie's hens if we had known they were setting. We are sorry we did it. I killed the little pig and butchered it. It was good and lasted two days. We gathered the eggs in the afternoon. If we had waited till dark they would have been gathered."

"I never told Mr. Moore I wouldn't be taken alive," Robert declared.

"We never saw anybody, but people say they saw us. We fooled around all day and slept at night."

"What will the girls at school think about the way you acted?" was asked.

"They can think anything they want to. I don't care about girls!" both boys agreed.

"Do you think you are a Huckleberry Finn?" the older boy asked.

"Huck was okay, but I like Tom Sawyer best. My favorite 'big book' is 'Lorna Doone.' (People who have read 'Lorna Doone' say it is the size of 'Anthony Adverse' and a man-sized job to read). I like to read, and have read a lot of books. I don't care what it is, just so it's reading."

"It was quite a stunt you boys pulled, staying out the way you did," was remarked.

"This caused the younger lad to smile, and the older boy said: 'O prooey!' the favorite phrase of both."

"Have you anything to tell the public?" they were asked.

"Tell 'em we are going to be good boys and go to school, and not to worry," replied Edward.

It is agreed about the court house that if the lads are given an even break the public won't have to worry about them.

DEEP BUDGET CUT IS ADVOCATED BY MINORITY LEADER

percent," he added, "to transfer the out from one bureau to another inside their department, provided it did not affect the total cut for the department."

F. R. Attitude Unknown President Roosevelt's attitude toward this drastic economy program was not disclosed, but the chief executive told reporters recently that congress might be asked to give him authority to withhold part of the money appropriated to government units.

Some congressmen said Byrnes' proposal was broached at the White House budget conference Monday night without any indication of opposition from the chief executive.

The first powerful voice outside congress raised against the president's economy plea was that of the American farm bureau federation, often an agricultural ally of the administration.

"We are for economy," said President Edward A. O'Neal, "but we are not for an economy that will paralyze agriculture."

Referring to Secretary Wallace's hint that the "ever-normal granary" and other new farm measures might be shelved because of the president's wish for economy, O'Neal said the storage system, commodity loans and a measure of production control were necessary to a stable price structure.

Economy sentiment was apparent in house discussions today of a $927,000,000 appropriation for running the agriculture department next year.

"They can think anything they want to. I don't care about girls!" both boys agreed.

"Do you think you are a Huckleberry Finn?" the older boy asked.

A True Beverage

A fine beer, such as Alt Heidelberg, is a tonic for tired bodies and jaded nerves.

Cheering, invigorating, it is an ideal beverage at meal time, before retiring, when friends drop in.

And, truly, we believe it is the most appealing to eye and palate of all the beverages. There is beauty in its creamy white foam and sparkling, brilliant amber body. There is joy, refreshment, and health in its full-bodied, lip-smacking taste.

Keep it in the home. It's so downright good . . . and so good for you!
