Packages of free seeds at the public library are available to anyone interested. Club heads announce they may be found on the Garden Center table near the door.

Plans for members only are ready for distribution and Mrs. C. L. Goff, in charge of the project, requests those who have not procured theirs call at her home, 410 Beatty street, in the near future.

GLEEMEN GIVEN HEARTY ACCLAIM BY LARGE CROWD

Repeated demands for encore from a capacity audience evidenced approval of the joint concert of the Medford Gleemen and the Klamath Falls Kiwanis Civic chorus presented at the high school last night.

James Stevens directs both choruses, with Sebastian Apollo as assistant director and accompanist. Assisting artists were Miss Jacqueline McKee, outstanding young soprano from Klamath Falls; George Peckham, bass; Mrs. Earl Clanshan, accompanist; and P. Wilson Wait, trumpeter.

The appearance of Miss McKee was of special interest. Although only 14 years of age, she performed difficult numbers with ease and her remarkable range and quality brought extensive applause from an enthusiastic audience. Miss McKee, a pupil of James, started her training only a short time ago and her progress and development are considered by musicians as outstanding.

Also called back for encores was George Peckham, who has been a popular artist here for some time, has been singing for radio for the past several months in Seattle and other cities and is gaining much attention.

Gleemen concerts have always found much favor with Medford people and their combination with the Klamath Falls group proved highly successful. Numbers presented ranged from the Soldier's chorus from "Faust" to the current popular song, "When My Dream Boat Comes Home."

Several numbers by the chorus were so well-liked that frequent repetitions were necessary, the singers good-naturedly obliging a demanding audience. The event was among outstanding happenings of local observance of national music week and only praise was heard from last night's audience.

The program was as follows:

- Barter — McFarlane
- Dearest Believe (Caro Mio Ben) — Giordani
- By the Bend of the River — Clara Edwards
- Soldier's Chorus from "Faust" — Gounod
- Chorus — Gounod
- The Armourer's Song from "Robin Hood" — DeKoven
- Brothers of Romney — Gregory Stone
- George Peckham
- Almus Pruitt, Accompanist
- Danny Boy (Old Irish Air) — Arr. Salter
- Heideberg from "Prince of Pilsen" — Luder
- Song of the Vagabonds — Primi
- Italian Street Song from "Naughty Marietta" — Herbert
- Jacqueline McKee and Chorus
- Landslighting — Grieg
- Trees — Raebach
- Lady What a Lonesome Day — McRae

PHOENIX GRAVEL PIT BOUGHT BY COUNTY

Jackson county has purchased 38 acres of land in the Louis Colver place, just outside the southern city limits of Phoenix, for $2300. The acreage comprises 23 acres of gravel and sand, to be used as a county gravel pit, and 15 acres of farm, the county expects to sell the farm land.

The gravel and sand deposit is centrally located for county road purposes and to procure it is necessary to buy adjacent land. The gravel and sand will be used in road work. It was also cheaper to purchase the gravel bed outright, than on a footage basis, county officials said.

ACCUSED SLAYER NEURITIS VICTIM

W. G. Fields, 62, of Jacksonville, held in the county jail awaiting trial on a second degree murder charge, for the killing of M. M. Mow, Ashland laborer, February 6, is suffering from neuritis in hips and legs, the sheriff reported today. Hospital treatment was administered and after a week he was returned to the county jail, where he now receives medical treatment from the county physician.

Date of Fields' trial has not been set, but is expected to be about the middle of June. Fields admits firing the fatal shot, but claims he acted in self-defense. The tragedy occurred in the home of Fields' estranged wife in Jacksonville. Bad blood had existed between the two men for months, over Mow's attentions to Fields' wife, officers say.
