5,000 WOMEN, CHILDREN FLEE BILBAO

News Behind The News
By PAUL MALLON.
(Copyright, 1937, by Paul Mallon)
WASHINGTON, May 6.—Young James Roosevelt failed to get headlines throughout the country on his recent Boston speech, but, if his words reflected the serious thoughts of his father, extra editions should have been issued.

He more than surprised a large gathering in that city by declaring that the problem of creating jobs in private industry was one to be solved by the states and not the federal government. "Whose problem is this creation of jobs?" he asked. "Is it the business of the federal government, or is it the business of Massachusetts? I am convinced it belongs to the commonwealth. The time has come when states must pull in harness with Washington instead of always being second in the tandem, with all the pull being borne up front. And these problems are, by their nature, things that can best be accomplished by the states."

One Boston paper said son James spoke as administrative assistant to his father. In its account of his speech, this parenthetical notation was made: "Regarded by many as the unofficial pronouncement of the national administration," James used the first pronoun "I" pretty generally. His "we" hooked him so closely to Massachusetts that he was asked if he intended to seek office. His answer was: "I'm not saying now."

At the capital more than one senator sent for a copy of the address. It was felt that Mr. R.'s own would not go before such a gathering—the speech was delivered at a testimonial banquet to Boston's poet, master Peter F. Tague—and utter such thoughts without presidential sanction. Special significance was attached to these words of James regarding the need for relief funds: "To use the lawyer's words, 'The burden of proof' must be shifted from Washington to Massachusetts, to Boston and Worcester, to Lynn and North Adams."

Few know it, but back of those words is this story. At one of the White House budget balancing conferences, preceding Mr. R.'s departure for tarpon waters, the president is reported to have complained of the

BRITISH WARSHIPS GUARD EVACUATION OF BESIEGED CITY

Air Raiders Bomb Basque Capital As Refugees Leave Shore—Barcelona Rebellion Held Unquelled

By the Associated Press.
Five thousand weary women and children led a mass evacuation from besieged Bilbao today under the protecting guns of British warships.

Two Spanish steamers bore refugees, many of them orphans, through the Bay of Biscay toward France just as insurgent air raiders launched bombardments against the Basque capital.

A "civil war within the civil war" was reported unquelled in Barcelona, on the eastern coast, where rebellious anarchists waged hostilities against the Valencia Spanish government and local autonomous regime.

Border advice said roving anarchist gangs in armored cars were carrying on street fighting despite earlier reports of a truce.

Official Valencia reports, issued after two columns of troops had been ordered to the embattled city in which a death toll of more than 100 still was rising, said the strife was being brought under control by Gen. Sebastian Yague, named by the main government at Valencia to take command.

The Spanish embassy in Paris charged an insurgent espionage ring fomented the revolt after gaining access to syndicalist, government-supporting ranks "for subversive purposes."

Dark Hollow Boys Forget Promises

Robert Edward Harris, 14, and his brother, David LeRoy Harris, ten, Tarzan transients of the Dark Hollow district, after ten days of school, forgot their promises "to stay home, and be good boys" Tuesday morning, and again roam the hills in the bright sunshine, the state police reported today.

Three cabins in the Sterling divide district have been entered since the second disappearance of the kids, and a knife found near a hen house, and identified by their school teacher as belonging to the boys, circumstantially point to the Harris brothers as the offenders.

From a group of cabins at the Manikin and Bell mine, a rifle, a pound of tobacco, a wedding ring, a can of coffee, a quart of wine, and several cans of condensed milk were taken, according to reports to the state police. At one of the homes, half of a pie was eaten.

Red Cross workers, who have been keeping a watchful eye over the boys, blamed youthful wanderlust for their present truancy, and a "desire to be roaming again."

WEDDING GIFTS WATCHED CLOSE TO AVOID BOMBS

Loss of Weight May Cause Duke to Make Shopping Trip for New Clothes—Honeymoon Plans Not Set

By LOUIS MATHOLD
MONTS, France, May 6.—(AP)—Special precautions were taken today to safeguard the Duke of Windsor and Wallis Warfield Simpson from the possibility of receiving a bomb disguised as a wedding gift.

Police kept close watch of all packages addressed to the Chateau de Candie, where Windsor and his bride-to-be are reunited, and none is delivered that Mrs. Simpson is not sure of.

She inspects them carefully and if the sender's return address is not familiar she instructs that they be returned unopened.

Windsor, narrowing waist line in the five months of his athletic exile in Austria has created two problems for the household, bustling with activity for the still secret—or undecided—day when Edward will marry the woman for whom he gave up an empire.

Edward shrinks. Sources close to the former sovereign said he was contemplating a quick shopping trip to Paris to replenish his wardrobe. His newly-acquired slenderness, they said, is the main reason that he can no longer wear many of the suits he brought with him from England.

The shopping expedition would be an economy trip, nevertheless, because the duke still is insistent that he keep his clothes expenses down. It is decided definitely to go to Paris, it was believed he would delay the trip until after the coronation of George VI next Wednesday.

JURY DISMISSED IN DEADLOCK ON DENHARDT GUILT

Long Deliberation Fails to Produce Verdict in Trial of Former Army Man Accused of Slaying Fiancee

NEW CASTLE, Ky., May 6.—(AP)—The jury trying Brig. Gen. Henry H. Denhardt was discharged in circuit court today after failing to decide since 5:25 p. m. Tuesday whether or not the bald, portly ex-lieutenant governor shot to death his fiancee, Mrs. Verma Carr Taylor.

The jurors, eleven farmers and a filling station operator, reported they had stood seven for acquittal and five for conviction. Each juror was polled and each confirmed the deadlock.

Judge Charles C. Marshall thanked them for their "careful" attention throughout the 14 days of testimony and arguments. He asked each juror not to disclose how the other individuals had voted because, he explained, "this case will have to be tried over again."

The 61-year-old defendant, pale and unshaven, listened intently as each juror said that in his opinion there was no chance to agree on a verdict.

Mrs. Taylor, an attractive widow who supported herself and two daughters, Mrs. Mary Victor Brown and Miss Frances Taylor, by operating a laundry, was found shot to death on a roadside November 6. She had been riding with General Denhardt, he reported she had left the automobile when it stalled and he went to look for a telephone.

Her body was found about 800 yards from the farm home of George Baker, who said he heard two shots. The woman had been shot once thru the heart. Denhardt's army revolver lay nearby.

For the past 13 years there have been many rumors circulated, innumerable threats against me and now comes practically a formal charge by my own daughter, Mrs. Margaret Shelby Fillmore, to the effect I withheld important facts and she assisted me in withholding them from the authorities.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., May 6.—(AP)—As leaders of the motion picture strike pressed forward plans for picketing the nation's movie houses, labor leaders met today to draft a new proposal for ending the walkout.

A first plan proffered by the Los Angeles central labor council, providing that strikers return to work without prejudice and that the striking unions negotiate regarding wages and working conditions, was accepted by the film producers and spurned by the workers.

So the executive committee of the council began to draft another plan. "The next move is up to the strike leaders," said Pat Casey, labor representative of the producers. "We are standing pat," replied Charles Lesing, head of the striking independent motion picture craft. "It is up to the producers to recognize our demand. They must come to us."
