Bowmers to Return Early Next Month

Of interest to friends in the valley is word from Mr. and Mrs. Angus L. Bowmer, who recently arrived back in the United States after an extensive stay abroad.

The Bowmers are now visiting in Washington, D. C., and other eastern points en route to their home in Ashland. They are driving home and expect to arrive early in June. They plan visits to all little theatres of note on their route and are making a leisurely trip west.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowmer were instigators of the Shakespearean theatre in Ashland which will have its third season of production this summer. They plan to start work on the dramatic presentation immediately upon their arrival here.

The Shakespearean festival has aroused widespread interest on its two previous productions.

Interest Centers On Coronation

Despite the thousands of miles separating them from London, local residents are no less interested in coronation proceedings than the rest of the world, which will center attention on England tomorrow.

Through radio and printed accounts, everyone may participate in the vast ceremony, one of the most elaborate celebrations of the present century. Effects of the coming crowning and its attendant lavish spectacle have been seen in the most everyday lives for weeks and the climax tomorrow will find many enjoying frequent sessions at the radio.

WILL DISCONTINUE WATCH FOR FROST ON FIRST OF JUNE

Officially the frost danger period for pears and other fruits of the Rogue River valley will not be over until June 1, County Horticulturist A. B. Coody said today. "There have been three frosts after May 15—one as late as May 27th," he stated. "Of course, every day lessens the danger."

Roy J. Rogers, frost expert stationed here said his assignment was until June 1.

The current season has seen the lightest smudging in several seasons, with only three light smudgings, and no general lighting. Present weather conditions are favorable for orchards and other crops.

Olen Arnsperger, general manager of the irrigation districts, said the run-off had just started at Fish lake, three weeks to a month later than usual. A foot of snow was reported on the ground. The road to Fish lake is open.

Arnsperger said it looked like there would be no general use of irrigation before the middle of June. Heretofore, irrigation has started about April 15, and in one year, in March.

Some short root crops like strawberries, and other garden stuff, are now being irrigated. A few days of sun and wind dry out the top soil fast, though there is plenty of wetness below.

HOSPITALS HONOR NURSE TOMORROW WITH OPEN HOUSE

Hospitals throughout the nation will open their doors tomorrow to public inspection in observance of "National Hospital Day" which commemorates the birthday of Florence Nightingale.

The day has been set aside by hospitals throughout the United States and Canada as well as the rest of the world to join together in having open house to encourage the public to know hospitals better.

It is believed that too few people are acquainted with the service of a modern hospital, a service represented by more than half a million men and women, including the hospital trustees, medical staff and personnel. Hospital authorities point out that this staff of workers fights for health and happiness 24 hours a day every day.

On May 12, 1820, Florence Nightingale was born. She is immortal for her contribution to the elevation and development of nursing but her work for the improvement of hospitals is considered just as important. For this reason, when a "day" for hospitals was suggested there was universal approval of selection of May 12, since this date honors a person outstanding in the annals of hospital management as well as a person to whom every nurse pays deserved tribute.

The Oregon tuberculosis hospital in Salem will hold open house with the new nurses' residence open from 2 to 5 and from 7 to 9 o'clock. From 10 to 12 a. m. and from 2:30 to 5 and 7 to 8 p. m., the new hospital floor, opened April 1, will be visited by residents from all sections of the state.

The local Community hospital will observe the day with open house from 2 to 5 p. m., inviting friends to inspect the facilities and service.

State police today were on the lookout for two men who were reported to have stolen four or five gallons of gasoline from the Talent service station, owned by J. W. Spitzer, last night.

Ray Schumacher, proprietor of a grocery store near the service station, told police that he saw the two men from his establishment about 10:30. Apparently they had broken the locks on the pumps. Schumacher told state police he accused the men and informed them he had called the police, whereupon they jumped into their car, thought to be a Studebaker sedan, and drove toward Medford.
