state line job will be open to use this summer, he said, and a start made on the last section from the summit to the line.
Cabeill was accompanied here by Commissioners E. B. Aldrich and F. L. Tou Yelle and by highway department engineers. This afternoon they will visit Ashland and Medford.

Wall St. Report

NEW YORK, May 17.—(AP)—After tottering along at the lowest point in about two years, the stock market was subjected to a last-minute selling burst today and leading issues tumbled 1 to 2 points.
Steeled led the slide, although they began their own earlier in the face of official estimates disclosing a drop of 1 1/2 points in this week's mill operating rate.
The news market-wise was neither particularly good nor bad, but trading forces still seemed to find labor questions a buying handicap.

Simone Simon and James Stewart in Craterian Romance

The honors in "Seventh Heaven"—and there are plenty of them for all concerned—are divided primarily between the tremendously moving picture-romance of this, the tenderest romance of our time, and the fact that in it two young stars emerge to their greatest heights, giving fulfillment to all the advance notices that have lauded the characterizations of Simone Simon and James Stewart in the production which opened yesterday at the New Craterian theater.
Although she has appeared in "Girls' Dormitory" and "Ladies in Love," Simone Simon shows in her role of "Diane" why she has been called the most promising young actress of Hollywood today. From now on, it is to be expected that we shall see this French miss in some other fine picture that will give her the same opportunity for the talent she uncovers in "Seventh Heaven."
But fine as Simone Simon's characterization is, it is nonetheless James Stewart's portrayal of "Chico" that stands out above all others. Why Hollywood province has placed in rather mediocre parts now becomes one of the major mysteries of motion picture. James Stewart is "Chico" in everything, a "very remarkable fellow," as he calls himself in the picture. Naturalness before the camera is a trait that all actors and actresses try to attain, yet so few succeed. But Stewart's characterization is so natural one feels that he is always "Chico," and never James Stewart, actor. It is to be hoped that, from now on, producers will be minded to heed the plaudits of the good sense of the public, and so talented young chap the roles he so richly deserves.
A vivid and picturesque Montmartré of 1914 was created for the film play. In the huge subterranean Paris sewer, Chico spends his working days, working for the pleasure of the girl, first to make him a street washer, and, second, to bring him a fine intelligent wife.
The Chico saves Diane from a beating and also from the guillotine who would seek to arrest her. To do this, he poses as her husband, a fact that the good sense assure him will be checked upon.
Forced to live up to his story, Chico takes Diane to his garret. When war breaks out, he realizes he is in love with the wife he befriended and pledges to return to her in spirit at 11 o'clock every day.
Despite news of Chico's death, Diane continues to keep her faith, a faith that leads to the great emotional climax of the picture.
