Recent Notes On Fashion Trends

NEW YORK. — (AP) — Summer dresses of conservative printed material are combined with wide-brimmed hats in matching print. The hats have no crown and are modeled after bridesmaids' millinery.

Linon sportswear comes forth these warm spring days in combinations of pink and gray. Pink blouses are worn with gray skirts, shorts and slacks. The same shades are carried over into bathing suits.

Mademoiselle's evening gown may now be treated with a water-repellent finish. Consequently, she is prepared for dancing at the seashore, or for an unexpected shower inland. It's a season of stripes. Everything is made of striped materials. Evening gowns, afternoon frocks, blouses, scarfs, bags and right down to shoes—all are striped in gay colors.

ESPEE BOOKLET TO ADVISE TOURIST

As a part of a campaign to attract tourists to this section of the Pacific coast, the Southern Pacific company has just published an elaborate 24-page booklet, "How to See the Pacific Northwest."

Printed in color, the booklet features large illustrations and descriptive material covering Crater Lake, Oregon Caves, Columbia river highway and Mt. Hood, Ranier National park and the beach resorts, fishing, golfing, skiing and other attractions of Oregon, Washington, British Columbia and Alaska.

Many thousands of copies of the publication are being given national distribution by Southern Pacific agents located in principal cities of the east, middle-west and south, according to J. A. Ormandy, general passenger agent, Portland, who says that every indication points to unusually heavy travel to the Pacific coast this year. The new folder ties in with an advertising campaign Southern Pacific is conducting in national magazines and eastern newspapers to attract vacation travel to the Pacific coast.

Pertinent Questions About Roosevelt's Labor Measure

(Editor's Note: Here are answers to pertinent questions about President Roosevelt's new wage and hour legislation now before congress.)

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(AP)—Will the proposed labor standards law affect all workers?

No. Unlike the NRA, which applied even to the individual parts presser, it would not cover purely local concerns or intrastate service trades. Those whose work affects interstate commerce are its main concern.

What guarantees would the bill afford workers to whom it applies? The measure as drafted does not contain specific minimum wages or maximum hours but leaves for congress to determine what "oppressive" wage and hour conditions would be banned. Chairman Connery (D-Mass.) of the house labor committee said he would seek an hourly minimum wage which would produce not less than $16 weekly, regardless of the hours set.

Is there anything to prevent the minimum wage from becoming the maximum? Instead of the flat minima wage of $15 a week in the north and $12 in the south, which most NRA codes sought to achieve, "reasonable" wage and hour standards for specific industries would be set by a five-man board.

What would govern the board in its wage determinations? It would consider the cost of living and other circumstances, wages paid for similar work under collective bargaining, and wages paid for comparable work by employers who maintain fair standards.

How would the legislation affect collective bargaining agreements? The board would safeguard the rights of workers to obtain, singly or collectively, higher wages or shorter hours than those set.

What benefits would employees of industries paying much higher wage rates than the proposed minimum receive? In many cases, sponsors said, they would profit from shortening of their work week, from prohibitions against employers using professional strike breakers or so-called industrial spies and from elimination of sub-standard working conditions.

When will the labor standards become effective? Not until 120 days after enactment. What if an employer does not obey the law? First the board would order him to comply. If he refused, the board could ban his products from interstate shipment and could ask the federal courts to enforce its orders. Violations would be punishable by fines of $500, imprisonment for six months or both.

Does the bill contain fair trade provisions? No. There are no fair trade practice or price-fixing provisions nor any exemptions from the anti-trust laws such as NRA afforded.

Is there any substitute in the bill for the blue eagle? It would ban from interstate commerce products of children under 16 or those between 16 and 18 in occupations which the federal children's bureau deemed too hazardous or unhealthy.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(UP)—Sen. J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, bewhiskered Democratic whip, broke with President Roosevelt on the explosive relief issue last night in a speech demanding abandonment of the Works Progress administration. He urged that the task of aiding the nation's distressed millions be turned back to the states.

Lewis' unexpected attack emphasized the sharp cleavage in Democratic ranks brought about by the new $1,500,000,000 work-relief measure pending in the house.

Seizing upon President Roosevelt's wage-and-hour message in which the chief executive said that "no state is justified in sitting idly by and expecting the federal government to meet state responsibilities," Lewis said the same sentiment holds true in regard to relief spending.

"The time has come for the end of the WPA," he declared. "The government is not a house of charity. We have been making a great error in not informing the states that the United States is not a bureau for the distribution of money."

As Lewis parted with the administration on this issue, house leaders prepared to pass the $1,500,000,000 work-relief bill tomorrow in a form satisfactory to President Roosevelt. All amendments to increase or decrease the appropriation were crushed under the Democratic steam-roller last Friday.

EVANGELIST TAKES GRADUATE FUTURE FOR SERMON TOPIC

Fred M. Weatherford, pastor-evangelist, spoke Sunday morning from the Church of the Nazarene pulpit, using as his topic "The Graduate with a Future." His text was taken from 2nd Timothy 4:6-7. "I am now ready . . . I have finished my course." In brief, the speaker said:

"You graduates have come to the goal of your ambition, when diplomas are awarded you for your scholastic achievement. You are now ready for service, or for higher learning."

"Today the world is placing about your necks garlands of tribute for your victories. You are being greeted with mementos of honor that bespeak the esteem with which this occasion crowns your efforts. You have been trained for leadership, the qualifications therefor are definite and well defined. They are framed in these words—righteousness, integrity, training, courage, and loyalty. Without these pillars the temple of life cannot be successfully erected. The elimination of one will weaken, not to say destroy the edifice. Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people."

"There is not the faintest shadow of doubt concerning the integrity of him who is bent on a successful career. It is a betrayal to assume that one can do wrong without personal injury. You cannot be dishonest and avoid the future marks of treachery. You cannot be impure and efface the stains of dishonour. You cannot be untruthful and long conceal a violated conscience. 'Whatever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.' 'Beware of the veneer of life. Vanity is the false thoroughfare that betrays innocence. It is the open road to hypocrisy and to the sale of integrity."

"Let it be remembered that no religious, social or economic movement can succeed without loyal co-workers. The individual as a separate entity of society cannot hope for success. Keep always in mind the ideal of loyalty. Loyalty to self, and to principles; to associates, and to the cause to which you yield your talents."

"May I urge upon you to capitalize upon your opportunities. Opportunity is the word which today is whispered in every breeze that blows across your path. It is the sunrise to greet the dawn of your arrival. Let it not be forgotten however, that training is indispensable to the pursuit of achievement, and to know where you are going demands courage and hard work to arrive.

"There is scarcely a field left that has not been entered, but none of these fields have been exhausted, either in research, extension or perfection."

"One of the greatest opportunities presenting itself to you who have finished your academic course, is that of building a new humanity. The statistics of a year ago reveal that there were an estimated total of one million four hundred forty-five thousand, five hundred eighty-one major crimes committed in the United States, according to the figures of Hon. J. Edgar Hoover, director Federal Bureau of Investigation. This means that one of 84 persons in the United States was subjected to injury or death through this iniquitous crime regime."

"In conclusion let me say, that despite the handicap that besets your pathway, you are stepping across the threshold into avenues commercially, socially and industrially which have been made easy for you by hands which have previously wrought."

Commander Joe Flegel urges all members to be present next Tuesday to register their choice for post executives. A special entertainment program is being arranged for the meeting.
