HUMANE SOCIETY SCORES IN COOS

Jackson County Humane society has won a victory in its campaign for more humane treatment of dogs in Coquille. It was shown by newspaper clippings received today from the Coos county city.

The humane society, with headquarters here, has jurisdiction in five southern Oregon counties, including Coos. Recently Mr. and Mrs. Sid W. Richardson, head of S. P. C. A. activities here, went to Coquille to address a meeting of the city council summoned especially to hear them.

The only complaint Mr. and Mrs. Richardson made concerned the small, dark, unventilated quarters in which dogs were impounded. After hearing Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, the council examined the quarters, found them undesirable, ordered the humane death of the five dogs impounded and took steps to find a more suitable place for the impounding of the animals. Meantime further use of the quarters was prohibited.

Selection of a new place for the dog pound and consideration of a more humane method of handling the animals will be taken up by the council at a regular meeting on June 7.

urgent request has been made by the chamber to all those who have delayed sending in their cards to do so at once so that the contact committee may be saved unnecessary work.

For years it has been the problem of those active in the affairs of the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce to secure sufficient membership and to raise the necessary money to carry on the program of making this community more outstanding and more prosperous. Busy men have given their time and money in an effort to make the voice of this community heard above that of other communities. In addition they have been placed in the position of having to assume the responsibility for membership and money to carry on the work. The Jackson County Chamber of Commerce can well point with pride to a long list of activities which have brought money and credit to this community.

"We believe that we are asking too much of our active members to burden them with the entire responsibility of financing our program when the benefits are so wide spread. This is the Chamber of Commerce of all those engaged in business in Jackson county, deriving the profits from
