Students Arrive For Vacation Time

Attention this week will center on the return of Medford students to their homes here following the closing of schools and colleges along the coast.

Seniors are to receive degrees at commencement exercises today in most schools and this week will see the close of studies for the year in almost all institutions.

Among those expected home is Edward Reames, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Reames, who will arrive tomorrow from the University of Oregon.

The campus exercises have attracted many bodies parents of graduates and a number will attend the impressive services.

Bridal Finery More Elaborate
New York.—(AP)—This year's bride will trail down the aisle in more finery than for many seasons.

Real lace is finding an open market for the first time in nearly a dozen seasons. It is being used widely in bridal veils and in wedding gowns.

Bridal parties, too, are larger and are dressed more elaborately. Where once two bridesmaids and perhaps a maid of honor were included in the bridal party, groups of six and even eight bridesmaids are now in order.

This year's bride is selecting an all-white wedding gown—in contrast to the off-white and cream shades of a year ago. It comes in a variety of styles and a variety of materials.

One of the newest bridal gowns designed by Leonora Ormsby—it has short-sleeved bridesmaids' dresses to match—is of all-white starched chiffon with graduated satin stripes. The skirt is cut in gores in which the stripes meet in zigzag bias effect.

The neck is heart-shaped and low and the sleeves are long and slightly puffed. With it is worn a cap of the same material and a long silk net veil.

Schlaparelli uses the traditional white satin in a long-sleeved, high-necked dress cut on princess lines. She also places a group of tiny birds in the coiffure of the bride who wears it.

Mr. and Mrs. Reames left Wednesday and met friends in the bay city, viewing the varied attractions offered visitors. They bring reports of huge crowds which entered into a festival spirit prevailing throughout the city.

Street and shop decorations, parades and pageants are said to have surpassed the famed Mardi Gras of New Orleans.

Renewal Blanks At Mail Tribune

Blanks for the renewal of automobile operator licenses may now be procured at the Mail Tribune office in addition to city and state police headquarters, the sheriff's office and the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce.

All operator licenses expire on June 30 and it was emphasized in a notice received from the secretary of state's office today that only a short time remains for renewal.

The renewal applications, with the $1 license fee enclosed, may be mailed directly to the secretary of state's office at Salem or left with Ward McReynolds, state examiner, at Medford city hall when he is here Saturdays.

It is not necessary for applicants to appear for examination if they hold valid Oregon licenses, have not reached 70 years of age nor suffered any physical disability.

WESTERN SOLONS SPLIT ON POWER AUTHORITY PLAN

WASHINGTON, May 31.—(AP)—Pacific northwest senators are divided on the value of a proposed plan of Senator George Norris of Nebraska to apply the principle of the Tennessee valley authority to the entire nation.

The expected proposal looks to regional planning in respect to the development of navigation, irrigation, flood control, erosion control and power. The country would be divided into seven or eight areas of which the Pacific northwest—the Columbia river basin—would be one.

Senator Frederick Steiwer of Oregon asserted he would "give consideration to the Norris plan, but advised I am against application of the TVA principle to the Pacific northwest."

Senator Charles McNary of Oregon declined to comment.

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho said "leave Idaho out of it."

"We want to own and manage our own natural resources—they belong to us," he asserted.

LEVERETTE WILL BUILD NEW $50,000 ASHLAND THEATER

A $50,000 cinema theater will be constructed in Ashland by Walter H. Leverette for occupancy before the end of the year.

Mr. Leverette's lease on the Lithia theater which he operates, will expire in December. Harry B. Hurst, owner of the Lithia theater, was quoted as saying that tentative arrangements had been made for use of his theater but that he could not make them public at present.

Recently articles of incorporation of the Ashland Amusement Co. were filed in the Jackson county clerk's office by a Portland law firm which is said to represent a west coast theater chain.

Whether this has any bearing on the Ashland theatrical situation could not be ascertained. The Lithia at present is the only cinema theater in Ashland.

Mr. Leverette will build his theater on land he bought last fall between Fortmiller's department store and Jordan's electric company. The property has a frontage of 54 feet and a depth of 150 feet.

The theater will have a 50-foot frontage, a depth of 140 feet and a seating capacity of about 700, according to present plans. The most modern of theater equipment and facilities will be combined with the latest architectural design in playhouse construction, the plans show.

Specifications call for a foyer of 20 by 25 feet, the remainder of the frontage to be devoted to stores. Exit plans have not yet been completed but it is understood they will be worked out in time to permit the beginning of construction within a fortnight.

Mr. Leverette said he plans to call his theater the New Lithia to associate it with the nearby Lithia Springs hotel which he purchased recently.

Robert Taylor Has Lead At Craterian

"This Is My Affair," the north-west premiere of which opened a three-day run yesterday at the New Craterian theatre, has much to interest the theatre-goer. It has an exceptionally fine cast, a story based on actual facts, thrills, drama, romance, a bit of music, plenty of action to keep things moving, with a dash of comedy thrown in for good measure.

Not many people ever heard of Lieutenant Richard L. Perry. Unlike President McKinley's other trusted confidant, Lieutenant Rowan, whose message to Garcia was immortalized by Elbert Hubbard, Perry had nobody to recount his story. Yet he was an actual character, who rendered his country a great service, whose fame until now has been confined to a gravestone in Arlington Park cemetery. His story, as told in "This Is My Affair," is a graphic demonstration that undercover secret service operations and bandits in 1901 were of pretty much the same ilk as their present day descendants.

In that year a wave of bank robberies sweeps the Midwest. President McKinley assigns Lieutenant Perry to gain their confidence, become their partner and furnish the information that will lead to their elimination. This is Robert Taylor's role—and he plays it very well indeed, marking another rung in his ladder of fame. He falls in love with a cafe entertainer, Barbara Stanwyck, sister of the brains of the gang, and thus becomes involved in continual conflict with swaggering gorilla "Jack Ramsay," perfectly portrayed by Victor McLaglen. He helps them crack a bank but has tipped off the officers in advance. The leader is killed but Perry and Ramsay are captured. Before Perry can get a secret message through to the president, McKinley is assassinated, leaving a situation that would be spoiled to avenge the consequences.

Several other entertainment features have been planned for the fun season following the business meeting at which officers for the new year will be nominated. Mr. Bromley said, "A Dutch lunch will conclude the evening's program, he added."

J. P. Pflieger, post commander, has issued a special invitation to out-of-town Legionnaires to attend.
