27 CARLOADS OF GLAD BULBS SENT EAST PAST YEAR

Twenty-seven full carloads of gladioli bulbs were shipped from Jackson and Josephine counties last year, Frank Reum, commercial grower, told the Kiwanis club at its weekly luncheon-meeting in the Hotel Medford this afternoon.

A carload contains as many as 350,000 to 400,000 No. 1 bulbs, the smaller bulbs running as high as a million or more to a car, Mr. Reum said. From the Rogue valley last year, he stated, went 1,800,000 gladioli bulbs of one variety to Florida where development was hastened for the New York market.

Inspection of the bulbs is exceedingly rigid, Mr. Reum stated. All the bulbs he related, are fumigated and shipped with their inspection tags.

Gladioli growers move their operations from field to field each year because of the impossibility of gathering all the small bulbs, the speaker explained. The growing of gladioli is beneficial to the soil, he declared.

The Kiwanis club voted today to build a portable tuberculosis cottage for use by the Jackson county health department.

SEPARATE TARZAN BOYS FOR SUMMER

The Tarzan boys of Dark Hollow have been separated for the summer, Sheriff Syd I. Brown reported today.

Robert Edward Harris, 14, has been sent to his father in Clackamas county, where he will be on a farm. David LeRoy, 10, remains with his mother and step-father on a Grifflin creek district ranch.

Last spring the two brothers, dissatisfied with home conditions, rammed the brush for two weeks, while the sheriff was trying to catch them. They were finally rounded up one night as they set by their campfire.

The two lads "lived on the country" and robbed hen houses of eggs and chickens. They later pulled weeds in a garden to recompense the chicken owner.

A week later in response to a dare of schoolmates, they left home for three days.

The sheriff said the separation of the brothers was recommended by a welfare agency to produce a new environment for the older boy and to keep the younger boy away from his influence.
