

HEALTH SERVICE EYES SANITATION RURAL SECTIONS

School Water Supplies, Private Homes, Camps Sampled for Purity; Many Nuisances Abated in Survey

A recent report from the Jackson county health unit, headed by Dr. C. I. Drummond, county health officer, lists recent and current activities of the department in efforts to remove or correct sources of infection or pollution in sanitary facilities in the county.

A survey of all schools in the county was made in October and November of the past year, covering washing facilities and drinking water. All wells and springs of the schools showing any pollution are now being chlorinated, the report states. It was pointed out that the majority of schools not having flush toilets now have sanitary fly-proof pit toilets installed by WPA. All schools are required to furnish paper towels and soap to pupils.

About 300 water samples have been taken from various sections of the county from schools, camps and private homes, Dr. Drummond stated. Analyses are sent to each party and, if the water is shown to be polluted, instructions for purification are added. Instructions on the construction of septic tanks, grease pits, waste water drains, etc., is given out, together with directions for installation.

Every camp in Jackson county catering to tourist trade is subjected to rigid inspection before being issued a license, the report said. Cabins must be constructed according to state regulations, including clean, covered mattresses, good water supply, flush toilets with concrete floors and a clean camp at all times. Rechecks are made at various times during the summer when tourist travel is heaviest.

A weekly check is made on the water supplies of small towns in the county, such as Gold Hill, Jacksonville, Central Point and similar communities. Swimming pools in the county also are checked weekly. The water must comply with state regulations.

The sanitary service has succeeded in abating many nuisances such as dirty premises, indiscriminate burying of dead animals, open drainage of septic tanks, dirty hog and chicken pens, etc., the report concluded.

Mount Shasta To Celebrate Fourth With Big Program

Phil Harris and his famous 17-piece dance orchestra will feature the huge Fourth of July celebration at Mount Shasta, Cal., July 3, 4 and 5, according to word received from the celebration committee in that city.

Other attractions on the three-day program are amateur boxing bouts with the cream of northern California sluggers taking part; a baseball tournament between Mount Shasta and the Weed Sons of Italy, both of the Northern California league, to be played on a winner-take-all basis, a state-wide trapshoot on the morning of July 4, and an amateur track and field meet under the direction of Carl Jorgensen, coach at Mount Shasta high school.

A grand display of fireworks will end the festivities on the night of July 5.

Evangelist Gandy Draws Throngs In Nazarene Service

The Gandy evangelistic party conducted three climatic services in the Church of the Nazarene Sunday. They have consistently drawn the largest hearing of any similar campaign in the history of the local church Sunday night they were greeted with another overflow capacity crowd.

The following are some of Rev. Gandy's epigrammatic statements in Sunday's discourses:

"Geologists say we are preparing for a world devastation. Are you keeping pace with the Lord's prophetic procession?"

"Only one thing can stop the power of God, that is the people of God. May we step on the positive side of God's power plant and be saved."

"Fifty-six thousand lives were sacrificed to the god of speed last year; multiplied thousands have succumbed to the god of drink."

"Moral conditions today approximate the wickedness that witnessed the destruction before the flood and before the rain of destruction on Sodom."

The evangelistic party will be heard each night at the local Church of the Nazarene, Central avenue at Jackson.

GENERAL FRANCO DIFFERS VASTLY FROM DICTATORS

Spanish Insurgent Leader Cool of Nerve—Writes of Spain, Not of Self—En- joyed Rapid Rise in Army

(Editor's note: Who is Franco? How does he measure up to his ambitions? Would he be another Mussolini? Another Hitler? Here an Associated Press staff member tells of Franco, the man.)

By Charles S. Foltz, Jr.
SALAMANCA, Spain—(AP)—Insurgent Spain's Gen. Francisco Franco Bahamonde—Short like Mussolini, moustache-adorned like Hitler, but vastly different from either of them. He is "El Caudillo"—(the chief). Franco dials ceremonies; but he has no ivory tower.

The generalissimo is a well-built and muscular man with black hair greying slightly at the temples. He is 45, younger than most of his general and cabinet heads.

Real Spaniard
His forehead is broad, his eyes large and black, and his lips generally parted slightly and quick to smile. His carriage is straight and soldierly. His face is oval and his skin dark. He is a "real Spaniard."

Franco, icy cool, appears able to relax easily. The morning after he issued the decree creating his State party and dissolving all but two others, he was out in his garden bouncing a ball with his daughter.

What his followers like to point to is that Franco seldom writes or talks of "I." The word that occurs most frequently in his writings and speeches is the word "España"—Spain.

"I demand" was the curt phrase with which he prefaced his April speech on unification.

Until the insurrection any military men might have envied his career—lieutenant at 20, captain at 23, major at 28, and the youngest colonel in Spain's army at 32.

He suffered an almost fatal stomach wound and won two medals for valor under fire in Spain's bloody campaigns in Morocco.

As a general Franco spent several years as the head of the Zaragoza National Military Academy, until the republican government "exiled" him as military governor to the Balearics.

Exiled to islands
A "center-right" government reinstated him as chief of the general staff of Spain's armies. Again he was yanked out of the highest post in Spain's army when the popular front government came to power. Again he was "exiled," this time to the Canary Islands as military commander.

There, under a cloak of secrecy and with drama surpassed by few events in Spain's dramatic history, Franco dropped his role as a soldier of Madrid and became the leader of the insurgent uprising for a "new Spain."

"I demand the unification of Spain in the name of Spain on the march towards a common objective," the generalissimo broadcast to his "nation" on a mid-April night. Insurgent Spaniards had two answers for such allegiance. One was that all insurgents were at war against a common foe and realized the need for unity.

The other was the personality of Franco himself—the "little man with the big stick."

MCKENZIE PASS OPEN TO TWO-WAY TRAFFIC

SALEM, June 22—(AP)—The McKenzie pass highway was opened to traffic today, the last mountain highway in the state to open.

The highway department reported two-way traffic can be maintained over most of the road, which is rough in several places.

Three miles of construction work is under way six miles east of Prineville and for four miles east of Dayville.

HINDENBURG SKELETON WORTH LITTLE AS JUNK

NEW YORK, June 22—(AP)—The skeleton of the great dirigible Hindenburg, which cost millions to construct, will salvage for only $4,000 to $12,000, A. J. Smith of United Aviation Underwriters, Inc., said today.

The amount realized will be determined by the weight of pure aluminum recovered in melting the alloy. Estimates of the tonnage vary from 25 to 50 tons.

The Hindenburg burned at Lakehurst, May 6, with a loss of 35 lives.

LEGION PLANNING PROGRAM, LUNCH ELECTION NIGHT

Plans were being made today for a gala evening on July 6 when Medford post of the American Legion will hold its annual election in the armory.

The program being mapped out includes special entertainment features and a Dutch lunch after the election. Walter Omscheid has been named by Commander J. F. Fliegel as chairman of the committee in charge.

Membership of Medford post now totals 210, a material increase over the 1936 enrollment. Mr. Fliegel said adding that indications point to an exceptionally successful year ahead. Silver star membership awards were recently received by Lee Garlock, Earl Roy, George Averill, Hugh Ritter and Cole Holmes for their work in building up the enrollment.

Post nominations made during the past two meetings include: Post commander, Dr. C. P. Johnson; James Collier, Cass E. Wymore and C. L. McDonald; first vice-commander, Goodwin Humphreys; George Simpson and Harry Moore; second vice-commander, Bill Rosenbaum and Earl York; adjutant, Lee Garlock; Walter Dunlap, Horace Bromley and George Woods; chaplain, A. J. Anderson; executive committee, Col. W. H. Paine, Orin Schenck, Carl Y. Teugwald, Cole Holmes, Lee Garlock, Elmer Wilson and Capt. O. O. Overmyer.

Withdrawals at last Tuesday's meeting included Dr. C. P. Johnson and James Collier as nominees for commander and Lee Garlock as nominee for adjutant.

CATHOLIC CHILDREN OBEY GERMAN UKASE

MUNICH, Germany, June 22—(AP) Hundreds of thousands of Catholic school children quit their parochial schools all over predominantly-Catholic Bavaria today in obedience to a Nazi government order which dissolved the schools and made them secular institutions.

In Munich and upper Bavaria alone the decree converted 966 confessional schools into secular institutions. Only 100 secular schools had existed heretofore in this area.

Authorities insisted they closed the Catholic schools "with the parents' consent."

OLDEST DOCTOR DIES AT HOME IN PORTLAND

PORTLAND, June 22—(AP)—Dr. James B. Wright, 102 years old, died Sunday at the home of his son here where the veteran of western medicine had made his home since 1920.

Death defeated Dr. Wright's determination to "stick around for at least four more years to help Roosevelt out of a tough hole." Born January 18, 1835, in Virginia in the presidential term of Andrew Jackson, he had maintained allegiance to the democratic party throughout his life.

EASTERN OREGONIANS HAIL PROLONGED RAIN

BAKER, June 22—(AP)—John Day valley and Harney valley farmers hailed the prolonged rains here as assuring satisfactory crops, while Burns people declared the ranges in Harney to be in the best shape in 10 years.

Rain fell every foot of the way between Baker and Burns the past few days.
