LIGHT OF METEOR IS MISTAKEN FOR DISTRESS FLARES

Colorado tomorrow and relief. Thereafter the search was expected to turn southward from Howland.

Hear Carrier Signals The coast guard here again picked up carrier signals at intervals during the night, ending at 6:30 a. m. (P. S. T.) today, but officers said they were unable to read them and were not sure they were from the Earhart plane.

More than 102 planes, 10 ships and 3,000 men were engaged in the wide-spread search. There were 1,299 men aboard the airplane carrier Lexington, 613 on the Colorado, 80 aboard the Itasca and 71 on the Ontario.

The Itasca was instructed to investigate a report from Oakland, Calif., that a radio amateur had picked up "Earhart plane calling Itasca" at 6:35 a. m. (P. S. T.), giving a position as 281 miles north Howland and saying "Cannot hold much longer, drifting southwest."

Despite the severe disappointment, the search will continue today, its center probably shifting southward 500 miles from a point 280 miles north of Howland island to the Phoenix islands.

Search Shifts South Miss Earhart's husband, George Palmer Putnam, however, was so firmly convinced the message was misinterpreted that the San Francisco coast guard radio sent out a message to searching ships of three tonnage asking them to shift their hunt 280 miles southeast of Howland island.

Putnam based his opinion on the inability of his wife's radio to operate when the plane is on the water. The radio batteries were situated under the wing where they would be useless if she alighted on water.

A recent survey estimated that 431,090 donors presented between $50,000.000 and $100,000.000 in outright gifts to higher education in 1936.

Newspaper Strike Due For Long Life

SEATTLE, July 6.—(AP)—Immediate settlement of the American Newspaper Guild strike, which closed the Seattle Star Saturday, appeared more remote today when the guild announced the committee for Industrial Organization had established a strike fund based on the supposition it might last two weeks.

As a strong picket line, composed of goldsmen, longshoremen and other union representatives, surrounded the plant Monday, representatives of the Star management, the guild and Charles W. Hope, regional director of the national labor relations board, met for a series of conferences.

ROBINSON OPENS FIGHT TO CHANGE SUPREME COURT

That conditions "justly, if they do not demand," change in the judicial organization.

Then, after outlining the substitute in brief before crowded galleries and a well-filled senate chamber, Robinson launched into his argument.

Parliamentary maneuvering began immediately upon the making of Robinson's motion to take up the court measure. Under questioning by Senator McNary, Republican leader, Robinson served notice that he would keep the court bill before the senate, if possible, until a decision was obtained.

The Arkansas also served notice that in view of threats from opponents to filibuster, he would not agree to adjourn tomorrow for the all-star baseball game between the American and National leagues.

Under McNary's questioning, Robinson agreed that once the bill was taken up and a substitute approved, the original bill would not be open to amendment.

McNary asked if Robinson planned to continue with the court debate without consideration of other legislation.

Robinson replied that he would not object to consideration of pressing, or necessary legislation, but would reserve full freedom of action in view of the filibuster threats.

"If a filibuster develops as threatened by the opponents of this legislation," the majority leader said, "I shall take the action prompted by the circumstances."

"I shall not commit myself to any course in advance that would aid a filibuster."

"It is my intention to have the senate sit tomorrow. There is no justification for suspending public business under these circumstances to permit members to attend a ball game."
