

SENATE SQUABBLE NEAR DISORDER AS TEMPER RUB THIN

Comment on the Day's News

Logan, returning to his argument, said that by 1936 the supreme court had "reached such a state that no living human being" could anticipate its decisions.

He said he believed "some members of the court, like some members of the senate, believe that anything that comes from President Roosevelt comes from the devil."

These justices, he said, believed that any Roosevelt administration legislation "should be held unconstitutional as a matter of course," and cited the ruling invalidating the agricultural adjustment act.

In response to questions from Burke, Logan said he saw "no difference" between the letter and the spirit of the constitution.

He told Burke he recalled Woodrow Wilson's argument that altering the court's membership would "violate the spirit of the constitution," but contended the late president "overspoke himself quite frequently and he overwrote himself."

BY FRANK JENKINS AN OMINOUS dispatch: "The Japanese army (in Manchoukuo) declared today it had defeated a sizeable detachment of Russian troops in a DAY-LONG battle on the disputed eastern frontier of Manchoukuo and Siberia."

WE CAN'T believe unhesitatingly, of course, that the Japanese did defeat the Russians. We can't believe ANY nation when it resorts to warlike acts, for immediately clamped down and censorship and reliable news just don't go together.

BUT it doesn't matter much who licked whom: The ominous character of the news lies in the fact that Japan and Russia apparently WANT TO FIGHT. It is reported that more than half a million men are under arms in the trouble zone. If that is true, it means that both sides are looking for trouble.

Any nation that is looking for trouble can usually find it and when TWO nations go looking for it at the same time it is practically impossible to KEEP from finding it.

ABD news from the war fronts abroad, but better news from the war fronts at home. Three thousand men go back to work in Cleveland under the protection of national guardsmen. Only a week ago, the governors of Pennsylvania and Ohio were calling out the national guard to PREVENT men from going back to work.

If the time ever comes in this country when we protect the right to strike but DON'T protect the right to work, we shall be in a bad way—not merely some of us, but ALL of us.

THE right to strike must be protected. But the right to work must also be protected. Both are fundamental human rights, and when they come into conflict the law must PROTECT BOTH.

AS THESE words are written (Tuesday evening) the fate of Amelia Earhart remains the world's No. 1 mystery. The mystery is made deeper by strange, weak radio messages wandering in and out of the ether. Do they come from Amelia and her navigator? Is their plane down, perhaps on some speck of land in the wide Pacific, and the radio so damaged that it can hardly whisper? Or are these messages hoaxes, sent out by some amateur with a strangely warped idea of a joke?

WITH Amelia and her companion in danger (if they are still alive) the only thing to do is to use every possible effort to save them. But if they are rescued (or even if they are not) it might be well to consider withholding permission to make such jaunts. It has been proved that man can fly across oceans and even around the earth. It might be well hereafter to confine such expeditions to governments or private organizations that are so strong as to be able to take every possible precaution against disaster.

Tableaux presented by Gertrude Haak were exceptionally nice, due to a beautiful display of flowers on the stage. Lecture hour consisted of an interesting program, in line with the holiday.
