MUCH SIGHTSEEING DONE BY RICKERTS ON NATIONAL TOUR

A motor trip of 6000 miles was written today into the travel log of Dr. J. D. Rickert, Medford optometrist, and Mrs. Rickert. Into those 6000 miles were packed two national conventions, family visits and scenic of the country's outstanding scenic and historical centers.

The Rickerts then dipped into the south where they saw many of the Civil war battlefields and shrines which have studied American history with teeming emotional interest. Through the expansive and world-famous Shenandoah valley motored the Medford couple to Washington, D. C. where Mrs. Rickert attended the national convention of the Daughters of the Nile. There they met others from southern Oregon: Mrs. Charles Wood of Medford and Mr. and Mrs. Tony Franco and Mrs. N. G. Bates of Ashland.

They continued to Lancaster, Pa., where Dr. Rickert visited other old friends from the early days of his employment as a watch maker with the Hamilton and other world-famous companies. They went through the home of President Buchanan with its rich store of antiques. The Rickerts then headed northward, through New York and New England to Providence, R. I. Dr. Rickert went through the Waltham watch factory in Waltham, Mass. where he once worked. The Revolutionary battlefields and historic centers of New England were included in the itinerary and then the Rickerts turned westward, traveling across the center of New York, stopping in Rochester, where Dr. Rickert was conducted through the factory of Bausch & Lomb, manufacturers of fine optical instruments and lenses.
