

UNKNOWN PLANES DROP BOMBS ON BRITISH VESSEL

Ship Reaches Algiers Safely
— Decks Sprayed With Machine Gun Bullets As Crew Attempts Escape

CUENCA, Spain, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Five Spanish insurgent airplanes bombed this government-held city today, killing 12 persons and wounding a score.

Three pursuit ships guarded the bombers during the raid, the first on Cuenca, this eastern front city, since the civil war began.

Government officers said an insurgent drive westward toward Cuenca province had been stopped because of lack of roads to permit quick troop concentrations.

Warplanes of unstated nationality bombed the British tanker British Corporal and the Italian steamer Mongiola today off the coast of Algeria, near war-torn Spain.

The tanker reached Algiers safely, with none of her crew injured. The Italian ship, bombed a few hours later, flashed an SOS telling of the attack. Neither ship was bound for a Spanish port.

The monoplane bombed the tanker from 3:20 a. m. to 4:15 a. m., dropping 40 projectiles. None of them made a direct hit, but the wireless apparatus was damaged by concussion and the tanker was sprayed with airplane.

Then, when the crew tried to take to the boats, the planes sprayed the decks with machine gun fire.

Beyond the SOS, nothing was heard from the Italian ship for several hours.

Both Spanish government and insurgent planes are based within striking distance of the scene of the bombings.

In the war area, insurgent commanders admitted today that a powerful government force, including the rejuvenated Catalan army, virtually has encircled insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco's upper Aragon stronghold, Huesca.

PORTLAND, Aug. 6.—(AP)—The council authorized a new contract today to pay 70 percent of the dog license receipts to the Oregon Humane society for two years. The society asked 75 percent for five years.

endangering the life of the unborn baby.

Hour after hour, two surgeons and nurses waited in an adjoining room in the Philadelphia General hospital—waiting for death to yield life.

Shortly after midnight the end came. Swiftly a nurse summoned the doctors. Instruments had been sterilized in advance. All was in readiness. Yet the surgeons knew they must act quickly. Any delay or difficulty in delivering the post-mortem baby might prove fatal. They had eight minutes, they estimated, in which to bring forth infant alive.

Exactly one minute after Mrs. Boccazzini had been pronounced dead, a tiny new life had come into being. An almost indiscernible pulse-beat signalled victory.

Dominick Boccazzini, the father, was grief-stricken at his home.

"I went to the hospital last night to see my wife," he said. "I knew when I saw her she was going to die. I'm glad, though, they saved the little bambino's life. I'll do what I can for her, but it isn't much."

He said he had employment only two or three days a week.

"I have two other children by my first wife," Boccazzini said. "One of them, the boy, Sergel, who is nine, is in an orphanage in the south.

"My daughter, Isabella, who is 12, lives here with me and we'll find a place for the new one."

Ray Craft of Aberdeen, Wash., arrived last night for a visit of several weeks with his twin brother, Roy Craft, and Mrs. Craft.

Ray Craft, a newspaper man, has just returned from a ten months' trip abroad during which time he visited the British Isles, France, Switzerland and Italy, as well as in northern Africa.

Highlight of his experience was several months spent in Algeria, during which time he went far into the Sahara desert and lived for some weeks with native tribesmen. While in Africa, Craft amused himself with a study of black magic and the tribal laws and customs of the Arabs.

Craft worked his way across the Atlantic on a Norwegian freighter from Grays Harbor to Scotland via the Panama canal. After visiting in Scotland and England, he spent two months in Paris and then proceeded to Algiers, where he lived for some time. He returned by way of Italy, Switzerland and France.
