The United States consul-general at Hankow, according to dispatches to Nanking, advised all Americans in that part of his consular district north of the Yellow river, to withdraw southward to places of safety. May extend fighting.

This action followed closely an official Japanese intimation that the north China zone of hostilities might extend southward to the Yellow river, the natural boundary between north and central China.

The Hankow consular district includes a small part of Honan province, where United States citizens, on advice of their consul at Tsingtau, already were reported concentrating at Tsingtau, on the coast.

In troubled Hankow itself were about 100 Americans, with several more in mission centers nearby. At Kiangshun, famed central China summer resort in Honan about 100 miles north of Hankow, were about 300 Americans, missionaries with their wives and children.

The Japanese civilian evacuation of Hankow gave every evidence of fears of early trouble. The Japanese 11th gunboat flotilla on the Yangtze river declared a state of emergency existed in the area, landed additional marines to reinforce those already ashore and ordered the evacuation.

3 EUREKA TRAINMEN PLUNGED TO DEATH BY BURNING BRIDGE

EUREKA, Calif., Aug. 5.—(AP)—Three men, crew of a lumber train, were killed when the locomotive and several cars plunged through a burning trestle at Shively, 36 miles south of here today.

The victims were Engineer Edward E. Weatherly, 55; Fireman Carlton G. Bartlett, 50, and Head Brakeman G. C. Still, Jr., all of Eureka.

They were trapped in flaming wreckage when the engine and several cars loaded with lumber plunged through the burning bridge.

Forty cars made up the Northwestern Pacific freight train, southbound from Eureka.

Rounding a curve, the three-man crew suddenly saw the flaming trestle, a structure 170 feet long.

Burned timbers gave way with a roar and the big locomotive and several cars tumbled 30 feet into a ravine.

Residents attracted by the crash said the three victims apparently did not have a chance to jump to safety.

Wall St. Report

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Late selling in today's stock market knocked down leaders fractions to 2 points. There were a few wider setbacks.

Pivotal steels, rails, utilities, farm implements and rubbers were among the principal sufferers. At the same time offerings were far from voluminous.

Selected mining issues and specialties managed to buck the trend. Rising metal prices both here and abroad stimulated the former and actual and prospective company profits brought support for the latter.

There was little in the news to inspire liquidation, brokers said, but notable inability of the market's best weather to make headway in the past few sessions tended to discourage trading forces.

Transfers approximated 700,000 shares.

PERSONNEL COWED UNTIL TIME LOCK WORKS ON VAULT

Colin Merrill to watch the bridge at Cascade Locks. Descriptions of the robbery were broadcast from the Portland police and the Oregon state police radio stations.

Sheriff Leland Morrow of Clark county reported from Vancouver that his office was on the alert for a yellow coupe as well as the sedan.

"The robber met us at the door as Gregorius and I came in at 8:30 a. m., said Beck. "He was very nervous and I thought he either had been hopped up or had been drinking."

"As we opened the door, he struck a gun in my stomach and told us to come in and lie down on the floor. The janitor was bound up on the floor in the back room. The robber had come in the bank at 7:30 a. m., with the janitor. Just how he got in, I don't know because when we untied the janitor he beat it. He was scared to death."

"The robber had light ropes already cut and he tied our hands and feet. As we lay there, he asked me when the vault would open. I tried to stall him and finally told him it would open at 9:05 a. m. He told us if we did anything he didn't like he would 'blow us all over the floor.' I told him we were ready to follow his instructions."

Put Money in Pocket

"When the vault opened he untied me and made me go in and get the money. He was careful to make me handle everything, touching nothing except the currency when I handed it to him. He didn't have a sack but stuffed the money in his pockets."

"As he left, he warned us again that he would kill us if we spread an alarm and then looked me in the vault. He still had some money in his hands when he walked out the front door. People across the street saw him walk about a block. They didn't pay much attention, apparently thinking he was a customer. About a block away he started to run and apparently got in an automobile and headed west."

"While we were on the floor he told us he was a 'desperate man' and was robbing the bank because he needed the money."

"We haven't completed a check yet but he got around $20,000, probably a little less than that."
