McColloch Given Senate Approval For Judge's Seat

Action Gives State Full Quota of Federal Judges First Time Since Death of McNary a Year Ago

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The senate's confirmation of Claude McCulloch, Klamath Falls, late yesterday gave Oregon its full quota of two federal judges for the first time in nearly a year.

McCulloch, the victor after a long fight by Oregon interests, will join Judge James Alger Fee on the federal bench. Judge Fee has served since the death of Judge John McNary, brother of the Republican minority leader, Senator Charles McNary.

The new judge steps up into the life-long position from a career as a lawmaker and an attorney. His family has for many years been identified with public service in Oregon. The federal judge's father is a veteran circuit judge in Baker county, and his brother, Frank, is a former state commissioner of public utilities.

Native of California.
McCulloch, a native of California and an alumnus of Stanford and Chicago universities, served Oregon as senator from Baker county. He was a member of the port of Portland commission and practiced law for several years with Oswald West, former Oregon governor. He went to Klamath Falls ten years ago and became chairman of the state Democratic committee last year.

The appointment by President Roosevelt followed months of candidate wooing by the justice department. McCulloch first came to Washington to press the candidacy of Evan Reames of Medford. Reames was dropped because of his age and McCulloch immediately became a prospect.

His chief opponents were Judge Hall Lusk of Portland and Senator Francis Hess of LaGrande. Lusk, opposed by labor groups, withdrew upon his appointment as supreme court justice for Oregon by Governor Martin.

Opposed by Pierce.
Congressman Walter M. Pierce placed his influence against the Klamath Falls attorney, describing him as "power minded" because he was a legal counsel for a southern Oregon private utility. The representative asked for a sub-committee hearing before sending the name to the senate for confirmation, but he did not appear to make formal protest.

McCulloch, associated in law practice with Harry Bolvin, speaker of the Oregon house, will transfer his home from Klamath Falls to Portland.

The judge, who has been here since Friday, will call on President Roosevelt and then leave for Oregon.

Lawyer Supper Is
New Tomorrow.
Mrs. Ruth Walden will be hostess to members of the Pythian Sisters and Knights of Pythias at her home, 1772 North Riverside avenue, tomorrow evening.

The affair is planned as a covered-dish supper to be served on the lawn in connection with a wintertime roast. Dinner is planned for 6:30 o'clock.

Eddie Cantor In Labor Chief Role To Aid Mikesters

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Eddie Cantor, successful on stage, in the movies and on the radio, today began a new career as a labor leader.

It was no laughing matter for the pop-eyed comedian, newly-elected president of the American Federation of Radio Artists. Facing him was the task of carrying out the federation's campaign to "enroll everyone appearing before a microphone."

Assisting Cantor in organizing radio performers and announcers will be Lawrence Tibbett, Helen Hayes, Jascha Heifetz, James Wallington and Norman Field, vice-presidents; Luella Wall, recording secretary, and George Heller, treasurer.

The federation voted last night to apply for a charter from the Associated Actors and Artistes of America, the A.F.L. international union in the entertainment field.

FAIR TRADE BILL SIGNED BY F. D. R. WITH RELUCTANCE

Manufacturers of such highly advertised products as soaps, cosmetics, toiletries and similar articles could avail themselves of the law in fair-trade states. Sponsors said it also could be made applicable to trademarked food products.

Representative Miller (D.-Ark.), a backer of the measure, said the legislation was aimed at "predatory price-cutting as a weapon of monopolistic large distributors to crush small business men."

An opponent of the measure, Representative Celler (D.-N. Y.), declared it would result in higher prices. He said it would protect the inefficient retailer and was "economically unsound."

The "fair trade" act principle has been tested in the courts. The Illinois law, after which those in other states have been patterned, was upheld by the supreme court last year. The manner in which the price-maintenance plan was put through congress drew sharp criticism from Mr. Roosevelt.

"This is the first instance during my term of office that this vicious practice of attaching unrelated riders to tax or appropriations bills has occurred."
