

Undeclared Kohen Tackles Estes in Main Event Grapple Tonight

FORMER TEACHER FACES SAVICH IN MIDDLE SQUABBLE

Bobby Wagner Will Make Bow in Curtain Raiser Against Wild Man Zim—Sailor Dick Trout Referee

Sammy Kohen, the tough, smart, pug-nosed little Jewish grappler from New York City, will give his undefeated status the acid test tonight when he faces the popular Toots Estes in the top event of Promoter Mack Lillard's weekly wrestling show at the open-air high school arena. Kohen has yet to lose a local squabble and will take off the wraps against Estes in an attempt to keep his record clear.

Marshall Carter, who formerly was wrestling instructor at the University of Missouri and who is rated one of the cleanest and most scientific workers in the game, will tackle with Sonnenberg Danny Savich in the middle event. Carter will be making his debut against the guy who can't seem to make up his mind whether he wants to be a villain or a hero. At times Savich brings back memories of Ted Christy; at others he is strictly on the up and up. What role he will play tonight remains to be seen, although local addicts are wagering he goes dirty again and moses up proceedings considerably.

In the opener, which should be sensational in the extreme, Wild Man Zim, the long-haired maniac, will welcome Bobby Wagner to Medford and southern Oregon. Wagner hails from New Hampshire and is reported to be a mean wrestler with plenty of scientific answers. The wild one was upset by Toots Estes last week and is frothing at the mouth at the forced inactivity since that time.

The main go will see the hammer-lock and headlock, pet maneuvers of Kohen, which follow after that unorthodox gentleman has fouled his opponent into helplessness, in competition with the sensational double-barrel dropkick and all-around wrestling ability of Estes. There has yet to appear a wrestling fellow in Medford who can match the popular Toots for pure, undiluted speed and color. Also, there has apparently appeared none who can cope with Kohen in brutality and brains. The meeting tonight should be one of the best in several months.

Sailor Dick Trout, absent for some time, will forego his role of principal to set as third man in the ring. He can be expected to rule things with the proverbial iron hand.

Advance ticket sales, according to Lillard, indicate another huge crowd. Attendance has shown a steady increase since the move from the Armory to the cool high school stadium.

PRO GOLF TEAMS BATTLE EVENLY IN EXHIBITION MATCH

Lawson Little Cards 67 for Medal Honors—1500 Follow Stars in Memorial Feature; See Fine Putting

Playing before an estimated gallery of 1800 in the feature event of the H. Chandler Egan memorial fountain dedication program yesterday afternoon at the Rogue Valley Golf club, the Jimmy Thomson-Horton Smith and Harry Cooper-Lawson Little professional golf teams battled through 18 brilliantly played holes to finish even up in their best-ball match.

Golfers and fans who came from all of southern Oregon and northern California to see four of the world's greatest in action were not disappointed. They were treated to a brand of golf that is never seen outside of tournament play. And, although the course record of 64 set by Chan Egan, himself, was not broken, nor threatened, they did see the magnificent Lawson Little card a 67 to crack par by three strokes.

Out in 35; in 30. Little was out in 35, one under par, and in 32, two under perfect figures, to hang up the best score and give his team an even break with Thomson and Smith. Jimmy Thomson shot a brilliant 32 on the wild side after a poor 39 on the first for a 71 total to take second medal honors. Horton Smith carded a 72 and Lighthorse Harry Cooper a 73.

The match was replete with amazing shots of all kinds and descriptions. On the very first hole, Thomson and Smith were both in trouble with hooked drives that landed them behind a clump of trees about 200 yards from the green. Thomson, shooting first, lofted over the trees to within three feet of the hole and Smith, not to be outdone, proceeded to reach the green with a skyscraper, a matter of some 300 yards.

Smith Holes Great Putt. Another thrill came on the second green. Smith was lying 32 feet from the hole with a rather rolling terrain between his ball and the pin. Calmly sighting, he tapped the ball in a long, curving arc and it dropped in as the crowd let out a roar.

Those who followed the match with the expectation of witnessing Jimmy Thomson jolt the ball in earnest, were disappointed. Considered the longest driver in the world, the powerfully built blond and stocky Thomson certainly lived up to his reputation. He reached inspired heights on the 300-yard 15th. He really laid into his tee shot and when it stopped rolling it was less than 10 yards from the edge of the green. Lawson Little, on the same hole, also laid his tee shot to within 20 yards of the pin.

Thomson was in trouble a large part of the afternoon with roaring drives of from 250 to 340 yards and ended up in the rough. He took a pair of sixes on the first nine, on the third and seventh holes, both par fours, but most of the time he recovered with great second shots. Lighthorse Harry Cooper, the slender, dark-haired Englishman, was always behind his competitors off the tee but produced a beautiful short game and was effective on the greens.

Two Birdie No. 1. Thomson and Little both carded birdie threes on the first hole to send the match away all even, and did so on the second to keep things deadlocked. Little also got a three on the second by virtue of his great 30-foot putt.

Smith and Thomson went one up on the third when the former holed out in par four after both Little and Thomson had a birdie. The Smith-Thomson team picked up another hole on the fourth as Horton Smith again equalled par while the other three pros were taking fours. The fifth was halved and Cooper and Little cut the margin by one hole on the 470-yard, par five, sixth when Little scored a brilliant eagle three.

Halved at Seventh. Little and Cooper drew even with their opponents on the seventh hole by negotiating a par four hole in perfect figures while Thomson was taking a six and Smith a five.

It remained even up through the eighth, ninth, tenth and eleventh. On the 155-yard twelfth, Little, Cooper and Thomson all took par threes and Smith holed out on his second shot to again put his team one up. However, Little once more squared the match on the thirteenth by sinking a 13-foot putt for a birdie three as the others were matching par.

And that was the way it remained until the end. From the thirteenth until the finale, Thomson carried fours to keep his team tied with Cooper and Little, and was two under par for the round with 32, the same as Little.

Playing over a strange course, the scores recorded by the four pros were considered remarkable, especially H. Lawson Little's brilliant 67. On only three holes did Little shoot worse than perfect golf—on the third when he took a six on the par four, on the fourth with a four instead of a three, and on the sixteenth when he carded a five on the par four hole. He shot five birdies and one eagle, and was undoubtedly the best golfer on the field yesterday. His drives were long—almost as long as those of Thomson—and he was deadly with his approach on the green. He was one under par on the first nine and two below on the second. If he had shot perfect golf on the third, fourth and sixteenth, the record set by Chan Egan would have been equalled.

Perhaps it was only fitting, however, that the record set by the man who yesterday was being honored should remain intact.

Exhibit Shots. With Horton Smith announcing scores here.

Dangerous Danny

Dangerous Danny Savich (above) will match his thundering Sonnenberg against the all-around clean grappling ability of Marshall Carter in the middle event at the high school arena tonight. Carter is a former wrestling instructor at the University of Missouri, and the dirty Savich has vowed to send him back to school for more wrestling instruction.

CRESCENT DRUBS MEDFORD TWICE TO WIN PENNANT

Beach Town Boys Take Replay of Protested Game, 4-3—Follow With 6-1 Victory in Regular Tilt

Crescent City's powerful Chinooks won the 1937 Southern Oregon league baseball pennant yesterday at the high school field by knocking over the Medford Craters, 4-3, in the replay from the sixth inning on of the protested July 18 game, and following that up with a decisive 6-1 triumph in the regularly scheduled encounter. Over 500 spectators, the largest crowd of the year, saw Medford's first championship bid in many years denied before great pitching of Lefty Mike Koll and Ralph Deo and the clutch hitting of Orville Framsted, league leader.

Winners of the first-half championship, the Chinooks clinched at least a tie for the second-half affair in the three-inning protested affair and went on to also grab the second-half pennant in the regular game.

Framsted Home. Sensational Orville Framsted, Crescent City centerfielder, broke up the short encounter by socking a home run down the left field foul line with one mate aboard. With the score tied 2-2, at which point the protested play occurred in Crescent City and which forced the game to be replayed from then on, Framsted, first man to face Medford's Ray Erickson in the last half of the sixth inning, belted a blow over third base that bounced crazily toward the football stadium and made the circuit before the ball could be retrieved. His base hit scored Fern, who was on first base by virtue of a single at Crescent City.

Locals Swore On Errors. That made the score 4-2. The Craters tallied once in the eighth when Hoosier Hoffman singled with nobs away, stole second, and scored on a pair of errors. However, that was the lone run and hit the locals were able to get off Koll, who fanned six in three innings. With the exception of the sixth inning, Erickson pitched hitless ball for the Craters, but the damage had been done.

Big Jack Hughes, sore arm and all started, on the Medford rubber in the regular battle and hurled runless baseball for five frames. His teammates gave him a one-run lead in the fourth inning on singles by Rickert, Donovan and Hoffman, but the Chinooks erased the advantage by tallying three times in their half of the sixth stanza.

The inevitable Framsted opened with a single, Hoffman let Spann's roller go through his legs, Miller singled, Reynolds doubled and Koll sliced a single and that was the ball game. Although they didn't need them, the Chinooks continued once more in the eighth on Reynolds' second double and two fielders' choices, and twice in the ninth on a walk, hit by pitcher, and singles by Miller and Reynolds.

Rickert Shines at Bat. Except for the fourth inning, Medford was at the mercy of Koll and Deo, the latter pitching the last three innings. Wally Rickert was the only Crater to solve the Crescent City hurling. He collected exactly half Medford's base hits.

Medford 3

PITCHING RECORD SHOWS FELLER COMPLETE 'BUST'

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

It doesn't even take a good look any more to show what's wrong with Bobby Feller. Just a peek at the standings will tell you his record, like Babe Ruth's figure, bulges in the wrong places.

With his speed and youth, he may still become the sensation of his baseball generation, but up to now he seems well on the way to going down as the biggest bust since Fred Merkle detoured from first to third.

For all the good he's done the Cleveland Indians this year, he might just as well have been back on the farm, and for all the class he's shown to warrant the book full of headlines they gave him, he might as well have been a butcher in Bangkok.

And it's all because Master Bobby, game by game, is living up to base ball's bewhiskered old saw, "every walk means a run."

Overlooking for the moment the fact that the Cubs' worries have been momentarily adestracked by a four-game lead in the National league race, take a look over Feller's figure for the season.

He's been in 15 games for 79 innings, has allowed 61 hits, given up 65 bases on balls, and fanned 99.

His inability to get his pitches within mauling distance of home plate was never so obvious as yesterday. Although he allowed only two hits in the five innings he worked, he walked seven in two frames, five of them in a row, which does not exactly come under the head of control.

As a result, the White Sox socked him and the Indians, 5-2, in the first game of a doubleheader. The "try game" through, 3-2, in the second, Feller's fifth defeat against three wins for the year, with one of the season's queerest performances.

KEYS TO DRIVING SAFETY INDEXED FOR SCHOOL USE

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. — (UP) — Students in more than 7,000 high schools who take the supplementary course in safe automobile driving next year will be taught that "the American love of speed is the greatest cause of accidents."

They will learn that 15 to 20 miles an hour is too fast for certain conditions, and 30 miles an hour is too slow for other circumstances.

But in addition to theory they will have to drive an automobile to the satisfaction of their instructor before the "final exam" can be passed.

Their courses will be based on the extensive safety bibliography started by Prof. Amos O. Neyhart of the Pennsylvania State college extension service department, who originated the course several years ago.

On leave of absence from the college to take charge of the American Automobile association's safe driving campaign, Prof. Neyhart toured the United States last year to inspect results of his first few classes of high school teachers who returned to their respective schools to pass on Neyhart's instructions.

He reported 3,600 schools offered classes last year, and the number is to double itself this year. During the summer he taught classes of 30 high school teachers at a time in the art of safe driving.

Two completely dual controlled automobiles, with dual brakes, clutches and steering column, are used by Neyhart in his "student" classes. These are supplemented with three other cars with dual clutches and brakes.

Each teacher-student, in addition, is required to develop lesson plans incorporating points of safe driving learned on the college campus. These plans are pooled into what Prof. Neyhart believes will be the most complete set of safe driving lesson plans in the country.

The plans, transformed into the bibliography, and kept up to date, are available for teacher-students. The list so far contains sound films, lantern slides, film strips and sound records.

Believing the course "limited to a certain extent" by requiring school teachers to come here for the course, Neyhart said that through the association, the "lessons" will be extended to other parts of the country, "to reach greater numbers of teacher-students and consequently larger numbers of high school students."

STATE SOFTBALL CHAMPS TO OPEN TOURNEY TONIGHT

SALEM, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Sixteen of Oregon's best softball teams begin a six-day campaign here tonight for the state title, the fifth annual tournament also to include eight girls' teams.

This year's tournament is the first to draw state-wide representation. A single defeat will eliminate any team from the meet.

Portland's two entrants, Rotary Broad and M. & M. Woodworkers, and Salem's two entries, Wally's and the Papermakers, are favorites. Portland has taken two titles and Salem one in the past three years.

First round games, to run into Wednesday night's play, will be seven innings, while the rest will be nine.

Dallas and Albany will tangle at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the tournament opener, while Wally's of Salem and Klamath Falls meet an hour later. Astoria and Rotary Broad of Portland play at 9:30, and Bonneville Dam and Milwaukee meet at 10:30 in the night's closing game.

Mount Angel and the M. & M. Woodworkers of Portland will open the Tuesday evening play at 7:30. Eugene and McMinnville playing an hour later. The Salem Papermakers and Hillsboro meet at 9:30.

After Marshfield and Baker meet at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday in the last first round game, the second round contests will start. The finals will be played Saturday night.

The women's tournament will start at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday, Pade's of Salem pitching Independence, Mount Angel against the Portland Neighbors of Woodcraft, McMinnville against Monmouth, and Lind and Pomeroy of Portland against Eugene. This meet also will end Saturday.

CALIFORNIANS URGE DUCK SEASON CHANGE

KLAMATH FALLS, Aug. 23.—(AP)—A resolution passed by the Tule Lake, Calif., American Legion post urged that 21 counties in northeastern California be placed in an intermediate zone with Oregon in the setting of hunting dates.

The southern California season, the resolution asserted, will be too late to provide shooting for northern residents.

COOPER LEADS PROS IN SALEM EXHIBITION

SALEM, Aug. 23.—(AP)—"Light-horse" Harry Cooper's 68-stroke card, four under par, was largely responsible Saturday for the 1-up victory scored with Horton Smith over W. Lawson Little and Jimmy Thomson.

The national famous foursome played a best ball exhibition before a gallery of 1000 on the Salem golf course.

Little's missed putt for an eagle on the 18th green decided the match. Thompson's card read 70 and Little 71.
